NW Universities Secure Artists

More top lecturers, concert artists and other performers will be available to Northwest colleges and universities at a reduced rate as the result of a meeting attended last month by Robert D. Horn, professor of English and chairman of the University assembly committee, and W. A. Dahlberg, associate professor of speech.

Horn and Dahlberg were the Oregon delegates to a meeting which put into action a long-talked-of Northwest College Lectures and Concerts association originally formed in February. Representatives of eight other Northwest colleges attended the meeting in Seattle designed to cement the association into an effective working unit.

The primary purpose of the association is to draw more top talent to the Northwest by offering each artist or speaker a ready-made circuit.

Margaret Webster to Appear

Horn points to the scheduled appearance of Margaret Webster, noted actress, author and lecturer, who will be featured at a University assembly Nov. 30, as an example of what the association can accomplish. Her one-performance fee is $750, but since four schools in this area have contracted for her lectures, the fee will be $450.

An observer at the Seattle meeting was the University of Southern California, which is forming a similar organization among southwest colleges and universities.

Members of the Northwest association are Oregon, the Universities of Washington, Idaho and British Columbia, Washington State, Reed, Oregon State, Western Washington College of Edu-

Yearbook Posts Picture Schedule

Oregana pictures of Phi Sigma Kappa and Sherry Ross will be taken today, according to John Shaffer, photography editor. Pictures will be taken from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Men will wear white shirts, dark ties and dark blue suit coats. Pin-striped suits will not be acceptable.

The picture schedule for this week follows: Wednesday, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Alpha Mu; Thursday, Theta Chi and Campbell club; Friday, Tau Kappa Epsilon and Sigma Nu.

Shooting Wounds Found Not Serious

Although doctors are required to report treatment of all gunshot wounds, Dr. R. N. Miller, director of the University health service, said the wounds incurred in the accidental shooting at Gamma hall Friday night were not serious enough to merit reporting.

Birger Brandt, sophomore in pre-med, was slightly injured when a blank was fired from the shotgun of Peter Lungreen, freshman in pre-med, burned him.

Dr. Miller stated that he did not report the accident to the police.

The police had not heard about the accident when called by the Emerald Sunday afternoon, and their investigation was made following the Emerald's inquiry.

cation and the Wilson School of Music in Yakima. Two other schools, Whitman college and Gonzaga university, have expressed an interest in membership. Seattle university was also invited to join.

Schools Accept Bookings

With the University of Washington serving as co-ordinator, each of the schools is free to take whatever bookings are offered, but is under no compulsion to do so.

Six of the member schools have booked W. H. Auden, noted poet. If the schools had negotiated on their own, each would have had to pay his usual $1000 fee, but by acting through the association, the schools signed Auden for $200 apiece.

Oregon, OSC Reaffirm Joint Hands-off Policy

A joint hands-off policy regarding acts of vandalism and other destruction of property between the University of Oregon and Oregon State college was renewed by student leaders of both schools at a Thursday meeting in Corvallis.

Following is the text of the original agreement as set down by Dan Poling, OSC dean of men, and Ray Hawk, associate director of student affairs:

"We approve of school spirit. We believe that it adds not only to the interest in, but also the values to be derived from Oregon-Oregon State athletic competition. But we believe that it is best expressed on the playing field and in the cheering sections, and by justifiable pride in our institutions, and not by destruction and vandalism. Therefore, we urge our students not to participate in raids or other activities likely to result in property damage or personal injury, and as a further deterrent, we agree that:

"1. Our students, individually and collectively, shall be liable

Letter Links OSC With Victory Bell

Oregon's football team won a victory last Saturday afternoon but the University student body lost its traditional victory bell in the process.

The bell, which was last seen about 5 p. m. at the Sigma Chi house on campus, is suspected to have been taken by Oregon State students attending the game.

The Emerald received a letter Monday from Corvallis which suggested that a theme for next Saturday's Oregon-OSC game be, "Who Got the Ding Dong, Who Got the Bell." The letter was signed, "Benny Beaver."

The bell is traditionally stored at the living organization of the president of the Order of the 'O.' This year's president is Doug Clement, Sigma Chi.

for the costs of repairing damage at the other institution.

"2. We will suspend any of our students apprehended in such pre-game activities."

Emerald Starts New Coverage

Homecoming pictures shown on page two mark the opening of a new era in Emerald picture coverage. A recently installed Fairchild Scan-A-Graver (engraving machine that transfers a picture print direct to a plastic plate) at the Springfield News is now accessible to the Emerald. Its immediate service and inexpensive method mean more and timelier pictures for the Emerald.

The new eight-man Emerald photo staff, working as a team for the first time, was able to get full Homecoming coverage.

Oregon's Graduate Organization Provides Informational Service

By LaRae Koon
Emerald Feature Writer

After commencement exercises, it's easy for college graduates to lose contact with their alma mater and its activities. However, Oregon graduates have an organization which helps keep them informed about the University and through which they can participate in its activities. They can become members of the University of Oregon Alumni association.

"The Alumni association exists primarily to help the University in the things it can't do for itself," Anderson pointed out. The association's activities include awarding from 10 to 20 scholarships of $165 and up annually to incoming freshmen. This scholarship fund is financed through contributions to local alumni associations.

Throughout the year, various alumni tours are sponsored with groups of Oregon professors speaking before alumni organizations in the state. An alumni institute is held which facilitates a detailed exchange of information.

A football film circuit, portraying Oregon's football highlights, is circulated to the alumni groups both in and out of the state. The bi-monthly publication for alumni, Old Oregon, started in 1919, was recently given an award for being one of the finest Northwest magazines.

The Alumni leaders conference in the winter is held to indoctrinate the various group leaders on the University's programs and plans.

Class reunions, held at commencement time, are planned by the association. These reunions usually begin with the 20 or 25th class and go back to the half-century club, Anderson said.

Since its beginning in 1880 with 12 paid members, the Alumni association has expanded to its present active membership of 5000. The organization includes 21 out-of-state Alumni clubs. These are in such places as New York, Manila, Honolulu, Denver and Boise. In the San Francisco club there are 2000 alumni.

Within the state each of the

CADET COMMANDS

ROTC Appoints Student Officers

Permanent appointments of cadet officers for the Army ROTC regiment were announced Monday afternoon by the military department.

Other cadet second lieutenants are Daniel Reynolds, Alan Packer, Francis Beeman, Richard Conroy, Joyce Kommer, Edward Fletcher and Robert Southwell.

Appointments were based on competition among the cadet officers during fall term, summer camp performance, ratings by other cadets, military and all-school grades and other campus activities.

650 Students Buy '54 Pigger's Guide

Approximately 650 copies of the 1954-55 Pigger's Guide have been sold, according to Boyd Harris, business and distribution manager.

Sales so far have been exceeding those of previous years and the advertising was above that sold in earlier books, Harris said.

More than 300 copies were sold Friday the day they went on sale. For that day, they were on sale at the Student Union, Co-op, Hendricks, Cawson and John Straub halls.

Oregana to Hold Special Meetings

There will be a special meeting in the Oregana office today from 4 to 5 p. m. for University students who are not residents of campus living organizations and for those who could not make their picture appointments and wish to have new ones.

Included among non-living organization students are two groups which should attend the meeting: graduating seniors who do not live in organizations and other students who do not live on campus but wish to have their pictures in the yearbook.
