

Air Scientists Confer On AFROTC Program

Addresses by President O. Meredith Wilson and Dean Paul E. Jacobsen of the school of education, will highlight the Professors of Air Science conference today and Friday at the Student Union.

Wilson will speak to the assembled officers at a luncheon today following Jacobsen's address, which was scheduled for 8:30 a.m.

After this morning introductions and remarks by various officers, the afternoon was to be given to several speeches by the delegates. After a talk on teaching methodology by Homer Boroughs of the University of Washington, the University's air science head, Col. Bruce Daily, will speak at 2:30 p.m. on standardizing procedures for sub-area school activities.

In today's last session, Col. Leroy G. Heston of Oregon State college will speak at 3:15 p.m. on the selection of advanced cadets for the AFROTC program.

The Friday meetings will be all devoted to addresses by officers, with such items as summer camp and supply problems, cadet honor societies, academic evaluation, review of recommendations from previous meetings and selection of a spokesman for the national conference.

Alternate subjects which may be introduced into the discussion include high school visitations, in-service training, annual federal inspection, proposed flight training program and programmed AFROTC production.

The AS IV directors' conference will be running concurrently with the conference. The main topics will be on the effect of new courses introduced this year.

Speakers will represent the University of Washington, Oregon State college, the University of Portland, Central Washington College of Education, Willamette university and the College of Puget Sound. Maj. James Deatherage will represent Maxwell Air Force base in Alabama, site of the Air university.

Independents Plan Dance for Friday

United Independent Students will hold their second annual dance Friday from 9 to 12 p.m. on the third floor of Gerlinger hall. The dance will be open to all Oregon students. Admission is 50 cents per student.

Refreshments will be furnished by Orides, organization of off-campus women and entertainment has been planned for intermission. Connie Drury, sophomore in music, is chairman for the dance, and chaperone will be Brad Blaine, counselor for men.

The dance is being held in conjunction with the regional Independent Students association convention here Friday and Saturday. Delegates from several Oregon, Washington and Idaho colleges and universities are expected to attend.

Registration for the ISA convention will begin at noon Friday in the Student Union. Discussion periods are planned for Friday afternoon and Saturday morning. Discussion leaders will include Miss Drury, Sam Valey, junior in business, and Ho'is

Ransom, graduate in political science.

A luncheon is scheduled from 12 to 1:30 p.m. Saturday in the Student Union. Main speaker will be Si Ellingson, SU director.

All convention meetings will be held in the SU and will be open to Oregon independent students. Oregon students who wish to be voting delegates, however, should pay a 75 cent registration fee, according to Len Calvert, convention chairman. Students who wish to attend the Saturday luncheon as official delegates will be charged $2 for the luncheon and for registration, he said.
