Kefauver Hits GOP Policies; Supports Oregon Democrats

From the wires of Associated Press

ONTARIO, ORE.—Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee Monday criticized the Eisenhower administration's power policies and urged election of Albert C. Ullman, the Democratic nominee, as Eastern Oregon Congressman.

Kefauver, speaking at Ontario, said the administration "has" officially abandoned to a little group of power barons the opportunity to decide how much power will be produced, where it will be produced and how much they will charge for it.

He said that election of Ullman would "show the people of Eastern Oregon have repudiated the administration policy to give away Hells Canyon dam and our other river resources to monopoly interest."

Sen. Wayne Morse, also campaigning for Democratic candidates, told a meeting of farmers at Molalla Monday night that the policies of Secretary of the Interior McKay have led to a serious decline in Oregon population and job opportunities. He urged election of Richard L. Neuberger to the U. S. Senate and a full slate of Democratic congressmen to "reverse the administration power policy of no new dams on the Columbia."

Neuberger, speaking in Astoria, accused Cordon's organization of carrying on a smear campaign to "shift the scenery from Cordon's voting record in the United States Senate."

Joseph K. Carson, the Democratic candidate for governor, told the Astoria rally that he thought the 1953 Oregon anti-picketing bill was an unfair law. He said he would oppose any efforts to rewrite it in order to overcome features which courts have declared unconstitutional.

Weeks Cites Budget Problems

BOSTON—Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks says "budget and taxation will be troublesome problems" as long as the United States lives under cold war conditions.

Weeks told the annual dinner of the Smaller Business Assn. of New England Monday night:

"Out of every government dollar, 66 cents goes for defense, and 23 cents goes for interest on the national debt, veterans benefits and agricultural supports. The rest of the government operates on the remaining 11 cents."

Weeks said the Defense Department "by watching purchases and by a more adequate analysis of what we have on hand will spend 15 per cent less for subsistence, 50 per cent less for clothing and 55 per cent less for materials and supplies during fiscal 1955."

He said the Eisenhower administration, in its 20 months in office, has "started in the right direction" toward tax reductions.

Dixon-Yates Witness To Testify

WASHINGTON—J. D. Stietenroth, ousted Mississippi utility official, was scheduled Tuesday to wind up testimony before a Senate subcommittee probing the controversial Dixon-Yates contract.

In four days of testimony last week, Steintenroth detailed his accusation that Wall street dominated the utility for which he was secretary-treasurer, Mississippi Power and Light Co.

This firm is a subsidiary of Middle South Utilities, one of two firms that would share in the Dixon-Yates contract which President Eisenhower has directed the Atomic Energy Commission to negotiate.

The contract calls for the Dixon-Yates private utility group to build a plant at West Memphis, Ark., to supply power to the Tennessee Valley Authority. It would replace electricity which TVA furnishes an AEC plant at Paducah, Ky.

The proposal has aroused a storm of controversy in Congress, particularly among lawmakers from TVA states.

Reporter Foils Suicide Attempt

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Reporter John Seigenthaler jerked a man from the jaws of death by his shirt collar 100 feet above the Cumberland River Monday.

For 40 minutes, the Nashville Tennessean reporter shot questions to Gene Bradford Williams, 55, as he threatened to leap from the downtown bridge.

Then as Williams muttered, "So long. God forgive me my sins," Seigenthaler lunged from astride the bridge railing and clamped a strong grip on his collar.

"I'll never forgive you," snapped Williams as police rushed to help Seigenthaler yank the struggling man back to safety.

In his story Seigenthaler said then Williams "stood up and looked down. He put both feet on two telephone wires and his body was suddenly rigid. He looked at the water below. As he started to mumble his goodbye, I grabbed."

Williams called the newspaper's city desk and said he was going to drop from the bridge. "Send a reporter and a photographer if you want a story," he advised City Editor Bill Maples.

Sack Gets Death Sentence

PORTLAND—George F. Sack, 61, convicted of first degree murder in the death last February of his third wife, was sentenced Monday to be executed Dec. 10 in the state prison gas chamber.

