

SET FOR REVENGE

Chiefs Ready For Webfoots

(Ed. Not — This is the first in a series of three articles giving a preview of baseball teams opposing the University of Oregon in the coming NCAA baseball tournament at Howe field.)

"Waiting and ready for revenge." These words just about describe the attitude of the Seattle university baseball team which will oppose the Oregon Ducks at Howe field Friday afternoon in the first game of the Western Regional NCAA tournament.

The mighty Chieftans of Al Brightman lost a game to Oregon at Eugene a little over a month ago by a 5-3 score. Since that time, they have not dropped another contest. The Chiefs at the present time are sporting a 14 game winning streak. For the year the Seattleites have a record of 25 wins and four defeats.

Seattle's main weapon in rolling up its outstanding seasonal mark has been some excellent pitching and some great hitting on the part of four players. The Chiefs have used four hurlers during the year and all four have come through with outstanding performances in game after game. Brightman will be able to bring only three of his chuckers to the tournament however because of a NCAA ruling.

Pastornicky Out

Ernie Pastornicky, the Chiefs' fireball thrower, will not be able to play at Eugene because he has already taken part in three seasons of varsity baseball at Seattle. The NCAA allows only three years of competition. Pastornicky, who has been bothered by a sore arm most of the year, had a five won and none lost mark for his team.

Although Seattle will no doubt miss the screaming fast ball of Pastornicky, Brightman is not too discouraged about the matter. His other three pitchers have all been consistent and should give the Chiefs plenty of depth. John Kelly, a young sophomore, will probably get the starting call for Seattle in their first game of the tourney against Oregon. Kelly has been a mystery to opposing batters in every game he has pitched and he will go into the tournament with a 7-0 won-loss record. Backing up Kelly will be two other hurlers who should do almost as well. George Karpach, 7-1, and Bob Ward, 6-3, will be ready to take their pitching turns in the tourney.

To show how effective the Seattle pitching staff has been in games this year, it is a fact that they have shutout 10 foes in the 29 Seattle games.

Bauer Hits .402

In the batting department the Chieftans are led by second baseman Cal Bauer who is boasting a lusty .402 mark going into the playoffs. Bauer, who also was a basketball star for Seattle this year, has pounded out 41 hits in 102 times at bat. Catcher Ed Romeo is not far behind Bauer in the hitting department with a .397 average. Romeo has hit safely 25 times in 63 trips to the dish. First baseman Frank McBarron and outfielder Bill Collier are the other two sluggers for Seattle. McBarron is batting .385 and Collier is right in back of him with a .375 percentage.

The probable starters for the Chiefs in the Oregon game will be: Romeo, catcher; Kelly, pitcher; McBarron, first base; Bauer, second base; Dick Naisch, shortstop; Fred Baehm, third base; Darrell Steffes, left field; Jim Burns, center field; and Collier, right field.

Also on the travelling squad for Seattle are: Ed Naisch, catcher; Jack George, utility infield; Karpach and Ward.

Football Players Meet Thursday

Line coach, Vern Sterling, announced Tuesday afternoon that an important meeting would be held Thursday afternoon at McArthur Court for all men planning on turning out for football next fall.

The meeting will begin at 4 o'clock and all squad members are urged to be prompt.

Sixteen Trackmen to Travel

Bill Bowerman announced Tuesday that he would take 16 trackmen to the Pacific Coast conference track and field meet at Seattle this weekend. Oregon's ND champs will be out to pick up some more awards when they take to the cinders to compete with the best performers from both the Northern and Southern Divisions.

Bill Dellinger, Wayne Reiser, Bob Faucett, Fred Jacobs and the Duck mile relay team, all first place finishers in the ND meet, will be entered in their specialties.

Dellinger will be competing with some of the toughest competition of his career in the mile run. Reiser will have the same problem in the two mile. Reiser, who upset Washington's Denny Meyer last Saturday, will once again be battling it out with the Husky runner.

South Marks High

Faucett will have to improve some to stay in the running in the high jump. The Southern Division has several performers who have leaped better than 6'5" this season. Faucett's best mark is 6'4".

Jacobs will be running against the defending national 440 champion in his favorite race. Jim Lea of USC won the NCAA quarter-mile run last season and plans on using the PCC meet as a stepping stone to the same accomplishments this year. Lea has a best time of 47 seconds flat this season as compared to Jacobs' 49.4.

Oregon's mile relay team is conceded little chance of winning the event this Saturday but the Ducks are expected to place fairly high. USC's outstanding quartet, paced by Lea, has turned in a terrific 3:12.7 clocking this season and will be favored to win the race. Oregon won the ND crown with a time of 3:20.9.

Other men who will make the trip for the Webfoots and the events they will compete in are:

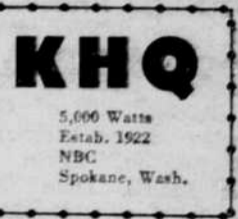

Doyle Higdon, javelin; Ken Hietanenbottom and Bob Reid, pole vault; Ben Johnson, broad jump; Bruce Springbett and Doug Talbot, dashes; Bill Sorsby and Chas Sogge, hurdles; Gordon Dahlquist, 440; and Doug Clement and Bill Hail, 880.

Talbot, Dahlquist, Jacobs and Clement will make up the relay team.
