

Oregon Professor Gets Copy of Book

Carl L. Johnson, associate professor of romance languages, has recently received complimentary copies of his book "First Year French" which was published this year by D. C. Heath and Company.

The book was written for teachers who "want something less than a complete reference grammar and yet something more than a minimum statement of grammatical principles." The emphasis in the book is placed on speaking, rather than reading.

The stress on culture is secondary in the book, but it is nevertheless considerable. There are maps, photographs, and drawings which are designed to give the student an acquaintance with France, her people, and their achievements.

Johnson came to the University in 1935. Previously he was an instructor for two years at Harvard.

Are You Worrying About Finals?

Take a STEAK BREAK at LOU & EV'S.....

Don't let finals get the best of you. Enjoy a sizzling steak or some tender, juicy fried chicken at LOU AND EV'S and relieve the tension and worry from those horrible things called finals.

Lou and Ev have completely remodeled, but the low prices on their tasty dinners are just the same.

STEAKS — $2.25 to $2.75
CHICKEN DINNERS — $1.65

Your worries over finals are further relieved when eating at Lou and Ev's—all the walls are covered with relaxing outdoor scenes painted by Walter L. Ball, well-known artist and interior decorator.

Visit Lou and Ev's and relieve examination worries. Thirty-five to forty people can now be seated in a semi-private room.