Circuit Judge Frank J. Lonergan pronounced the sentence.

However, Sack's attorney, John P. Hannon, says he will appeal and that will stay the execution.

The body of Mrs. Sack, a former Montana school teacher, was found in a clump of bushes on the outskirts of Portland Feb. 18. The state contended that Sack, an apartment house owner, killed her by suffocation in the trunk compartment of his car. Sack denied it.

Dads' Day Date Set for February

The date for Dads' day was set for Feb. 5 at the first regular meeting of the Oregon Dads for the school year held Saturday.

Discussion of plans for the future, including housing for married students, since 40 percent of the men who graduated last spring were married; future new buildings, and scholarships, were on the agenda.

Reports from the local dads' clubs on finances and scholarships for students were read. The Eugene Dads' club plans to make a concerted effort to find jobs for students this year as the lumber strike cut down on summer employment.

Pre-Nursing Club Schedules Meeting

White Caps, the pre-nursing club, is having its first meeting of the year on Wednesday noon at the Student Union.

All pre-nursing students, especially freshmen and transfer students are invited to attend, according to Judith Pederson, vice-president. The room number will be posted in the SU.

Selective Service Schedules Tests

Oregon State Headquarters, Selective Service System, has announced the dates of the college qualification tests for the 1954-55 school year.

"The first test will be held Dec. 9, 1954, for which application cards must be mailed not later than midnight Nov. 23, 1954," said Colonel Francis W. Mason, deputy state director, "and the second, and last one scheduled for this school year, will be held April 21, 1955, for which application cards must be postmarked not later than midnight, March 7, 1955."

Colonel Mason went on to point out that application cards may be obtained from any selective service local board office.

"Registrants eligible to take this College Qualification Test are those who have completed or are just completing one year of college work. The Oregon State Headquarters urges all registrants who desire to complete their collegiate work to take this test.

"Where a passing score is obtained it provides one additional chance of remaining in school," continued Colonel Mason. "It must be remembered, however, that a passing score and the required class standing do not assure deferment but one of these criterion must be met before the local board can consider any registrant for college deferment."

MEETING TONIGHT

Forensics Squad Discusses Plans

Plans for the coming season will be one of the topics of discussion today at 7:30 when the University forensics squad holds its initial meeting of the year, according to Jim Wood, assistant director of forensics.

Wood has announced that there are several vacancies on this year's squad. Persons interested in forensics should attend the meeting in Villard 206 tonight or contact Herman Cohen, instructor in speech.

The squad has scheduled its first two events early in November. A debate tournament at Washington State college has been scheduled as well as the Portland town meeting, a forum-type program held before high school assemblies, civic organizations and similar audiences.

Last year's competitive season included victories at the College of Puget Sound and Pacific Forensic league tournaments. Forum meetings were held in Portland, Bend and other cities throughout the state. Oregon's forensics group was one of two from the Northwest invited to compete in the national debate championships at West Point last year.

Returning veterans from last year's forensics squad include Don Micklewait, senior in economics; Lee Nee, senior in art; Pat Peterson, sophomore in liberal arts; Liz Collins, senior in speech; Donna De Vries, sophomore in liberal arts, and Loretta Mason, junior in speech.

Seniors Requested To Register Papers

All seniors should register their papers and credentials with the employment service as soon as possible, according to Karl Onthank, associate director of student affairs.

Seniors will begin interviews with employers at the end of this month and should sign up for these interviews as soon as possible, Onthank reports.

Students not wishing an interview with an employer are urged to file with the office of student affairs, as that office is referred to many times for references by employers and government agencies.

Any student who plans to leave the University permanently, even if he does not graduate, may also take advantage of this credential service.

Misprint Lessens Tri Deltas' Calls

One of the phone numbers of the Delta Delta Delta sorority house was erroneously announced in the October 1 issue of the Emerald.

The number 4-0513 is not the Delta Delta Delta house. Correct numbers are 4-9514 and 5-9523.
