

Freshmen Receive Assist

Y Cabinet Holds Retreat at Jasper

Jasper was the scene of a planning retreat of the University YWCA cabinet Tuesday. The retreat was held to go over details of fall term plans made at the end of spring term.

Director Eileen Lindblad said that special discussion was held on the freshman program, membership, interest areas and campus plans for the YWCA centennial.

Oregana Sales Number 1200

As of early Thursday afternoon approximately 1200 Oreganas had been sold at the sales table in the Student Union. Sales Manager Mary Hyde reported that sales had been going fairly well among upper-classmen, but that the new student sales had been disappointing.

The poor percentage of freshmen subscribers was attributed by Oregana workers primarily to the fact that many of the new students are unaware that they can pay for their Oregana in advance along with their other tuition fees.

Sales to date this year are reported about the same as in years past and if present estimates are correct the sales total will reach 2,000 by the end of the week. The sales department of the Oregana has set a tentative goal of between 2,200 and 2,400 for total sales for the year.

Money Due By Saturday

Saturday noon is the deadline for payment of registration fees without penalty, according to Clifford L. Constance, registrar.

Late fees will be assessed after that time at the rate of one dollar per day for regular students with seven hours or more and one dollar per week for special students taking six hours or less.

An estimated 4200 students filled registration lines throughout the week. Early estimates place the size of the freshman class at 1300, a substantial increase from the 1953 figure.

Registration officials stressed the fact that partial completion of registration does not entitle students to University privileges. Only with the student body card received upon payment of fees may persons obtain their athletic ticket, free concert admissions, and library and academic privileges.

Steps in registration are:

1. Obtaining registration material in the Student Union 214. Remaining material will be moved from the SU to the registrar's office Monday.
2. Building a study program with the adviser's approval. The student's time schedule should then be copied on the registration card and the student grade and class cards.
3. Enrolling in courses with departments. Students leave class cards with the departments in return for the department stamp on the student's registration card.
4. Checking with student affairs in the SU. Student affairs card, news bureau card and the multiple set of cards are dropped at the student affairs desk. Students who have automobiles on campus must register them at this time. New students will have photos taken at this time.
5. Obtaining fee assessment from registrar, the next-to-last

Record Number Signs for Rush

The Panhellenic office has announced that 389 women have signed up for the open houses. This is nearly 100 more women than the number that went through formal rush week last year.

Times for women's rushing open houses have been changed to allow for foreign language examinations, according to Panhellenic Chairman Carol Wenner.

The open houses, originally scheduled for 10 a. m. to noon and 1 to 3 p. m., will be from 1 to 5 p. m., Miss Wenner said.

Campus clothes are in order for the conducted tour. All 16 Oregon sororities will be visited with Kwama members serving as guides.

Miss Wenner said that Panhellenic members have agreed on a "hands off" policy for the weekend. The group has made allowances for situations which will arise on the game weekend when sorority members and rushees will come into frequent contact, Miss Wenner said.

Rushees are to pick up their bids for the first period at noon on Monday. The first period will consist of six dates, three Monday and three Tuesday, with no house to be visited more than once during the period.

Former UO President Dies During Summer

Clarence V. Boyer, president of the University from 1934 to 1938, died July 31 in Sacred Heart hospital after a long illness. He was 74 years old.

Mr. Boyer joined the Oregon faculty as a professor of English and head of the department in 1926. He later served as dean of the college of arts and letters and as head of the language and literature group.

He resigned the presidency in 1938 but continued to serve as dean of the college until 1942. He taught English on a part-time basis until 1945. Full retirement followed in 1947. He was the University's sixth president.

Also an attorney, Mr. Boyer practiced law for four years. He was a graduate of Princeton university and the law school of the University of Pittsburgh. He also studied at Oxford, the American Academy at Athens and the American Academy in Rome.

He received his master's and doctor's degrees from Princeton. He taught English at the University of Illinois for 15 years prior to coming to Oregon.

Primarily a scholar rather than an administrator, he became president of the University reluctantly. He ran the school from his office in Villard hall.

Mr. Boyer's term as president was during the depression, and he guided the University through its last big pre-war building program.

He is survived by a brother, Dr. Samuel Boyer of Duluth, Minn., and a sister, Mrs. Frederick Eaton, Orlando, Fla.

Ribbons, Beanies Required for Game

Oregon's new students will get their first taste of tradition at the Oregon-Stanford game Saturday night in Multnomah stadium in Portland.

All freshmen women will be required to wear green ribbons in their hair and the freshmen men must wear their green and yellow "beanies," according to Sally Stadelman, rally board chairman. The Order of the "O," lettermen's club, will be on hand to catch violators, warns Miss Stadelman. Members of the rally squad will be selling ribbons today.

A long standing tradition will be revived this year: the wearing of the green and yellow "lids." After Oregon wins a game, the hats are to be worn with the green side out. After an Oregon loss, the hats will be reversed so that the yellow side shows. For the Stanford game, freshmen will wear their "lids" with the green showing, because of the Webfoots' victory over Idaho last week.

Separate Sections

Proper dress for the game will be campus clothes, says Kay Partch, campus social chairman. This means skirts and sweaters for the women and slacks, shirts and sweaters for the men.

Members of Phi Theta Upsilon and Kwama, campus honoraries, will hand out pom-poms for the game at Charles F. Berg's, Portland women's store, between 2 and 5 p.m. Saturday. For the men, noisemakers will be distributed as the students enter the game.

Oregon students are to enter the game through gate B, and will be seated in the bleachers in front of the west grandstands, according to Mrs. Lily Laxton, athletic ticket manager. Non-student wives of Oregon students will not be allowed to sit with their husbands, Mrs. Laxton adds. General admission spectators will enter a different gate than the Oregon rooters, and will not be allowed to sit in the same section.

Prices for tickets at the game are $4 and $3 for reserved seats, and $1 for general admission.

The rally board has planned special entertainment for before the game or halftime entertainment.

Real Live Indian Slated for Game

Prince Lightfoot, a genuine Stanford Indian, will be on hand for the Oregon-Stanford game at Multnomah stadium in Portland Saturday night.

A letter to Sally Stadelman, rally board chairman, from Harry D. Williams of Stamford announced that Prince Lightfoot, the official Stanford mascot, will be at the game to root for Stanford.

The Prince is a full-blooded Yuroc Indian. He was adopted as mascot for Stanford three years ago.

An ardent Stanford rooter, Prince Lightfoot is not a student, but an independent performer. He will wear a white-beaded buckskin outfit and a long feathered headdress at the game, according to Williams.

Athletic Tickets Available at Gate

Students may pick up their athletic tickets in Portland at gate B in Multnomah stadium, Saturday from 1 to 8 p.m. However, Athletic Ticket Manager Mrs. Lily Laxton has requested all students to pick up their sport cards today in the ticket offices in McArthur Court, in order to avoid a long line before the game.

The office in Mac court will be open until 5 p.m. this afternoon, but will be closed all day Saturday.
