A women's dormitory now education this week that the plan location would be about two

The dormitory would be built on the south end of the graveyard area, according to Wilson's plan. This would mean moving about half of the graves to the north end.

The new dormitory would be located in what Wilson refers to as the "girls' campus," near Gerlinger, Susan Campbell and Hendricks halls.

If Wilson's plan is successfully negotiated Carson hall will be used for men. The new women's dormitory would hold 1600-as compared with the 330 capacity of Carson.

Another possibility for the cemetery area, if cleared, according to the present proposal, would be inclusion of a building for married students, which will be needed in several years, according to Wilson.

There are a total of 4000 graves in the graveyard now. Natural lighting and landscaping could be used in the proposed concentrated grave area.

A letter from the Pioneer Cemetery association indicated that the group may agree to a sale if the graves are properly treated and maintained.

Wilson will continue talks with owners of the graveyard, according to instructions given him by the state board.

Pi Kap House Will Not Close

Pi Kappa Phi reversed an earlier decision to close its house and decided to remain open at a Monday night house meeting.

The Pi Kaps, who earlier claimed that a lack of sufficient membership would cause the closing, changed their plans after receiving a telegram from the organization's national headquarters in Sumpter, S.C. The communication guaranteed the fraternity financial aid although it didn't specify a definite amount. The national headquarters heard about the plan to close through its district representative in Salem.

OSC Will Aid House

Besides the financial assistance from the national chapter, the local group also has been promised membership aid from the Pi Kap organization at Oregon State. Harmon Timeus, house manager of the Pi Kappa Phi house at OSC, said that "at least three of that group's members are planning to transfer to Oregon this spring to increase membership in the Oregon chapter."

Gene Murphy, president of the University organization, expressed hope that the house could increase its membership through a "more vigorous rushing program spring term."

Murphy said that eleven of the twelve men living at the house now will definitely return spring term. Most of them have already cancelled previous reservations for apartments. One student, who is at present boarding at the house but is not a member, has not decided for sure whether he will come back. Another member, not "living in," will make the house have either 15 or 16 affiliations for spring term.

House Needs Men

"We need at least 16 members living at the house to make a profit," Murphy said. "Rushing is the only way that we will be able to get the additional men needed to attain that total."

The Pi Kaps made the announcement that they planned to close only a little more than a week ago. A "lack of pledging initiative" was given as the main reason for the closing at that time.
