

Graduate Study Awards Offered

Senior students planning to undertake graduate study in the sciences during the 1955-1956 academic year may apply for one of several hundred graduate fellowship awards sponsored by the National Science foundation.

These 700 graduate and 130 post-doctoral fellowships are available to any citizen of the United States who has produced evidence of training in one of the science fields and who has demonstrated superior ability for creative research.

These fellowships will be awarded in the mathematical, physical, medical, biological and engineering sciences, including anthropology, psychology, geography, and certain interdisciplinary fields.

Varied Stipends Available
Annual allowances for graduate fellowships for first year fellows will be $1400; intermediate fellows, $1600; and terminal fellows, $1800. The annual stipend for postdoctoral fellows is $3400.

National Science foundation fellowships are awarded for either a full year of study, or for a full academic year at the option of the applicant.

Annual stipends are available to those who elect 12 months of study whereas those who elect 9 months will receive three-fourths of the annual stipend. Married fellows will have an additional allowance of $350 plus $350 for each dependent child. Tuition and fees will also be paid by the foundation.

Awards Made for Grad Work
Graduate fellowship awards are given to individuals studying for either a masters or doctoral degree. Postdoctoral fellowship awards are given to individuals who have earned a doctoral degree in one of the fields of science and have had research and training equivalent to that represented by such a degree.

Individuals receiving a fellowship will be required to devote full time to advanced scientific study or research during the period of the fellowship.

Selection of fellows will be based on academic records and recommendations regarding each candidate's abilities. All applicants for the predoctoral awards must submit their application to the fellowship office of the National research council by Jan. 3, 1955.

Science Exam Required
These applicants will be required to take an examination Jan. 27 designed to test scientific aptitude and achievement. Applications for postdoctoral fellowships must be received by the council by Dec. 20.

Evaluation of each candidate's qualifications will be made by panels of scientists chosen by the National Research council of the National Academy of Sciences. Successful candidates will be notified of their fellowship awards on March 15, 1955.

Applicants must submit complete copies of transcripts of their college and university records and a plan of study for advanced training. The affidavit and loyalty oath required by section 15 of the National Science foundation act will constitute part of the application.

Graduate applicants planning to undertake research during the coming year and all post-doctoral applicants must also submit an outline of any research contemplated. A fellow may choose to pursue his fellowships at any accredited non-profit institution of higher education in the U.S. or any similar institution abroad approved by the National Science foundation.

Students at Oregon may acquire application materials through the office of the president or department heads. Application materials also may be requested from the Fellowship Office, National Research Council, 2101 Constitution avenue, N. W., Washington, 25, D.C.

SU Currents

● Mrs. Edna Landros, professor of classical languages, the speaker for the Friday evening browsing room lecture, has cancelled her speech, according to Ann Ogle, chairman.

● A sea adventure story, "Down to the Sea in Ships," starring Richard Widmark, will be shown Sunday in the SU ballroom at 2:30 and 5 p.m., according to Joanne Jolley, member of the movie committee. Admission for the Sunday show is 30 cents.

● A work party for all members of the recorded music committee of the SU will be held Saturday, at 1 p.m. in the record-lending library. The purpose of the party is to repair record jackets and clean records, according to Shirley Hardy, chairman.

● A fishbowl mixer will be held Friday night from 9 to midnight with recorded music provided for dancing, according to Don Peck, music chairman. It is a no date affair.

spitated by a generous sprinkling of One Mad Night.

Then Arf, who had just written a dignified page-one story about the editor's underwear, added an editorial postscript about the standards of the letter-writer.

And then they pushed the paper through the press, sprinkled it, and stacked it neatly around the quad.

That evening, the editor and Chirp and Arf sat doing whatever they were wont to do behind their desks and into their typewriters. There was, suddenly, a loud knocking at the door. Editor and Chirp and Arf summarized that (1) it was not the high school press conference, because that was last week; (2) it was not the committee for the announcement of the Nobel Prize for literature, because it wasn't the season; (3) that it was not Santa Claus, because his name was not in the Pigger's Guide.

Who it was was a whole angry rabby mob of mungees who threw the editor and Chirp and Arf down the copy chute, poured them into the press, printed them with an editorial about sprinklers and heat in the library, and sprinkled them with One Mad Night. It is to be noted, with considerable relief, that the Zoo person was away at the time and was completely unharmed.

Moral (subsidiary one): this truth is still fairly self-evident: mungees who live in glass memorial journalism buildings

Campus Briefs

● Canterbury Club will hear Wesley Bellaine, professor of Business Administration, speak on "Christian Economics," Sunday. Preceding the speech will be a service of Evening Prayer in St. Mary's Episcopal church at 6 p.m. and a supper.

● According to the infirmary record plack, patients who received medical attention Thursday were: Grover C. Willis, Vyrl Jo Hogan, Meldra Ackerman, Sally Jean McIntyre and Betty Gay Herrman.

● Men interested in attending the two-day study conference between Oregon and Oregon State college YMCA's and YWCA's Friday and Saturday at the Oregon coast are asked to contact the YM office in the Student Union, according to Dave Roberts, president. Cost of the trip will be approximately $4.
