Waldos Don't Fade Away

We see that Waldo has not failed us. He's a tradition again. We knew the big black and white monster would take over WSC and the Pullman butcher shops without any delay.

He has a way of taking over most everything. But poor Waldo is mourning (or should it be mooning) for Snowbelle. At least that's what the WSC Daily Evergreen says. We wonder. Knowing Waldo we doubt that he's eating his heart out over any one girl. Waldo, we think, likes to play the field.

Maybe we're wrong. Maybe he does truly love the big Saint Bernard. If so, we hope she'll write to him. After all, it's the least the girl can do.

And have you noticed what's happened since Waldo left? It's those squirrels. They're getting downright uppity. Wander around as if they owned the place. The other campus dogs make a try at chasing them, but it's not like Waldo. Really disgusting—they'll be taking over the campus any day now.

It is a shame he had to leave. We miss him. (J.W.)

Improved Postal Service

The postman that operates between Eugene and Corvallis seems to be really getting a work-out these past couple of weeks. Take a look at our letter column today and you'd almost conclude the Emerald has more readers in Corvallis than we do at the University.

We hope the Senate accepts Don Foss's excuse for missing the meeting scheduled last week and that the two groups do manage to get together sometime this spring.

Whenever we have an opportunity to meet with students from other Oregon schools, the point again brought home that Oregon and Oregon State are the only two schools of similar size with similar problems in the state. We think a lot could be accomplished by such meetings, planned to compare mutual student government problems and possibilities for solution.

Concerning our Corvallis readership, we'd appreciate it if we received the Barometer a little more regularly so we could keep up on all the news and views from up North. At the moment we feel as though the correspondence is entirely one-sided, and we aren't able to express our opinions on some of the weightier issues at Oregon State. We'd appreciate it if the Barometer exchange issues would stray down this way a little more often.

Incidentally, if Aggie Land keeps such a close eye peeled on our edit page, they might try browsing our news columns on occasion also. We ran the story front page on the OSC leaders' visit with our senate twice before the meeting. It should have jarred Mr. Foss's memory enough so he could have let us know what happened.

Apologies

Emerald Editor:
Open letter to the ASUO senate:
Yes, we stood you up last week! On behalf of the senate of Oregon State college, I would like to offer my sincere apologies. The fault lies entirely within myself; I forgot to write down the occasion in my little black book.

Of course, this is no excuse for missing this important meeting, but I would like to make it clear that we are still very much in favor of holding such a conference and believe that much value can be derived from it. I especially think it would be wise for us to plan to meet in the spring just after our new officers have taken over, that is if the OSC senate can be counted upon to attend such a meeting.

Again, please excuse us and good luck in any projects you may undertake the rest of this year.

Donald F. E. Foss
ASOSC President

Try Mens Souls

Emerald Editor:
The editor, like Tom Paine, can very well conclude that "these are the chimes that try men's souls."

Petitions are now being called for for committee sub-chairmen for the World University Service drive to be held on campus April 19-24, according to Ted Goh, general chairman of the drive.

The WUS drive, formerly World Student Service Fund, has been divided into three main fields, publicity, education and drive, with sub-chairmen to head each committee.

Publicity sub-chairmanships are open for press relations, radio, posters and printed matter, according to Anne Hill, publicity chairman.

Firesides, solicitors and flying speeches sub-chairmanships available in the education section with Gail West as chairman.

Drive chairman Geri Porritt has announced openings for sub-chairmen in the auction, WUS queen contest, carnival, and special projects. Sub-chairmen for the Ugly Man contest and vaudeville show will be appointed later.

A chairman for records and finance is also wanted to handle the business side of the drive.

Memorial Talk To Pay Tribute To Late Dean

The eighth annual Eric W. Allen Memorial lecture will be delivered Friday at 2 p. m. in the Student Union in honor of "a newspaperman who was also a great teacher of newspapermen."

William F. Johnston, managing editor and editor of the editorial page of the Lewiston, Idaho, Morning Tribune, is this year's speaker. He will speak to the Oregon Press Conference and interested students on "The Ingredient of Integrity."

Eric W. Allen, the founder of Oregon's school of journalism, was dean here from 1912 until his death in 1944.

A year after his death, the ON-PA set up the Memorial fund. Its goal was to undertake any project that would have positive, practical value to the profession and to education for journalism.

In addition to the annual Allen lecturer, the fund supports the Allen Memorial fellowships for outstanding journalism students at the University, finances practical research projects for specific benefit to the newspapers of Oregon, and brings professional journalists as guest speakers before the University journalism classes.

The fund also supports the seminars for newspapermen which bring reporters and editors back to the campus for brief school sessions and adds to the journalism library facilities at the University.

Last year's Allen lecturer was Henry R. Luce, editor in chief of Time, Inc.
