

Red Cross Stretches Dollars to Serve Many

by Anne Ritchey

Where does your Red Cross dollar go? Many students may be wondering exactly how the organization distributes the money it collects through its fund-raising drives, one of which is currently being conducted on campus.

Using a single dollar as the unit for division, the largest percentage, 53 cents, goes for aid to active servicemen and their dependents, and disabled veterans.

Next largest appropriation is for the year-round coordination of Red Cross activities, which are worldwide in scope. Out of each dollar 19 cents is used for this purpose.

Almost six cents is used for civilian emergencies, which includes aid to people stricken by floods, fires and similar disasters. A little over five cents is used for the blood program, which is for military purposes.

Five cents out of each dollar goes for swimming and water safety, as does the same amount for disaster relief at home and abroad.

Nursing services claim two and one-half cents from the dollar, and two cents goes to a reserve emergency fund. Approximately one cent each is used for service groups, first aid and the Junior Red Cross.

Lane County's Red Cross drive is also being conducted at the present time, and the county goal is $56,000, according to Robert F. Jackson, manager of the Lane County chapter.

Quota for the campus is $750, according to Carol Huggins, who is vice-president of the campus Red Cross board and general chairman of the drive.

On a personal basis, each student is being asked to give a minimum of 25 cents. Donations are being handled in the living organizations through representatives. The drive closes Friday.

Schools Offer $1200 Fellowships

Three universities are now offering fellowships to students interested in public affairs and public service careers. To qualify, these students must receive their bachelors degree by June.

The Southern Regional Training program in public administration provides an internship for the student with a public agency such as the Tennessee Valley authority, starting in June. Graduate courses will be available at the University of Alabama, University of Tennessee and University of Kentucky. Fellowships carry stipends of $1,200 a year plus college fees.

Further information may be obtained from the educational director, Southern Regional training program in public administration, University of Alabama. Deadline for submitting applications is March 10.

Workers Sought For WUS Work

A final call for workers to participate in three projects to be conducted by the World University Service on campus spring term is being made this week by Co-chairmen Sue Shreeve, sophomore in speech, and F. E. Dart, assistant professor of physics.

All petitions are to be turned in by 5 p. m. Friday at the ASUO petition box on the third floor of the Student Union. Plans for the projects are to be completed by the end of the term, Miss Shreeve said, and actual work will begin early spring term.

The projects, termed "an experiment for international understanding," are separate from the WUS fund raising drive also to be conducted spring term. Last year, the fund raising campaign was conducted under the name World Student Service Fund, WSSF.

First of the three projects will be a discussion of foreign student influence on the University campus. Co-chairmen of this project are Agnes Weitz, special student from Germany, and K. S. Ghent, associate professor of mathematics and foreign student adviser.

American students who have studied abroad and their influence on the campus when they return will be the subject of the second project. Co-chairmen of this group are Dick Brown, freshman in liberal arts, and R. E. Dodge, associate professor of business.

The third group will distribute a survey questionnaire to determine what influences the thinking of American students on international problems. Norm Webb, senior in psychology, and Leona E. Tyler, associate professor of psychology, will head this group.
