Notes on the OSC-Oregon series: Jim Loscutt's rebounding superiority over Jay Dean with 33 for the Oregon forward to 18 for the Beaver Captain... OSC's fabulous .579 shooting average in the second half Friday on only 19 shots... The battle of wits between Bill Borchert and Slat Gill with their frequent substitutions for every situation...

The fabulous shooting of OSC's Reggie Halligan Saturday night with five baskets in seven tries... Ray Bell's poor luck hitting the basket Saturday when several easy shots rolled in and out... The Ducks' fantastically poor shooting eye at the free throw line Saturday with only 10 made in 30 tries... The resurgence of Tony Vlastelica as the top Beaver scorer ahead of Wade Halbrook...

Robins Sinks Ducks

The sinking feeling when Ron Robins' two-hander disappeared through the hoop in the final seconds Saturday to give the Beavers the win... Ed Bingham's fine floor play Saturday in the second half with 11 rebounds and six points... The deadly accuracy of Bell on Friday and Vlastelica on Saturday from the charity line... The great guarding duels between Howard Page and Ron Robins and also Phil McHugh and Bill Toole...

The iron-man performances by Page who played all 80 minutes of the two games... The terrific noise set up by the record-breaking crowds at both McArthur court and the OSC coliseum...

The nervousness of Swede Halbrook and his subsequent mistakes including losing three passes and getting three fouls on him in less than five minutes Saturday...

Referees From South

The controversial calling of fouls by Referees Lou Batmale and Bill Scollin from San Francisco who seemed to have different interpretations of plays than northern officials... The missing of the first free throw 14 times Saturday night by the Ducks to cost them the game... The patience showed by OSC players with Loscutt's rough and unnecessary elbowing at times...

The frequent time-outs called by Slat Gill to discuss new strategy... The good passing displayed by the Ducks when they used some ball-control tactics in the second half Saturday... The apparent dislike of several of the referees' calls by both Borchert and Gill...

New Rules Tried

The experimental rules used by the OSC Rooks and the Oregon Frosh Saturday night at Corvallis were some of the most confusing in the history of basketball and proved nothing except that the game was played faster with the ridiculous set of regulations on fouling. The old master, Slat Gill, devised the rules to cut down on fouls and speed up the game, but fans didn't especially appreciate his efforts.

The rules in this game called for giving one point to a player who was fouled instead of letting him take a one-and-one chance at sinking free throws. This cut down the time usually consumed in tramping up and down the floor for the foul shooting parade found in most games.

But it takes all the consistency out of scoring games since it takes no shooting skill to get fouled. The Rooks' Dave Gambee got 13 out of 23 points given to him, but he was listed as "dumping in" 23 points Saturday in Sunday's Oregonian. The game would be better off if everyone would let the rules alone.

Loscutt Still Tops Division

Oregon's Jim Loscutt is still in front in individual scoring with half the Northern Division season gone, but several other conference stars are beginning to press him for the lead.

The big Duck forward got 20 points against Oregon State Saturday night after being held to 11 the evening before to retain his lead over WSC's Ron Bennink and Washington's Dean Parsons. Bennink took over the second spot in latest averages after scoring 24 points each night in the Cougars' series against the Huskies last weekend.

He replaced Parsons in the runner-up position after the Eugene center was held to 29 points in two games. Tony Vlastelica, OSC hook-shot ace, vaulted into fourth spot in the standings this week after having two good nights against the Ducks with 24 and 19 points in the two games.

Loscutt retained his lead in the rebounding department as he grabbed off 33 against the Beavers in two appearances and kept his average above the 16-per-game mark. He also leads the league in field goals while Bennink is by far the free throw leader. OSC's Jay Dean is the top hatchet man with 4.2 fouls per game. Washington's Jim Coshow has only six in six games to rank as the league's most "honest" player.

Duck Swimmers Win 45-38 Meet

An exciting victory in the final race of the day, the 400-yard relay, gave the Oregon Duck swim team a close 45-38 win over the Multnomah Athletic club squad of Portland, avenging an earlier loss in the Rose City.

Coach John Borchardt's tankmen were led by veteran Howard Hedinger, who performed as anchor man on the relay quartet of Phil Lewis, Jerry Froebe and Yogi Matsushima.

Hedinger also was a double victor in individual events, winning the 60-yard freestyle and edging Froebe for the 100-yard freestyle triumph.

Harry Fuller was winner twice for Oregon also, grabbing firsts in the 220-yard freestyle and the 440-freestyle event. The only other first went to diver Pete Eyerman.

The only meet record occurred when a Lincoln high of Portland senior named Terry Kelly shattered the mark in the 100-yard breaststroke event. He knocked three seconds off the old standard set in 1943 by Oregon's Paul Heustis.

Others gaining valuable points for Borchardt's crew were Gene Bowles, Jim England, Lewis, Matsushima, Froebe, Bob Hays and Walter Ching.

Cal Center Tops SD Scoring Race

Southern Division Standings

	W.	L.	Pct.
UCLA	3	1	.750
Stanford	3	1	.750
Southern Calif.	2	2	.500
California	0	4	.000

LOS ANGELES (AP)—California hasn't won a Pacific Coast conference basketball game this season but it isn't the fault of center Bob McKeen.

The big center has scored 85 points in four losing games to lead the PCC Southern Division with an average of 21.3 per contest. He also leads in rebounds with 49.

Scoring in the Southern Division has been at a fast pace with UCLA leading in total scoring with a 73.3 game average. The Bruins and Southern California share the defensive lead with each allowing 66.8 points per game.

The Bruins and Stanford share the division lead with 3-1 records. California, UCLA and USC were idle this weekend for final exams. Stanford had three games in the Hawaiian Islands.

Southern California's Dick Welsh leads the Southern Division in accuracy by hitting on 62.2 per cent of his field goal attempts. He's scored 66 points for an average of 16.5.

Trailing McKeen in total scoring are Johnny Moore, UCLA, with a 17 point per game average and Ron Tomsic, Stanford, 16.8.
