

Election Planning Started by Senate

Spring term elections are just around the corner. The deadline for aspiring politicians to petition to be on the primary ballot is less than two weeks away.

April 13th at 6 p.m. will be the cut off date for the campus parties, the Associated Greek Students and the United Independent Students, to have their candidates file for the primary ballot. The election, to be held April 20, is the forerunner of the all-campus general election, held on May 4.

Preparing for campaigning and electioneering, the ASUO Senate last night approved two rules that would supplement election restrictions already enforced by the University. The new rules state that there will be no campaigning on the day of election and secondly, that there will be no signs or posters visible on election day.

Enforcement, Senate Vice-president Hollis Ransom said, would have to be merely "moral restraint." This means that each candidate would be responsible for seeing that the rules are obeyed.

Rules concerning qualifications for candidacy, electioneering, and campaigning will be published next week. Meanwhile, Ransom reported that it will take about 200 students to run the election. Party presidents Bob McCracken of the AGS and Len Calvert of the UIS are expected to provide many of the people needed to run booths, give information regarding the preferential system, and to do the physical labor needed.

The Senate also interviewed and approved the lone petitioners for Mother's Day co-chairmen, Karen Kraft and Margaret Tyler, sophomores in business.

The group heard a suggestion put forth by Si Ellingson, Student Union director, which would get an automatic player attachment for the chimes. These would cost about $1700, and Ellingson proposed that the money be obtained from signing over of breakage fees by freshmen, sophomores and juniors. The Senate selected a committee to study the idea.

In other action, the Senate heard a report by Duck Preview co-chairmen, Lucia Knepper and Bob Porter. They reported good progress although difficulty was encountered because of a foul up between Student Affairs and the Athletic bureau over the date of the weekend. The Athletic bureau, thinking it was the 16th of April, scheduled a ball game with Oregon State then.

The weekend is April 22, however, and Porter and Miss Knepper have had to make other arrangements for Saturday afternoon. Plans now call for football movies and a football scrimmage.

Oregon's Traditional Sunrise Service Set

The traditional University Easter sunrise service for students and Eugene townspeople will be held Easter morning at 6:30 in McArthur court. Rev. Gene Laubach of the Methodist board of education in Portland will deliver the Easter sermon.

Sponsoring organization for the service is the University Religious council. Co-chairmen for the event are Roger Danielson and David Utecht.

The United church choir of Eugene, composed of choir members from most of the churches in Eugene, will provide the music for the occasion. Mrs. Marjorie Wilson, organist and choir director of the First Methodist church, will direct the choir. Mrs. Nell Murphey Dickson of the First Christian church will be organist.

Opening the sunrise service will be Ron Christensen, URC president, who will give the invocation. Rev. Robert Ellis, adviser to Canterbury club, Episcopal student group, will give the opening prayer. Vern Stenberg, adviser to the Lutheran Student association, will lead the responsive litany. The Epistle lesson will be read by Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business.

Following the sermon by Rev. Laubach, Christensen will lead the congregation in a prayer of thanksgiving. During the service, the anthems, "Holy Radiant Light" by Gretchaninoff and "Joy That Overflows the Heart" by Milton Dieterich, assistant professor of music, will be sung by the choir. Selections from Bach will be heard for the prelude, postlude, and offertory music. Rev. Stanley Barlow of Westminster foundation will give the benediction.

Scheer Gives Reason For Refusing UW Bid

The action of six physiologists who refused to appear at a symposium at the University of Washington this summer was not intended as a reflection on Washington's teaching staff, Bradley Scheer, professor of biology, declared today. The letter, signed by Scheer, and five other leading physiologists was a protest against the administration's refusal to allow Robert Oppenheimer to speak on the Washington campus, he said.

The symposium on the physiology of marine invertebrates has been tentatively rescheduled for the University of Oregon, Scheer said. The decision was made at the request of A. W. Martin, professor of zoology, at the University of Washington.

An earlier refusal of seven scientists to appear at Washington forced the University to cancel a medical school symposium scheduled for April 7 and 8.

Other scientists have withdrawn from a zoology symposium, also stating their reasons as the administration's action against Oppenheimer.

Greek Week All Fun This Year; Serious Events Planned for Fall

"We would like to remind everyone that there are no serious events in this year's Greek Week. The Greek system does have a very definite, serious side, both in what the fraternities believe and stand for, and in the events which they carry on throughout the year to benefit the school and the community," stated Ward Cook, IFC's chairman of Greek Week.

Cook also said, "It is our intention to add a serious side to next year's Greek Week as we will then be more familiar with the problems involved in putting on such a weekend, and have time to explore the many possibilities for a serious side to Greek Week. We also believe that next year's Greek Week should be planned for fall term, when there are less activities."

Starts at 1:30

Greek Week on the Oregon campus will start at 1:30 on the intramural field with the fraternities and sororities participating in five athletic contests. The feminine Greeks will join in a sack race, and a tentative touch football game has been planned, but at time of publication it was not definite. A charity race featuring pledges acting as horses, and a bicycle marathon will be the contests entered by the men's houses.

Both men and women will participate in a three-legged race, which will be run in four heats with the winners competing for the crown. Jeannette Dimit will judge the race. Prizes or trophies will be given all winners at the barn dance in the evening.

Softball Games Set

The afternoon's events will be climaxed by mass softball games. In the event of rain, the games will still be held on the intramural field.

