

Expenditure for Show Given Approval by SU

The Student Union Board Wednesday approved expenditure of $850 to secure the Turnabout Theater troupe of Hollywood for a variety show to be held in February.

Final action is pending word from other Northwest colleges and universities. Robert D. Horn, chairman of the University Assembly committee, has contacted other Northwest colleges to interest them in sharing the expense of securing the Turnabout Theater through the Northwest College Lectures and Concerts association.

The theater group charges $5000 for six appearances. The SU Board's plan would bring the theatrical group to six schools who would share the cost.

The Northwest College Lectures and Concerts association was formed last February. Horn and W. A. Dahlberg, associate professor of speech, attended a meeting held in Seattle in October to cement the group into an efficient working unit.

Purpose of the group is to secure top talent for its eight member colleges at a reduced rate by scheduling more than one appearance at a time.

The Turnabout Theater's show includes Gilda Gray, noted performer of the 1920's, the Yale

Puppeteers, and several other numbers.

The group usually performs in its own theater, which is built in the shape of a streetcar.

In other Wednesday business the Board discussed the possibility of playing the Student Union chimes before Christmas. Si Ellingson, SU director, said that the time which the chimes will be played would be inconvenient for the person who regularly plays them. Anyone interested in playing the chimes should contact Ellingson.

Oregon Debaters Win First, Second in State

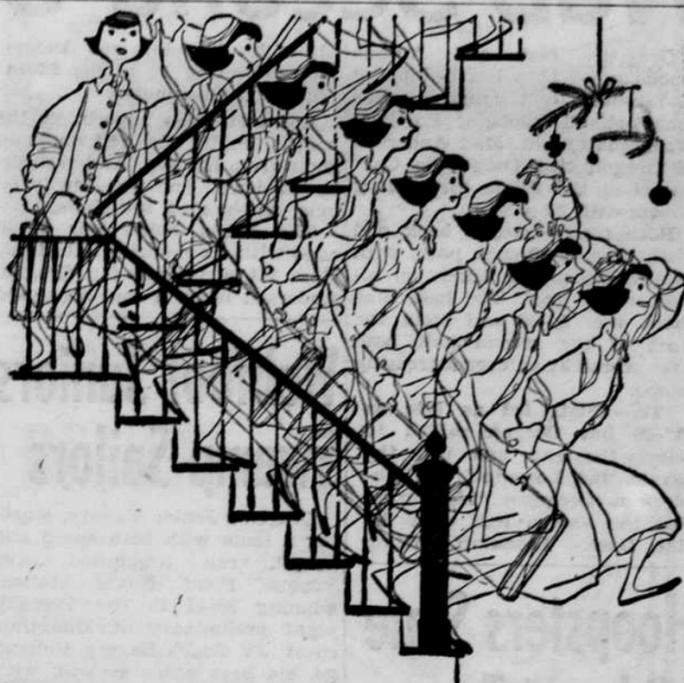

Oregon's debate squad added more honors to its list of fall term achievements Wednesday night by taking a first and a second place in a statewide extemporaneous speaking contest.

Pat Peterson, sophomore in liberal arts, won first place in the women's division of the contest, which was held by the Intercollegiate Forensics Association of Oregon. The decision was unanimous by seven judges.

Don Mickelwait, senior in liberal arts, placed second in the men's division, being edged out by a contestant from Oregon State.

Quartet Deadline Scheduled Dec. 17

Deadline for turning in Barbershop Quartet song selections is Dec. 17, according to Sally Jo Greig and Bob Porter, co-chairmen of the contest. The first group to designate a song will have preference.

The winning quartet will receive a rotating trophy and a chance to enter the All Northwest Barbershop Ballad contest in Forest Grove's "Gay Nineties Songfest" next February. The SU music committee, sponsors of the campus competition, will pay the first place group's entry fee in the Forest Grove competition.
