Ladejinsky to Work On Land Reform

WASHINGTON - (AP) - Wolf Ladejinsky, fired by the agriculture department as a security risk, got a key job Wednesday with the Foreign Operations administration. He will work on land reform in Viet Nam.

The appointment was announced by FOA Chief Harold E. Stassen. It came after the White House intervened to end a controversy which broke out when Ladejinsky was removed Dec. 16 from his post as agricultural attache in the US Embassy at Tokyo.

Ladejinsky, Russian-born but now a naturalized American, had security clearance from the state department, but when his post was shifted to the agriculture department by act of Congress last year, Secretary of Agriculture Benson ruled that he could not be retained. Benson acted on the advice of his security officer, John Glenn Cassidy.

The security conflict between the two departments brought demands for a congressional investigation, before the White House stepped in.

board, stated in his biennial report to the Governor recently that a doubling of college enrollments is definitely on the horizon and that it is necessary to begin making preparations.

Two B-47's Collide; 4 Crewmen Missing

LAKE CHARLES, La. - (AP) - A B47 Stratojet bomber plunged into the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday night after a collision in flight with another of the six-jet planes during a routine training mission. Four men were missing.

Capt. George Spotswood, public information officer at Lake Charles Air Force Base, said an unidentified ship reported seeing wreckage 30 miles offshore, but no sign of survivors.

The observer on the B47 which limped back to the base bailed out over the Gulf and the missing plane carried a three-man crew.

The 600-miles per hour bombers collided in flight about 30 miles offshore, some 75 miles south of here.

Spotswood said cause of the collisions was not known. The planes were based here.

8 Frosh Pledges Move Into House

By Jerry Harrell
Emerald News Editor

Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity has received permission from the University to move eight freshman pledges into the fraternity house from University dormitories.

The move was the first of its kind under the freshman living plan adopted in 1950, and, according to Ray Hawk, director of men's affairs, it will be the last.

The move, Hawk said, was made to bring the fraternity up to operating strength both financially and socially. The decision was made by Hawk and Donald Du Shane, director of student affairs, and approved by University President O. Meredith Wilson.

The decision was also unanimously approved by the Interfraternity council. The request to move the pledges who had made their grades into the house at the beginning of this term was made by Sigma Alpha Mu after the last IFC meeting of fall term, so the fraternity presidents were reached by telephone by Peter Williams, IFC president.

"Actually, Sigma Alpha Mu was one of the few small fraternities which had not received any help from the University," Hawk said. "Other houses have received help in the form of boarders, the University's accounting service, and, in one case, we took over a fraternity's mortgage," he added.

One of the considerations in the decision was the singular position of Sigma Alpha Mu as a Jewish fraternity. The Jewish population of the state of Oregon is relatively small, and the size of the fraternity was not due to bad management, but simply to the low number of men from which to choose members, Hawk said.

Hawk pointed also to the fact that the fraternity has always been an excellent member of Oregon's fraternity system. "The group has made a positive contribution to the campus both in grades and in campus leadership," he said.

Not only was the group's strength below the operational level from a financial standpoint, but the number of graduating seniors would have left the fraternity with few leaders who were familiar with fraternity life through experience.

The group pledged 14 men at the beginning of the school year, nine of whom made their grades. One of the men, a graduate student, was already living in the fraternity house.

"The other small houses have a fighting chance," Hawk said. "They have all of the manpower of the University from which to get members," he added.

Groundwork for the plan was laid last spring when Morris Rottenberg, national president of Sigma Alpha Mu, asked Hawk if the University would permit those freshman pledges who had satisfied the University's grade requirements to move into the fraternity house at the end of the fall term.

Hawk said at the time that he did not approve of the plan, although he did want to help the fraternity in any way possible without deviating from established University policy, and thus setting a "dangerous precedent."

The deferred living plan adopted by the University five years ago provides that no freshman men, other than veterans, may live in fraternity houses.

The only other relaxing of the freshman living rule was last spring, when fraternities were given permission to allow Eugene freshmen who had made satisfactory grades into the fraternity houses for spring term.

Hoover Requests Congress To Extend Powers, Money

WASHINGTON - (AP) - Herbert Hoover Wednesday asked Congress to extend President Eisenhower's re-organization powers and to furnish more money for the Hoover commission's studies on streamlining the government.

Simultaneously, a New York university report predicted the Hoover recommendations, soon to start appearing, could be "far more controversial" than the first Hoover report in 1949.

The university study also reported a few unannounced findings of the task forces set up by former President Hoover to do the research spadework for his 12-member, bi-partisan commission on reorganization of the executive branch. These included:

1. The government carries on some 1500 activities "which can be regarded as competitive with those undertaken by private industry."

2. Businessmen spent one billion dollars a year filling out federal questionnaires, of which "a large proportion are filed and forgotten."

3. Flood control projects have, upon occasion, cost more than the value of the land protected.

4. The government buys 800,000 pounds of tomato products on the West coast and ships them to the Atlantic coast. It also buys 700,000 pounds of the same products on the East coast and ships them to the Pacific.

5. In one case it cost a half-million dollars to fire a single federal employee. But 26 per cent of all federal employees quit the government every year.

The 80-year-old Hoover filed with Congress a progress report disclosing that the commission will begin issuing installments of its massive report "within the next few weeks."
