Indian Expert Coming Here

An authority on Indian art will speak next Tuesday on the topic, "Cave Sculpture of the Deccan."

Stella Kramrisch, visiting professor of Indian art at the University of Pennsylvania, is being sponsored on this campus by the University Lectures committee. Her lecture will begin at 8 p.m. in the Student Union ballroom.

Kamrisch has been professor of Indian Art at Calcutta for 28 years before her position at Pennsylvania. She is presently editor of the Journal of the Indian Society of Oriental Art in Calcutta.

She has written several books, the latest one being "The Art of Travancore," which was published in 1953.

Educated in Vienna, London and Calcutta, Dr. Kramrisch can also read Sanskrit.

SU Celebrates Years of Service

By Sally Jo Quinn
Emerald Feature Writer

"My goodness," said the freshman, "are you really four years old this year? You are a very modern looking building, but everyone is so familiar with you I thought you would be much older."

"Yes, I am only four, but I have served Oregon students in many ways during these four short years," said the Student Union. "Nearly every student comes to me to meet friends for a cup of coffee or to study between classes. I'm the very center of campus activities."

"Tell me, how were you started?"

"Although I was officially open Sept. 27, 1950, more than 27 years of fund raising and planning were in back of that opening. The actual construction was begun in 1948 and finished in 1950."

"Why are you called the Erb Memorial Student Union?" the freshman questioned.

"I was named after Donald M. Erb, president of the University from 1938 until his death in 1943," replied the two-million dollar structure.

"Who is responsible for all the activities centered in the Student Union?"

"A student board controls several committees which arrange lectures, art exhibits, coffee hour forums and other educational programs. They also sponsor Sunday movies, the Friday at Fours and other social activities."

"Ah, the romances that have started as coke dates in my fish-bowl," he chuckled reminiscently. "By my chimes! It's four o'clock. Time for students to drift in from their three o'clock classes for that afternoon cup of coffee. Go on down to the fish-bowl and join them."

Lecture Attacks Utopian Ideals

When an Utopian ideal is translated in terms of reality, it becomes frightful, John C. McCloskey, associate professor of English, told the browsing room audience Wednesday evening.

Both Edward Bellamy, in "Looking Backward, 2000 to 1887" and William Dean Howells in "A Traveler From Altruria" and "Through the Eye of a Needle" show how an ideal progresses into a self-righteous tyranny, McCloskey said.

"The keys of Bellamy's 'Looking Backward' are military organization, discipline, obedience and one mind directing all," declared McCloskey.

It is an "ideal state," McCloskey said. "There are no labor unions, hunger, politicians, lawyers, crime, greed, profit motives, poverty, journalists or any of the other evils of life."

"It is man's dream of liberty, equality and fraternity realized," McCloskey said.

"However, Bellamy didn't realize that he made everybody a slave of the state. There was no divergence of opinion from the official creed. The state was perfect and no deviation was allowed. Bellamy sacrificed the ideals of democracy on the altar of socialism."

Altruria is a land where there is no war, patriotism, greed, or envy. Everybody is equal, except that the artists are the ruling class, McCloskey said.

"All phases of life are regulated and it is intolerably dull," McCloskey said.

Former Cowboy Elected in Nevada

RENO-(AP)-Rex Bell, former movie cowboy and husband of one-time "It Girl" Clara Bow, was elected Nevada's Lieutenant governor Tuesday.

Bell, a Republican, defeated Democrat James J. Ryan, president of the Nevada state federation of labor.

Returns from 330 of Nevada's 385 precincts gave Bell 24,000 to Ryan's 16,000.

Ryan repeatedly asserted in his campaign "Bell's only qualification for office is his ability to grin on TV."

Bell operates a western goods store in Las Vegas.

'Noted' Cowboy Has Large Margin

OKLAHOMA CITY-(AP)-Cowboy Pink Williams, of "Obscene" post card fame, had a big margin in defeating Republican Kenneth W. Gray for lieutenant governor of Oklahoma.

The salty-tongued rancher, making his first race, gained notoriety when federal officials impounded his mail. They ruled post cards he sent cattlemen ridiculing the Eisenhower farm program were obscene.
