Larson Presses Shaw for Lead

Oregon's George Shaw is the national offense leader in major college football but California's Paul Larson—the 1953 leader—is closing in fast.

Through games of last Saturday Shaw has a total of 1274 yards to Larson's 1246. Each has two games to go.

Shaw Held

While Shaw was held in check Saturday by UCLA's hard-charging Bruins, Larson had a great day against Washington. The California field general directed his team to a 27-6 victory over the Huskies and increased his pass completions total to 104.

Larson has a percentage of 65.4 based on 104 completions in 159 attempts. Shaw is second in passing with 76 completions in 162 attempts.

Luppino Tops

The nation's top rusher is still Sophomore Art Luppino of Arizona. Despite missing most of Saturday's game with Texas Tech because of injuries, Luppino held his lead over Lenny Moore of Penn State.

Luppino has gained 917 yards rushing while Moore has a total of 843. Army's Tommy Bell is in third place with 788 yards, but has an average of 11.59 yards a try on 68 plays.

Glen Davis, a former Army star, holds the record—11.51 on 82 plays in 1945.
