

Plans for Brighter Future Drawn Up by Architects

The School of architecture and allied arts hopes to have this structure as its permanent home in the near future. Plans have been drawn up and the proposed remodeling of the current plant will come before the next state legislature.

The school of architecture's 20 years in a "temporary" building may come to an end soon. Just how soon is still a matter of speculation, according to Sidney W. Little, dean of the school.

Plans have been drawn for remodeling of the main architecture and allied arts building, and will be presented to the state legislature.

One wing of the school's home is the 20-year-old structure. Until this term, the school of architecture has had an annex on Onyx street. The annex, formerly the University's metal and wood shop, is now used by the anthropology department.

Nomads Take Over Press
Sometimes termed the "wandering nomads" of the campus, the architecture school has now taken over the part of the Onyx street structure which housed the University press until this summer.

Little said that the school will remain in the old press location until an appropriation for the proposed remodeling is made.

The move made by the school of architecture and allied arts is only one of numerous ones made by the various departments and schools on the campus last spring.

Make Room for Monkeys

The school of journalism abandoned the quonset huts between Commonwealth and Fenton halls to make way for the psychology department. The Villard quonset, which last year housed the Oregon Daily Emerald will be turned over to the psychology department's monkeys. The quonsets were once the home of the chemistry department, but have also housed geography, geology and English classes.

Geography and geology will take over the space formerly occupied by anthropology in Condon.

As for the former University Press space, Little voiced the opinion that the psychology department's monkeys or the military department will move in when architecture finally finds a permanent home.

Student Drinkers Pay $300 for Sins

Illegal possession of beer cost 15 University students a total of $300. The students appeared Monday afternoon before Judge Chester Anderson at the Lane county district court and were fined $15, plus $5 court costs each.

The 15 were arrested in the vicinity of Fern Ridge dam Oct. 1 by sheriff's deputies. The students told Judge Anderson at a preliminary court appearance that they were having a party celebrating the close of rush period. All of the men were under 21 years.

UO, USC Bands To Play Saturday

Two bands will provide eight minutes of entertainment at the Oregon-Southern California football game Saturday.

Both colleges will have marching bands at Multnomah stadium in Portland. Each band will play four minutes at half-time. The performance will be televised as part of the game of the week television series.

PICK A THEME

Homecoming Heads Named

By Dorothy Iler

Emerald Feature Editor

Plans for the 1954 Homecoming got underway Tuesday with the selection of committee chairmen and the opening of the theme selection contest.

The contest to select this year's Homecoming theme will begin Thursday. Boxes for theme suggestions will be placed in the Student Union and the Co-op. The student submitting the winning theme will receive two tickets to the Homecoming dance plus a merchandise gift.

Theme for Homecoming should cover all the activities of the special weekend, Dick Beckman, Homecoming co-chairman noted. Last year's theme was "Alums and We '76 to '53" and the winning theme in 1952 was "Sing the Story, Oregon."

All committee heads selected Tuesday will meet at 4 p.m. today in the Student Union.

Chairmen Named

General co-chairman of the weekend are Betti Fackler and Dick Beckman. Committee chairmen include variety show, Dalece Peterson and Gloria Lee; finance, Martin Brandenfels; traditions, Doug Clement; publicity, Dorothy Iler; dance, Gary Stewart and Sandy Williams; noise parade, Dick Van Allen; promotion, Marcia Mauney; luncheon barbecue, Agnes Thompson and Joanne Jolley; half time entertainment, John Thodus; queen selection, Mary Sandeberg and Peggy Gathercoal; hospitality, Lollie Quackenbush; theme selection contest, Shirley Brown and Barbara Bailey; sign contest, Cynthia Vincent and Barkey Herman, and banquet, Jean Fay. General secretary is Donna Lory.

Deadline Set

Deadline for petitioning for committee work is Tuesday. Petitions should be turned in to the ASUO petition box, third floor of the SU by 5 p.m.

