

Oregon Daily EMERALD

The Oregon Daily Emerald is published five days a week during the school year except examination and vacation periods, by the Student Publications Board of the University of Oregon. Entered as second class matter at the post office, Eugene, Oregon. Subscription rates: $5 per school year; $2 a term. Opinions expressed on the editorial pages are those of the writer and do not pretend to represent the opinions of the ASUO or of the University. Unsigned editorials are written by the editor; initiated editorials by the associate editors.

Room for Improvement

Those students who slept in Tuesday or hibernated in the library or spent the afternoon playing cards at the Student Union missed a truly stimulating experience in the University's first annual celebration of Charter Day.

The administration is to be commended for its presentation of such a fine program on the campus. Too often in the university environment the educational offering is limited to such things as the memorizing of French verbs or dates in United States history.

The student who refused to avail himself of the opportunity to hear at least one of the three outstanding scholars on campus Tuesday was only cheating himself. Slavish devotion to text book assignments may win him that elusive 4-point; it will not make him the well-educated individual.

For a first-time offering, Charter Day was a success. Poor attendance at the inauguration ceremonies can be attributed to the violent hail storm which "rained-out" the cross-campus academic procession. However, turnout for Huxley's morning lecture was the largest we've seen for any campus guest speaker, in spite of the rain.

There were several "bugs" in the program which we hope will be eliminated from future Charter Day celebrations.

The speech by Zechariah Chafee Jr. Tuesday evening was a fitting climax to the day's events. Unfortunately someone failed to make adequate provision for larger student participation. The speech should have been held in Mac court instead of the SU ballroom, even if this inconvenienced the faculty members who attended the preceding banquet.

Many students complained that they could not attend Charter Day events because they had to study for midterms. The unusually high amount of midterms this week (only the fourth week of classes in an eleven-week term) indicates that many faculty members were not willing to give full support to the program. The administration can hardly expect students to devote an entire day to such a program when they must take several midterms during the following two or three days.

We also think it unfortunate that more students did not have an opportunity to meet our three distinguished visitors on a more personal level. Smaller coffee hour forums or departmental seminars should have been planned for all three speakers. Interested students could learn a great deal more from these men in such small gatherings than they did as members of a large lecture audience, which eliminated the possibility of conversational exchange.

We hope the administration in planning future Charter Day celebrations will take some of these suggestions into consideration. It will then be up to the individual student to decide for himself the merit of participation.

Photo Journalism Course Planned for Photographers

The first short course of its kind in photo-journalism will take place in Allen hall Saturday and Sunday.

The course is sponsored by the Oregon Press Photographers association in cooperation with the school of journalism, the University and the Oregon Newspaper Publishers association.

The course is designed for anyone who takes, edits or uses pictures in any publication. Talks, discussions and demonstrations will be on a non-technical, semi-professional level. There will be tips on all phases of the business, including darkroom techniques, shooting action pictures and saving time and money.

The program will feature as instructors J. R. Eyerman, Life magazine's Los Angeles bureau chief; George Lindsay, The Dalles Optimist; Charles Conkling, Conkling Color laboratory, Portland; Allen Delay, the Oregonian; Dick Slater, Portland motion picture free lance photographer, and Del Smith, a former portrait photographer.

Others who will take part are Frank Sterrett, the Oregonian; Ed Miller, the Oregonian picture editor; Herb Baker, Eugene Register-Guard city editor and Wendell Webb, Oregon Statesman managing editor.

The course is open to students. The registration fee is $10 and covers the Saturday luncheon, Saturday dinner, Sunday breakfast, Sunday luncheon and Saturday night lodging.

SU Currents

Recorded Music Concert Canceled

Tonight's recorded music concert, which was to be held in the Student Union listening room, has been postponed until a later date, according to Shirley Hardy, chairman of the SU recorded music committee.

A phonograph in the listening room is out of order, necessitating the cancelling of the program. The new date for the concert will be announced next week in the Emerald.

Six Acts, Rally Set For Friday at Four

Tomorrow's Friday at Four will be an hour-long program with six acts, according to Mary Gerlinger, who is in charge of this week's program.

The rally squad will be there for a short rally for the Oregon-San Jose game. Master of ceremonies will be Tom Waldrop, freshman in speech.

Audio-Visual Head Leads Coffee Hour

Donald Hunter, head of the audio-visual department of the University library, will speak at the coffee hour, Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union browsing room.

His topic will be "A Camera Tour of The Mediterranean." Free coffee will be served.

The series will be highlighted by slides defining the ruins of the ancient Greek and Roman civilizations. Included in the collection are photographs of churches, detailed shots of the Roman colosseum and an air view of the Sahara desert.
