

State Department Men Here Today

United States State department representatives Robert L. Thompson and Thomas T. Turner will be on campus today to discuss new career opportunities in the US foreign service.

They will meet with interested students from 2 to 4 p.m. in Student Union 315. Faculty members will meet with Thompson and Turner at noon today in the SU.

Former UO Student

Turner, a former University of Oregon student, received his appointment as a foreign service officer in 1946. He has held posts in Tunis and Zurich, Switzerland.

Thompson, chief of the Division of Publications, was appointed to the Department of State in 1946. During the war, he served with the Office of War Information and Air Force Intelligence.

Foreign Service Program

Turner and Thompson are visiting Oregon as a part of the new foreign service recruiting program. Approximately 300 new foreign service officers are expected to be taken into the career corps this year.

American citizens from 20 to 31 years old are eligible. Starting salaries, depending on age and experience, are between $4000 and $5000 per year. There are 267 embassies, legations and consulates in 77 countries in which foreign service officers may hold positions.

Competitive Appointments

Appointments are made on a competitive basis. Written examinations will be held in June in a large number of cities throughout the United States including Portland, Spokane, Seattle, Boise, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Sacramento. The examination includes tests of English expression, general ability, general background and modern language. The oral exams will be given later.
