'Moonlight Girl' Title Goes to Rosalie Todd

NAMED 1954 MOONLIGHT Girl of Phi Sigma Kappa Saturday night was Rosalie Todd, Kappa Kappa Gamma's candidate. Announcement was made at the fraternity's annual Carnation Ball. Other finalists in the contest were: Charlotte Schmidt, Hendricks; Judy Duffy, Susan Campbell; Jo Ann Cowart, Chi Omega, and Barbara Hogard, Alpha Phi.

Rosalie Todd, sophomore in liberal arts, was named Moonlight Girl of Phi Sigma Kappa Saturday night.

Miss Todd was the candidate of Kappa Kappa Gamma. She was chosen from a field of five finalists. Other finalists were Charlotte Schmidt, Hendricks; Judy Duffy, Susan Campbell; Jo Ann Cowart, Chi Omega, and Barbara Hogard, Alpha Phi.

Miss Todd was the guest of honor at the fraternity's annual Carnation Ball Saturday night. This is the eighth year that Phi Sigma Kappa has chosen a Moonlight Girl on campus. Every two years, one of the two most recent winners is entered by the chapter in the nationwide Moonlight Girl contest. Last year's Moonlight Girl was Joyce Bearden, Alpha Phi.

Beverly O'Connor Sig Ep Swamp Girl

Beverly O'Connor, sponsored by Delta Gamma, was announced as the Sigma Phi Epsilon "Swamp Girl" of 1954 Saturday night at the fraternity's second annual "Swamp Stomp."

Other candidates were Sally Hoy, Gamma Phi Beta; Marlene Harper, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Lorraine Ray, Chi Omega, and Sue Jewett, Carson 4.

Each of the five finalists was presented with a gold necklace and the "Swamp Girl" received a trophy which was awarded by last year's "Swamp Girl," Sharon Snyder, Pi Beta Phi.

All These Traditions

A favorite pastime on campus is devising new traditions. Every year since we were freshmen somebody has come up with one or two new traditions to enforce.

Now this, we suppose, is fine. Every campus should have traditions—they add spirit to celebrations such as Homecoming and Junior Weekend.

But we've always wondered about these new traditions that spring up. Webster defines tradition as "Something handed down from the past; an inherited culture, attitude, etc." So how can you make up traditions each year? Somehow it just doesn't make too much sense.

However, it is fun and we won't complain too strenuously. There's something else about these traditions that always puzzles us. That's their enforcement. The Order of the O declares each year at Junior Weekend and Homecoming that they will enforce traditions.

Sometimes they have. But more often either the whole thing is ignored or else everybody gets tossed in Fenton pool. It doesn't make a bit of difference, once an inquisition gets going, if a freshman girl has worn her green ribbon every day, said hello on hello walk and kept off the senior bench—if she's cute, in she goes.

(We're still not too sure where the senior bench is; and if anyone ever sits on it.)

We wonder what the procedure will be this year. Will traditions be printed and then cheerfully ignored? The total number has grown so that it's getting difficult to remember them all—maybe just forgetting the whole thing would be best.

Or will they all be rigidly enforced with violators—and most everybody else—being dunked or paddled or given whatever the punishment is this year.—(J.W.)

Eugene Jaycees Sponsor Tourney

The Eugene junior chamber of commerce will revive their annual table tennis tournament Nov. 21 after an eight year lapse since their last city-wide tourney.

Scheduled for the main floor of the Eugene armory, the one day match is opened to boys, juniors, men and veterans, singles and doubles. Women are eligible to play singles or doubles.

All entries must be in to the JCC in the Eugene hotel by November 19.

Entry fees are 25 cents for each event of the women's and junior events and one dollar for men.

Further information may be obtained from the JCC office, Eugene hotel or Phil Gilbertson, 950 Park avenue.