The selection of the Homecoming queen will begin Monday with each campus living organization selecting a candidate for the title. Candidates for queen must be juniors or seniors. Deadline for submitting candidates' names to the queen selection chairman is Wednesday, Oct. 22.

Activities Listed

Activities during Homecoming weekend, Nov. 12 and 13, will include the Homecoming dance, sign contest, noise parade, bonfire, variety show, luncheon barbecue and the Washington State-Oregon football game. University traditions will be in effect during the weekend.

Last year's Homecoming weekend honored Bill Hayward, track coach at the University for 44 years. Hayward died in December 1947.

A total of 528 Oregon alumni registered for the weekend last year. However, many other alumni attended the Homecoming activities. Approximately 500 persons attended the luncheon and 1000 tickets were sold for the Homecoming dance.

'MORE RESPECTED'

Eugene Police Replace Old Marshal System

The 10-year-old system using special marshals to patrol the campus has been replaced by dividing the responsibility between the Eugene city police force and regular campus patrolmen.

The new system was begun when the University entered into an agreement with the city of Eugene to pay the salary of one officer provided that there would be one man on duty in the University district for eight hours a day.

The agreement in effect makes the city policemen a campus patrolman, but the regular officer is better trained and more respected. J. O. Lindstrom, University business manager explained. Furthermore the marshals of previous years could not give tickets for traffic violations.

The four campus patrolmen still have the responsibility of protecting state property from fire and theft. They also check the buildings to see that they are locked at the proper times and check the lights, but the city police handle all actual law enforcement work.

Exchange Show Plans Auditions

Tryouts for the University exchange assembly will be held tonight at 7:30 in the Student Union ballroom, John Jensen, director, has announced.

All University students in good standing are welcome to try out, Jensen said. Those who wish to, but have been unable to try out at the scheduled time are asked to contact Jensen at Barrister Inn.

Petitions for a secretary and a business manager for the assembly are due at 5 p.m. Friday in the petition box on the third floor of the Student Union.

Board Chairman Lists SU Agenda

Budget discussion and selection of representatives to the Student Union Northwest Regional conference will highlight today's meeting of the Student Union board, Chairman Bob Pollock, said Tuesday.

Andy Berwick, assistant chairman, will report on the progress of the board selection committee. A joint screening committee composed of three ASUO senate members and four SU board members is in charge of interviewing applicants for board vacancies.

ASUO committee members are Mal Scott, Gary West and Darrel Brittsan; and SU board representatives are Berwick, Donna Schafer, Phyllis Pearson and George Hopkins, faculty chairman.

After interviewing applicants, the committee will recommend two people for each board position to the board. Current vacancies are in the college of liberal arts, law, business and graduate schools.

The meeting will be today at 4 p.m. in the SU Board room. The agenda follows:

- Budget discussion
- Introduction of Si Ellingson, new director of the SU
- Report of the personnel chairman
- Report of the board selection committee
- Directorate report by Donna Schafer
- Selection of board and directorate representatives to the SU Northwest Regional conference.

Accordianist Featured As USAF Band Soloist

Daniel J. Desiderio, widely acclaimed accordianist, will be a featured soloist with the United States Air Force band, when it appears on campus Oct. 26.

DANIEL DESIDERIO
Accordianist

Desiderio has presented the accordian as a solo instrument in some of the finest concert halls in America. He has appeared in recitals at New York's Carnegie Hall, Town Hall, and the Philadelphia Academy of Music.

He has made frequent appearances as a guest artist on radio and television shows, and has toured leading hotels and theaters as a featured entertainer.

Desiderio's talents also carry him into the composition and arranging field. He has made several accordian and orchestra compositions. "Mexican Carnival" is probably the best known.

The Air Force band will give two concerts in McArthur court while in Eugene. The evening concert at 8 p.m. will be open to the public.

Tickets are on sale at Thompson's Record Corner and Appliance Center in downtown Eugene, and at McArthur court on campus. Admission prices are $1.50 for reserved seats, one dollar for general admission, and 50 cents for students.

Sponsors of the Air Force band appearances are the University school of music and athletic department.
