

Debaters to Enter Linfield Tourney

Oregon's forensic squad leaves Thursday noon for the Linfield speech tournament, the biggest of its kind on the West Coast, according to Herman Cohen, instructor in speech.

Movies to Feature Northwest Europe

A program of four movies presenting life in four different countries is scheduled for Commonwealth 138 tonight from 7 to 9 p. m. and from 9 to 11 p. m.

"The Dutchway" depicts the struggle of the Dutch people against their friend and enemy — water.

The grandeur of Norway and the practical use of the country's natural resources is presented in the film, "Majestic Norway."

"Meet the Swedes" is the title of a film depicting both country and city life of the Swedish people.

The crowds at the Derby, the Devon and Cornwall countryside, the English lakes, the villages and castles and the white cliffs of Dover are all included in the last film, "Roaming Through Britain."

Admission to these movies is free, according to Barbara Wilcox, chairman of the Student Union movie committee, which sponsors the educational films.

Between 30 and 50 schools, including colleges from as far away as Southern California and Utah, will attend this tournament, Cohen added.

Besides debate, the meet will offer competition in extemporaneous and interpretive speaking, salesmanship, interviewing, radio speaking, after dinner speaking, impromptu and oratory.

The following members of the Oregon squad will compete: Carl Harshbarger, Bill Cheek, Don Mickelwait, Leland Nee, Bruce Holt, Donna DeVries, Loretta Mason, Jo Ann Hutchinson, Pat Peterson and Sue Shreeve.

In their last major competition, at the College of Puget Sound tournament in Tacoma, the Oregon team won the sweepstakes award. Last year at the Linfield tournament, Oregon won first in junior men's debate.

The team, which will be accompanied by Cohen and R. D. Clark, assistant dean of liberal arts, will return Saturday night.

Pardon Me . . . But Haven't We Met Somewhere Before

This is the way Mrs. Betty Economu of San Francisco tells of what must have been — at the very least — an embarrassing moment. "There I was in the shop to have some clothes cleaned and what happens?" recalls Mrs. Economu. "My husband comes in with a gun in his hand and holds up the place. Why, I almost died."

That was the 29-year-old housewife's story a few minutes after her husband surrendered to police to clear his wife in the $320 hold-up. A recent San Quentin parolee, the 32-year-old Economu declared that his wife had no connection with the holdup and that he was as surprised to see her in the cleaning shop as she was to see him. The wife was released but police are holding onto the husband.

covery in no way relate Mayan culture to Egyptian culture. Although the two cultures had some parallel, he said that they both had completely independent development.

Besides describing the tomb, Ruz showed other pictures of the sacred city of Palenque, and its high degree of art development. This culture reached perfection in its stucco relief, he said. Palenque reached its peak of civilization in the sixth and seventh centuries.

Ruz will speak on "The History, Culture and Art of the Maya" on Thursday in the Student Union ballroom at 8 p. m.

The speaker is a member of the staff of the National Institute of Anthropology and History at the National museum in Mexico City. He is also in charge of national monuments of Yucatan.

Two-Hour Zone Set for East 12th

Parking on east 12th avenue between Hilyard and Alder streets for longer than two hours at a time will be prohibited in the future, as the result of action taken by the Eugene city council.

The council last week approved a report by the city manager, setting up a two-hour parking zone on both sides of the street in that block. According to Robert Finlayson, city manager, all-day parkers "presumed to be mainly students" of the University of Oregon and hospital employees, are using the space to the disadvantage of doctors and Sacred Heart hospital visitors.

The hospital is located on the north side of the street.

Paper Firm Plans Student Interviews Man Ducks And Gets Pheasant

Representatives for Crown-Zellerbach corporation will be on campus Thursday to interview prospective graduates in the fields of business administration and chemistry.

B. T. Mullaney and H. K. Seeds, representatives of the corporation will interview students for the whole Crown-Zellerbach group of companies, including Zellerbach Paper and other subsidiaries.

Appointment for interviews should be made now at the graduate placement office in Emerald hall.

By Associated Press
It was breakfast time when dinner arrived — amidst showering glass at the William Klaus home in Northeast Portland. Klaus said he was looking out toward the airport when he saw a pheasant flying his way. He expected it to veer away, but it kept coming. At the last minute Klaus ducked as the pheasant crashed through the window.

It landed in the sink, dead. Mrs. Klaus called the State Game Commission to find out what to do about the bird. The answer was: "Cook it."

Senator to Speak

Philip S. Hitchcock, state senator from Klamas Falls, will speak on "Do Religion and Politics Mix?" at the fellowship supper of the Westminster foundation at 5:30 p.m. today.

Hitchcock was one of the speakers at the joint conference on religion and higher education, and the conference on philosophy of religion during 1952. He was also the principal speaker for the Easter Sunrise service.

All interested students and faculty members have been invited to attend the meeting. Those who have not previously attended the supper meetings should call the Westminster house, 4-4143, for reservations.
