erans on campus now," he said, "and almost all of them are older (24-25). Many are married and the present set-up doesn't allow the married couples to sit together in the rooting section at games."

The ambitious junior went on to say that he thought that "there are just too many social activities on campus at present." He pointed out that there are so many events that "no one activity can be a really big success."

"I think coordination of many similar activities (such as the campus queens) would be a help."

Biggs just recently completed a tour of duty in the United States Army in which he attained the rank of sergeant. He also made a trip around the world after his army service in which he visited many colleges and universities in other countries.

"I found that student government in most foreign countries is much stronger than at any colleges I have visited in the US," he said.

Service Groups Offer Scholarships

Zonta and Quota, Eugene women's service organizations, are offering full fee scholarships to qualified University women attending the University next year.
