

Puddles, Companion Homeless Orphans

Puddles III, Oregon's mascot who was introduced at the rally Thursday night, is out in the cold; and so is Piddles I, his close companion in the mascot business.

Other than the temporary Hudson-Duncan lettuce crate in which they were presented at the rally, the two little orphans have no home. (And that lettuce crate gets awful drafty at nights.)

They are looking for a backyard pen in one of the local fra-at the rally Thursday evening by Yell King Tom Gaines. Its cage, or home, was decorated recently by members of the rally board. The showcase has a green background, with yellow "O's" painted on both ends and the word "Puddles" painted on a slat on one side.

The bottom of the redecorated lettuce crate is fittingly painted black with an orange "O" in the center. This signifies, of course, that the Ducks plan to walk all over Oregon State this year, according to Sam Vahey, rally board publicity chairman.

Train to Berkeley Being Considered

Tentative plans are being made for a chartered car on the Southern Pacific's Shasta Daylight for the California-Oregon football game at Berkeley, according to Jerry Beall, campus public relations chairman.

The game will be Oct. 9. Round trip fare would be about 28 dollars, Beall said.

More details will be announced later if sufficient interest is shown. Further information on the proposed trip may be obtained by calling Beall at Alpha Tau Omega.

ternities, or, better still, a barnyard home on a close-to-the-campus farm. University duck adoption authorities state that the guardians of the two things must give them all the love and devotion that a one-year-old duck deserves.

If anyone feels he can meet these qualifications, he is begged to call Sally Stadelman, rally board chairman, at 4-6814.
