

University Theater To Limit Ticket Sales

For the first time in its history the University theater will have to limit the sales of season tickets because of an increased demand for seats and a limited number of playing dates. Only 2500 season tickets will be sold this year, according to Mrs. Gene Wiley, theater business manager.

The 1954-55 season will open with a production of Mary Chase's recent Broadway success, "Bernardine." The comedy will open a seven-performance run on Oct. 29. "Bernardine" will be directed by Frederick J. Hunter, instructor in speech.

The second show will be a classic drama in December under the direction of Horace W. Robinson, associate professor of speech. The first show of winter term will be an experimental drama in January. A modern drama is planned for March. The annual arena theatre production will run in April and the University theater will close its season with the traditional musical production.

Season tickets will be on sale through Wednesday on the second floor of the SU and from Wednesday through Saturday in front of Emerald hall. Tickets are $5 each.

Credit toward college degrees may be obtained through enrollment in the courses. Registration fee for all students, regardless of academic status, is $6 per credit hour, with the minimum fee $12 per term.

Classes offered in the general extension program fall term include courses in education, literature, business administration, history, philosophy, journalism, law, science, social science, art, languages, physical education and speech.

Ad Honorary Wins Group's Award

The Oregon chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, professional advertising fraternity, received the Advertising Association of the West's "Double A" award at that group's annual convention this summer, according to Willard Thompson, assistant professor of journalism.

The award is presented each year to a junior advertising group for "outstanding achievement in promoting a better understanding of advertising by the public."

The group also received the first annual award for junior clubs outstanding in the promotion of advertising recognition week. The latter project was done in cooperation with the Lane County Ad club.

John Cary, senior in speech, is president of the local chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma.
