

Friday's Vodvil Show Closes WUS Drive

The World University Service fund drive on campus closed Friday with the annual Vodvil show. Total amount collected for the "Hands Across the Sea" campaign will not be available until all WUS solicitors turn in money collected in living organizations.

Marjatt Haavio, student from Finland, was selected WUS hostess by student vote and was introduced at the Vodvil intermission. The foreign student hostess was a new feature this year and was chosen to "promote international feeling at the Vodvil," according to Goh.

Lowell Schuck, senior in business, won the Ugly Man contest and was presented with the Ugly Man mug. His sponsoring organization, Delta Upsilon, received a plaque.

A total of $303.39 was collected in the contest. Supporters of Schuck contributed $70.66, while runner-up, Walt Gaffney, brought in $45.25.

The WUS auction Friday afternoon netted $129.50. Spencer Snow, sophomore in liberal arts, auctioned off several groups of

Oklahoma Dean Speaks Tonight

Lawrence H. Snyder, dean of the graduate school at the University of Oklahoma, will speak on "Human Genetics and Its Modern Application" at the regular meeting of Sigma Xi, national science fraternity, tonight at 8 in Science 16.

Snyder is an authority on the inheritance of blood groups in humans and has published a number of papers on genetics. He also has written a widely used textbook on the subject and is an expert on genetic problems of disease.

Snyder took his B.S. at Rutgers in 1922, his M.S. at Harvard in 1924, and Sc.D. at Harvard in 1926. He taught at North Carolina State and Ohio State colleges before going to Oklahoma.

The Failing Distinguished Lecture series and Sigma Xi are sponsoring his appearance. Sigma Xi will hold a regular business meeting just prior to the lecture.

Snyder will also give a biology department seminar at 4 p. m. in Science 30.

Monday Deadline Set For YM Photo Contest

Monday is the deadline for entries in the YMCA all-campus snapshot contest. Theme of the contest is campus life and each contestant may submit three black and white snapshots.

A $15 first prize will be awarded the winner of the contest. $10 will be given the second place entry. All pictures entered become the property of the YMCA.

Entries may be made at the YM office in the Student Union. Entry blanks for the contest have appeared in the Emerald and appear again today.

Winners of the WUS car wash were Phi Beta Pi and Sigma Kappa. Women's living organizations washed cars for $1 per car and proceeds were given to the WUS drive.

Author Critic Talks Tuesday

Eliseo Vivas, professor of moral and intellectual philosophy at Northwestern University, will deliver a University lecture Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the Dad's Lounge. His topic will be "Literary Criticism and Aesthetics."

Vivas is the author of a book entitled "The Moral Life and the Ethical Life," and has contributed numerous articles to philosophical and literary journals.

Vivas received his A.B. degree at the University of Wisconsin in 1928 and his Ph.D. from the same institution in 1935. He has taught philosophy at the University of Wisconsin, the University of Chicago, and Ohio State university.

In 1928 and 1929 he served as consul for Venezuela, the nation of his birth, in Philadelphia.

Petitions Due May 3 For Emerald Positions

Petitions for the positions of editor and business manager of the Emerald for the first half of the next school year are due noon May 3.

Candidates will be interviewed by the publications board May 4 at 7:30 p. m. in the Student Union according to Richard Williams, secretary of the Student Publications board.

Petitions are to be turned in to Williams' office in the SU.

Soph Honors Exams Set

A schedule of the comprehensive exams for sophomore honors students has been released by Hoyt Trowbridge, chairman of the sophomore honors committee.

Exams will be as follows: history, May 18; study of society, May 20; physical science and biological science, May 25, and literature, May 27.

All exams will be held in Fenton 3 and will begin at 7:30 p. m. The exams are designed as two-hour tests, but a half hour extra will be allowed, if needed, Trowbridge said.

The comprehensives are open to all students eligible for the sophomore honors program and to others who have completed at least 15 hours and have a 2.75 or higher grade point average, with the consent of the committee. Students who have completed more than 93 hours, however, are not eligible.

Sophomore honors are awarded to all students passing all four exams with a "grade of distinction."

Reading lists of the material to be covered in the tests will be distributed this week to students enrolled in sophomore honors courses, and will be available to others in the English department in Friendly hall.

Met Soprano To Sing Here

Nadine Conner, Metropolitan opera soprano, will appear Friday at 8 p. m. in McArthur court in the last Civic Music association presentation of this season.

Beginning her study of voice at the University of Southern California, Miss Conner made her professional debut as a soloist over radio station KHJ in Hollywood.

After touring with a theatrical company and singing leading operatic roles with the Los Angeles Opera company, the soprano married Dr. Laurance Heacock, a Compton surgeon, in 1939 and retired for two years.

Returning to her musical career in 1941, Miss Conner auditioned in New York for the Metropolitan and made her debut there as Pamina in "The Magic Flute." Since then she has become one of the Met's leading sopranos.

The concert will be free to University students on presentation of student body cards.

Actress Slated For Assembly

Cornelia Stabler, noted character actress, will present "Personality Portraits," at a University assembly Tuesday at 1 p. m. in the Student Union ballroom.

Miss Stabler has been heard on radio and television programs on major network shows, and has presented her one-woman show from coast to coast in this country.

She toured Germany, France and Belgium for the USO during World War II.

Miss Stabler writes her own character sketches, and serves as director of a summer community theater. She received her early dramatic training at Swarthmore college and later took graduate work in drama at Columbia university.

