Quick Hands Grab China Pheasant

Gamma hall has a man who can catch live pheasants without salting their tails.

Wednesday evening about dinner time, Hal Williams, sophomore in pre-law, saw a pheasant fly in low over the Student Union from the southwest, then veer toward the shrubbery near Carson hall.

Williams raced across the mall in chase, and found the bird in a bush just outside the Carson dining room.

"It was simple," Williams said. "I just grabbed and had a young male Chinese pheasant in my hand. It wasn't wounded, or crippled or anything like that."

He estimated the bird, only partly grown, weighed about two pounds. Williams kept the pheasant for about twenty minutes, showed it to friends, then released it in the cemetery across the street from McArthur court.

Exam Application Due for Teachers

Applications for the national teacher examinations must be sent to the Educational Testing service, Princeton, N.J., before Jan. 14, 1955. The annual tests will be given at 200 testing centers throughout the United States.

At the one-day session, a candidate may take the common examinations, which include tests in professional information, general culture, English expression, and non-verbal reasoning, and one or two of nine optional examinations designed to demonstrate mastery of the subject to be taught.

The college which a candidate is attending, or the school system in which he is seeking employment, will advise him whether he needs to take the tests.
