

Wildenhain Pottery Exhibit Now On Display in Union

An exhibit of the pottery of Marguerite Wildenhain, head of the ceramics department of the Pond Farm Workshops in Guerneville, California, is now on display at the University's School of Art. The display will be shown in the ceramics studios of the art building until February 24.

The display includes a variety of pieces, some of which will be on sale during the exhibition. Among those on display is one place setting of a breakfast set that was done entirely by hand.

Mrs. Wildenhain received her art training at the Bauhaus under the direction of Walter Gropius in Weimar, Germany. She received her degree of master-potter there after seven years of training. From Weimar she went to Halle where she was head of the Ceramic Department of the Municipal Art School. After coming to this country in 1940 she taught for nearly two years at the California College of Arts and Crafts at Oakland. She has had her workshop at Pond Farm since then.

During the summer months she gives a pottery course that attracts students from all over the United States. She usually conducts three or four, two-week seminars during the year. She will be on the University campus for only a week in which she will conduct demonstrations, give lectures, and help the students in the pottery classes.

Campus Co-eds To Vie for Title

It will be the army against the air force in an extensive ROTC contest in the next two weeks to see just which branch will have its candidate for Little Colonel reign at the Military Ball.

Both the army and air force military units on campus will have a Little Colonel selection of their own to be decided by vote of the respective units next week.

But just which one of the two branches gets the final honor of having the true Little Colonel will depend entirely on ticket sales.

The unit which sells the largest percentage of tickets for the dance will have its candidate declared the winner. In the event that the tickets are completely sold out, the deciding factor will be which branch sells its allotment first.

Tickets for the March 5th dance, which are selling for $1.65 per couple, went on sale to students in the advanced corps Monday. Freshmen and sophomores in the ROTC program will have an opportunity to buy their tickets Thursday afternoon.

Interviews

Candidates for the Little Colonel contest will be interviewed by a board of judges Wednesday and Thursday nights.

The interviews will be held in the Student Union starting at 7 p. m. Wednesday and at 6:30 p.m. Thursday night. The interviews will be spaced at six-minute intervals.

From these candidates, six will be selected as finalists. These six will be further divided into two groups by drawing lots. Each branch of the ROTC program will then have three candidates upon which to vote. When the vote is completed, each branch will then have one candidate for Little Colonel.

The military department announced this week that there will be two bands playing at the dance. A special 20-piece air force band from Washington and the Baker's Half-Dozen from Eugene will both play, the latter during the intermission.