"Personality Portraits" consists of several sketches of everyday life of Americans, sometimes comic or satiric and sometimes sympathetic.

Miss Stabler says that character sketching is "just eavesdropping developed into a fine art."

'WHO HUNG HERMAN?'

Herman the Moose Found; Now Living At DU House

Herman's been found — again! Herman the moose, the elusive trophy presented annually to the sponsors of the Ugliest Man on Campus, is now residing with his new owners, members of Delta Upsilon.

But he led several students a merry chase over the campus before he decided to settle in his new home.

Herman was to have been presented to Lowell Schuck, winner of the Ugly Man contest at Friday night's Vodvil show. He had been seen in the Student Union Friday during the World University Service auction.

Sunday afternoon, several members of Alpha Xi Delta spotted Herman on the lawn of a Eugene home. The Alpha Xi's ransomed Herman from three college students who live in an apartment in the home. The three — Jerry Ohlson, junior in chemistry; Jerry Petersen, sophomore in liberal arts, and Dave Rosenlof, junior in

925 HS Seniors Attend Weekend

High school seniors—925 strong—look over the campus during the weekend. The students were on campus for the annual Duck Preview weekend.

Registration figures showed an increase of more than 200 over the 700 seniors on campus last year.

The campaign to "Sell Oregon" to the visiting high school students began with a "What to Take?" session Friday night. Various schools and departments of the University presented the courses offered to students.

The seniors were entertained at

Court Named During Vodvil

The five members of the Junior Weekend court were announced at the Vodvil show intermission Friday night. They are Alma Owen, Nancy Murrow, Janet Miller, Dorothy Kopp and Janet Wick.

Other finalists for the court were Joanne Morrison, Jean Paulus, Laura Sturges, Nancy Moore, Shirley Katz, Ann Hopkins and Anne Johnston.

The Junior Weekend queen will be determined by campus vote on May 12. The queen and her court will reign over Junior Weekend festivities from May 13 to 15.

Lecture Topic Controversial

One of the most controversial issues in the United States today will be discussed at this week's browsing room lecture.

W. A. Williams, assistant professor of history, will speak on isolationism in relationship to U. S. foreign policy, Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. His topic will be "The Myth of Isolationism." Frederick M. Hunter, honorary chancellor of the State System of Higher Education will lead the discussion period after the lecture.

Williams was graduated from the United States Naval Academy and obtained both his M.S. and Ph.D. in Russian-American relations at the University of Wisconsin. He has taught at Wisconsin, Washington and Jefferson college and Baird college, N. Y. A member of both the American and the Mississippi Valley historical associations, Williams has been a frequent contributor to historical publications.

In addition to his scholastic work, Williams is also a jazz enthusiast and has given several lectures on this subject at the University. He once played with a Chicago dance band.

the annual Vodvil show Friday from 10 p. m. to midnight.

Saturday began with advisor meetings for students interested in talking over a tentative program for their freshman year, with department representatives.

An orientation assembly Saturday morning featured speeches by University President O. Meredith Wilson, ASUO President Tom Wrightson, Basketball Player Barney Holland, AWS President Janet Wick and Danforth Graduate Jo Hutcheon. The seniors were introduced to the University band and rally squad.

Tours of many of the buildings and departments on campus followed the assembly. The visiting seniors saw educational exhibits in many departments.

The students had three events to choose from Saturday afternoon—the Amphibian water show, a track meet and a baseball game with the Salem Senators.

Exchange dinners between paired living organizations were featured Saturday night.

The "preview of life at Oregon" wound up Saturday night with a semi-formal dance in the Student Union ballroom. Tommy Fox and his band furnished music.

ASUO Candidates Hold Coffee Hour

Candidates for ASUO presidency will speak at a Student Union-ASUO coffee hour at 4 p. m. Tuesday, according to Bob Funk, ASUO vice-president.

Funk has urged all candidates to attend the coffee hour. All candidates present will be introduced.

Any student planning to run as a non-partisan candidate on the ASUO ballot May 5 must file his petition by midnight April 28. Petitions should be turned in to Funk.

Shirley Ann Knox will replace Tom Shepherd as UIS candidate for senator-at-large. Shepherd withdrew from the race last week. Miss Knox was second in the voting for senator-at-large in the primary election.

Polling booth attendants are needed for the general election May 5. Funk said. Interested persons should apply at the ASUO offices.

Forum to Feature Satire Discussion

"Satire — The Writer's Scalpel," will be the topic of the University of Oregon Radio Forum which will be broadcast tonight at 8:30 over radio station KOAC.

Carlisle Moore, associate professor of English, will act as moderator. Participants will be James Hall and R. C. Gordon, both assistant professors of English.

Program director for the forum is Charles P. Schleichner, professor of political science.

2 Oregon Co-eds In Contest Finals

Two University of Oregon co-eds are among the ten finalists in the Miss Oregon Press Photographer contest.

Eunice Peckenpaugh and Loretta Mason, both sophomores in speech, will be judged in the finals of the contest at the Oregon Press Photographers' Ball at the Multnomah hotel in Portland May 1.

The winner of the state contest will travel to Atlantic City in June for the national competition.

The contestants will stay at the Multnomah hotel the entire weekend of the contest. They will be guests at a luncheon Saturday and will be introduced at a banquet preceding the ball.

The contestants will be served breakfast Sunday morning before leaving Portland. All expenses will be paid by the Press Photographers' association.
