New Faith in Students

Action by President Wilson in approving the creation of a campus budget board for the allocation of student funds is an encouraging example of the confidence the University of Oregon administration is willing to put in its students.

The new budget will give students the opportunity—for the first time—to have a say in how their money is spent. Previously, the allocation of Student Union and educational activities funds was handled by one man, the SU director, who made his recommendations to the president after consulting with the various groups which receive support from this fund.

Now—through their representatives on the budget board—students can take a more active part in the important business of financing the SU board, the Emerald, Oregon's Piggy Bank, the forensic program and the music program.

The fact that faculty members will also sit on the budget board does not imply in any way that this group is to serve as a rubber stamp for the administration or its business office. To the contrary, students will outnumber faculty members, four to three. The faculty members have been placed on the board to add mature judgment and lend continuity to the group.

An elaborate system of checks and balances has been worked out to insure fair and equitable representation of students on the board. With the exception of the ASUO president, who is to be an ex-officio member of the board, the student representatives will have to pass a rather thorough screening test before being appointed to the board.

None of the student members-at-large are to be chosen as special representatives of the interested groups. Each of the groups will also have the opportunity to pass on the proposed nominees to the budget board, much as the US senate votes on presidential appointments to the Supreme Court or to diplomatic posts.

The significance of the plan rests in the basic assumption behind it—that Oregon students are adults and are capable of deciding for themselves how money allocated for their use shall be spent. The administration is to be commended for its recognition of the importance of students in a phase of campus life, previously considered the exclusive domain of faculty.

It will be up to the students—especially the new members of the budget board—to demonstrate to the administration that this faith in the effectiveness of student government has not been misplaced.

Campus Briefs

Bud Laveley, former UO student and now missionary appointee to Africa, will speak at Inter-varsity Christian fellowship tonight at 7 p.m. on the third floor of Gerlinger hall. Vocal soloist will be Artis Benson, sophomore in liberal arts.

Red Cross board will not meet today, according to Janet Gustafson, president.

Kwama will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Gerlinger hall. All members must be present, according to Helen Ruth Johnson, president.

Gamma Alpha Chi, national professional advertising fraternity for women, will meet at 4 p.m. today in the Eric W. Allen room, 307 Allen hall.

SU Currents

Indian Art to Be SU Lecture Topic

Stella Kramrisch, noted authority on Indian art and thought, will present a lecture on "Cave Sculpture of the Deccan" Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the SU ballroom.

She is an honorary member of the Ecole Française d'Extreme Orient and of the Asiatic Society, Berlin. Miss Kramrisch has taught at the University of Pennsylvania, University of London, and the University of Calcutta. Educated in Vienna, London, and Calcutta, she has written two standard works as well as many short articles.

Miss Kramrisch has delivered lectures at the universities and museums of Oxford, London, Berlin, Vienna, Yale, Wellesley, Philadelphia, Madras, Ceylon and Calcutta.

'Experimental Music' To Be Lecture Topic

"Experimental Music" will be the topic of the concert lecture given by George Hopkins, professor of piano, tonight at 7 in the Student Union music listening room.

Hopkins will discuss Jolivet, John Cage, and other composers. There is no charge for admission, according to Shirley Hardy, chairman of the recorded music committee.

Author to Be Present At Coffee Hour Forum

John Dos Passos, well known author, will be present at the Tuesday coffee hour from 4 to 5 p.m. in the Student Union Dads' lounge to answer and discuss questions pertaining to his works.

Sterling to Narrate Bruin Game Movie

Movies of the Oregon-UCLA football game will be shown at 6:30 p.m. in Commonwealth 138. Vern Sterling, line coach, will narrate the film.

Admission to the movie is free. It is sponsored by the Student Union movie committee.
