Chaplains Will Discuss Chapel Plans Tuesday

The eventual building of a campus chapel and establishment of effective liaison between campus religious groups and student living organizations will be among the items on the agenda when the Student Chaplains association meeting Tuesday evening at the Student Union.

Living organizations have been informed of the meeting by Maurice Bell, president of the chaplains group. Bell has urged all organizations to be represented at the meeting.

The Student Chaplains association was established last year, primarily through the efforts of Jo Hutchon, Danforth graduate who did graduate work at the University last year. Miss Hutchon also laid plans for the eventual building of a campus chapel on the Oregon campus.

Bell will outline the purpose of the association and the suggested duties for house chaplains at Tuesday's meeting. The meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m.

French Lit Critic Lectures at UO

Wallace Fowlie, teacher of French literature at Bennington college in Vermont, will be a guest lecturer at the University for three days next week, Jan. 26, 27 and 28.

Sponsored by the University Lectures committee, Mr. Fowlie will speak on the topic, "Permanence and Innovation in the French Novel," Thursday evening, Jan. 27 at 8 p.m. in the Dad's Lounge of the Student Union.

In addition to this public lecture, Mr. Fowlie will attend classroom discussions and give individual conferences.

A teacher at Bennington for ten years, Mrs. Fowlie has also taught at Yale and the University of Chicago. He has written many books and essays and has won many honors and distinctions for his critical press and his authoritative work on fiction and poetry.

Traffic Violations Soar During 1954

SALEM (AP)—More than 122,000 persons were convicted of traffic violations in 1954, Secretary of State Earl T. Newbry reported Friday.

There were 6962 drivers licenses suspended, including 3110 for driving while intoxicated.

Newbry said there were 47,000 more convictions last year than there were the year before. The increase, he said, was caused by stricter enforcement.

Tight-Lipped Boy Rescued From Jail

ATLANTA (AP)— Seeing 3-year-old Larry Coltharp sauntering along the streets, a policeman asked his name.

"Larry," answered the lad and then clammed up. The cop offered him an apple and banana which Larry took but he wouldn't talk. So off to detective headquarters they went where Larry sat in the office and munched contentedly. But all he'd say was "name Larry."

It wasn't long until his frantic mother phoned and Detective R. C. West told her the boy was safe and they'd bring him home. West suggested Larry might want to speak to his mother.

The hitherto tight-lipped Larry skipped over to the telephone and yelled:

"Momma, I'm in jail."

Wilson Will Speak Throughout State

University President O. Meredith Wilson will make five speeches in different parts of the state this week.

His first talk will be Monday at Sweet Home, when he will address the annual chamber of com-

Tuesday night, Wilson will speak on "The Lengthened Shadow" before the Medford chamber of commerce. He will speak to the Grants Pass chamber of commerce Wednesday on "The American Dream."

Thursday he returns to Eugene to address the local chapter of the American Association of University Women. His topic will be "The Educator's Dream."

The busy president will wind up the week's speaking schedule Saturday night when he speaks to the First Citizen's banquet of the Eugene chamber of commerce. No topic has been announced as yet for the final speech.

Write in English Newbry Is Asked

SALEM (AP)— It looks as though some people in Indiana think the people of Oregon aren't Americans.

A letter came Thursday to Secretary of State Earl T. Newbry from Decatur, Ind., asking for some pictures of Oregon.

At the end, it said:

"P.S. Write in English."

No Class Holiday For Jr. Weekend Granted by Deans

There will be no holiday from classes on the Friday before Junior Weekend, ASUO President Bob Summers announced late Sunday night.

Summers said that the board of deans was "very enthusiastic" about the Junior Weekend activities but felt that they couldn't give the students Friday as a holiday on such short notice.

The Senate had proposed the day off from classes when the "Canoe Fete" on the mill race was recently restored as an activity for the weekend.

Yearbook Orders Taken at SU, Co-op

Orders for Oreganas will be taken at the Student Union and the Co-op this week.

Bob McCracken, Oregana business manager, has announced that only 2700 Oreganas will be printed this year and that 2400 of these have already been sold.