The evening's activities will begin with exchange dinners between the fraternities and sororities at 6 p.m., lasting until 8 p.m. After the dinner the Greeks will exchange entertainment. At 8:30 the fraternities will provide transportation, and the groups will go en masse to the Greek Week barn dance which will be held in the Student Union ballroom.

The Whisperers will play for the barn dance which will feature the presentation of the awards for the athletic contests and student entertainment. The dance is not a date affair, and all Greeks are urged to attend.

The dress for the day's events will be Levi's and shirts for the men, and pedal pushers for the women in the afternoon and cottons in the evening.

Fraternity and sorority freshmen are included in the whole day's events and will be expected to participate.

Doug Basham and Mary Rae Bergeron are the general chairmen for Greek Week. Carol Wanner and Cook are the Panhellenic and IFC chairmen. Working under these chairmen are Sue Silverthorne and Larry Kromling, barn dance; Mary Gerlinger and Bob Campbell, athletic contests; Pam Rabens and Jim Woodyard, exchange dinners, and Valerie Hersh and Don Thurber, publicity.

Funds for WUS Due in SU Today

Today is the last day that house representatives may turn in their money for the World University Service drive in living organizations. Money is to be turned in at 4 p.m. today in 319 Student Union.

All houses which have contributed to the drive and the amounts they have given are now listed on the train in the window of the SU fishbowl. Prizes of records will be given to the men's and women's living organization turning in the most money. Winners will be announced during the Duck Preview vaudeville show.

Tomorrow is also the last day for houses to turn in their preferences for WUS fireside speakers. The firesides will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week and houses are to indicate which night they want their speaker. Preferences and times should be turned in to Evelyn Diamont at Alpha Delta Pi, or Luella Adams, Chi Omega. Boys and girls houses will be paired for these firesides.

Other WUS events planned for spring term are a car wash April 14th, the auction and vaudeville show to be held during Duck Preview, and the Ugly Man contest.

The auction has been changed from Friday, April 22, at 3:30 p.m. to Saturday, April 23, at 3:30. It is the only afternoon event being held Saturday of Duck Preview weekend. Twelve entries will be auctioned off. Houses are urged to begin saving their money now.

Petitions for SU Due by Wednesday

Petitions for next year's Student Union Board vacancies are due Wednesday. The forms may be obtained from the SU box on the third floor of the Student Union.

Positions are open for one member from each of the following schools:

- 1) School of Architecture and Allied Arts—a sophomore.
- 2) School of Music—a sophomore.
- 3) School of Liberal Arts—a sophomore.
- 4) Law School.
- 5) PE School—a sophomore.
- 6) Graduate School.

Those positions which must be filled by sophomores are two year terms.

Prom Petitions Due

Petitions for sub-committee chairmen of the Junior Prom are due Tuesday at 5 p.m. at Junior Weekend headquarters on the third floor of the Student Union.

Sub-chairmen are needed for decorations, programs, tickets, and clean-up committees.

Test Files Removed Pending Opinion Poll

The file of past final examinations and midterms which has been maintained and kept in the reference room of the library, has been removed for a three-week period pending tabulations of campus reaction to them.

The test files had been a part of the Oregon Honor Code, set up in 1951 and abandoned fall term because of lack of student interest in the system. The ASUO Senate November 11 voted to abandon the committee, but the test files portion remained.

Determining Opinion

Loris Larson was appointed chairman of a Senate test files committee, and she and her committee members have set up a system to determine campus feeling toward the files, in order to recommend whether or not they should be continued.

Comments will be solicited from each living organization on campus, which are to be tabulated by the president of each group. Answers should bear the name of the organization, the reaction, "yes" or "no" of each group, with the president's name.

Comments Solicited

Additional comments by any individual member should be included with the living organization's answer.

All comments are to be placed in the ASUO suggestion box, located by the front door of the University Co-op, within the next three weeks. If there are not sufficient answers in the box by the deadline the files will be automatically discontinued.

Living organization presidents will be contacted and reminded to solicit opinion from their groups, and the responsibility for this will lie with each president.

Off-Campus Opinions

Off-campus students are especially urged to submit comments in the box, and they need not be signed but the committee would prefer that they be signed and would include the student's phone number. This is in order that more complete tabulation of student opinion concerning the files may be made.

Deadline for answers from living organizations, as well as from off-campus students, is April 22. The committee would like to have answers as soon as possible.

Explanation Asked By Senate Group

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Foreign relations committee Thursday moved into the center of the politically-explosive question over release of the Yalta papers.

Without objection, the committee voted to "request" Secretary of State Dulles to explain behind closed-doors all the controversial circumstances surrounding the March 16 release of the papers.

Sen. George (D-Ga), committee chairman, said that a major point of inquiry is why informal memoranda and off-the-cuff remarks by the Big Three wartime leaders—Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill—were included in the formal documents published by the State department.

One such comment was Roosevelt's expression of hope that Stalin would propose a toast to the idea of executing 50,000 German officers. Another was Churchill's comment that he did not care much for Poles himself, but that the House of Commons would scrutinize the handling of the Polish question.

Sen. Capehart (R-Ind), a committee member who was absent when the committee adopted the motion by Sen. Morse (D-Ore), said he could see no good reason for asking Dulles to testify.

Capehart said: "I'm for publishing all of those informal remarks, everything that a President says, particularly in the presence of foreign people."

The committee's decision came just one day after the State department, breaking an official silence of two weeks, defended its decision to release the documents. It was apparent that senior committee Democrats were unsatisfied with the explanation.
