Gone Are the Days ...

WORTHY OF ITS NAME, the old Emerald Shack, a quonset hut opposite the Science building, was the scene of frantic activity five afternoons a week for six years. In this picture (taken two years ago) a group of students are engrossed in thought at the old circular copy desk, now retired from service, which was used for nearly 30 years on the campus daily.

Even Has Chute to Press

ALMOST TOO GOOD TO BELIEVE is the new, modern Emerald office on the third floor of Allen hall. Generations of past Emerald workers will find little resemblance to former Emerald headquarters located in basements and quonset huts. Included in the approximately 1500 square feet of floor space are the news and advertising departments and a semi-private editor's office (at extreme left in this picture). Door at rear leads to adjoining wire service room. Center right is news-copy-desk, with reporters at typewriters in rear. Column at extreme right conceals copy chute to University press in basement.

Weekly Meetings Begin for Frosh

YWCA freshman commissions began their weekly meetings at 4 p.m. Monday in Gerlinger hall. Groups will meet every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 4 p.m.

Each group will at some time in the term look into the general areas of public, campus and international affairs, community service and religion and worship.

Junior women will help the groups to organize and stay with the group as resource persons: Freshmen will elect officers for each group.

Freshmen are urged to come which ever day is most convenient for them but to remain with the same group each week. Those who have not signed up are urged to either stop in at the Y office or to come to the group meeting.

Sunday Date For Y Visits

The first in a series of visits to Eugene churches sponsored by the YMCA will be this Sunday. All students are invited to take part in the "visits to churches" program, according to Don Smith, chairman.

St. Mary's Catholic church at the corner of West 11th and Charnelton is the first church to be visited by the group. They will attend 10 a.m. mass. Coffee will be served at Carson hall before the service. After the mass there will be a discussion.

The "visits to churches" program will continue every other Sunday.

Freshmen Begin YWCA Meetings

New freshmen members of the YWCA are beginning their meetings in different commissions this week, Mary Wilson, president of the group, announced. The recent membership drive for the organization will continue until Friday, Oct. 13.

Reorganization of the freshman commissions calls for each of the four groups to divide its attention among the four Y interests: public affairs, international affairs, service, and religion and worship. Previously each commission concentrated on only one, which limited their activities.

Miss Wilson also announced recent appointments to the YWCA cabinet. New junior advisors for the freshmen commissions include Barbara Bailey, Bev Braden, Jill Hutchins, Shirley Brown, Pat Southworth, and Claudia Zorn. Joanne Gerber was named co-chairman of conference.