The 1955 Oregana, McCracken said, will emphasize informal pictures and feature art work by Bob Fudge and Dean McMullen.

Pictures of seniors will be separated according to schools and an outstanding man and woman from each school will be chosen.

WRA Carnival Set for Jan. 21

The 1955 WRA Carnival has been scheduled for Jan. 21 in the unfinished portion of the men's gymnasium, according to Joanne Jolley and Shirley Bostad, co-chairmen of the event.

All campus living organizations will construct booths for the carnival, Miss Jolley said.

House representatives are requested to meet Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the Dad's Lounge of the Student Union. Representatives who have not turned in themes for their booths may do so at that time. Any house not represented at the Tuesday meeting will be dropped from the competition, Miss Jolley said.

Prizes for the event have not yet been decided upon, but will be announced by Tuesday.

Proceeds from the WRA Carnival go toward a scholarship fund for freshman women.

Tonight's Forum Features CIO Man

Everett Kassarow, associate director of research for the CIO in Washington, D.C., will be a guest on the University of Oregon Radio forum Monday night.

The forum will discuss "The Role of Organized Labor in Our Economic System." Wesley C. Ballaine, professor of business administration, will serve as moderator for the panel. W. J. Robert, associate professor of business administration, will also be a member of the panel.

The forum will be broadcast over radio station KOAC at 8:30 p.m.

FIRST ACT

Publications Receive Aid

A request for funds by the publications board was passed by the newly organized budget board last week and was approved by President O. Meredith Wilson over the weekend.

The publications board had submitted a request for approximately $4400 which it planned to issue to the Oregon Daily Emerald ($3300) and the Oregana ($1100). The budget board recommended to President Wilson that half of that amount be approved. The money will come from the educational activities fund.

Pub Board Meets

In anticipation of a possible approval, the publications board met Friday afternoon and decided to compromise the $2200 figure so that the Emerald would receive $1575 and the Oregana $625.

The action by the budget board was its first since its organization the latter part of fall term. The board, which was set up for the purpose of controlling the finances of the publications board, the Student Union board and the music and forensics programs, is composed of three faculty members and four students. Dean of Administration W. C. Jones is chairman of the group.

Members Listed

Other faculty members include Donald DuShane, director of student affairs, and J. O. Lindstrom, University business manager.

Students on the board are Bob Summers, ASUO president; Bob Funk, third year law student; Pete Williams, senior in business administration; and Sylvia Wingard, first year law student.

Si Ellingson, director of the SU, is secretary of the board in an ex-officio capacity.

Idaho Proposals May Help State

BOISE (AP)— The Idaho House of Representatives may go to work soon on two new bills designed to give Idaho construction firms and workmen an advantage over out-of-state competitors.

Rep. Perry Swisher (R-Bannock), chairman of the House Economic Development committee, said Sunday that both bills would be introduced in this session by his committee.

Meanwhile, Speaker R. H. Young Jr. (R-Canyon), said he would place in the hopper Monday the first two or three of the session's "administration" bills designed to implement the program of Gov. Robert E. Smylie. He did not say what they would cover.

Swisher said one of his bills would require contractors to hire

Idaho residents and pay a prevailing wage set by the state labor commissioner on all state projects.

Swisher's other bill would give local bidders a five per cent preferential in bidding for contracts to be awarded by the state or by subdivisions of the state.

Also under consideration, Swisher said, is a bill to permit goods in transit to be stored in Idaho without being subject to taxation. For lack of such a law, Idaho is now being bypassed as a warehouse state, Swisher said.

Mother of Seven Has 5 1-Year-Olds

RAHWAY, N. J. (AP)— An harassed and harried mother, with visions of bottles and diapers dancing in her head, celebrates a noted occasion Monday.

Five of her seven youngsters will be in the 1-year-old bracket at the same time.

Her triplets—Peter, Jean, and Joan—reach their first birthday Monday.

Her twins—Nancy and Diane—don't celebrate their second birthday until Feb. 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas C. Bur-off also have two other children: Sandra, 7, and Arthur, 12.

Says the 36-year-old mother with understandable lament: "It seems I do nothing but care for children all day long."
