

Salk Vaccine Delays Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new delay in further releases of Salk polio vaccine was disclosed Wednesday night pending what a Public Health service spokesman called "another look-see at this whole very confused picture."

The disclosure came when a reporter asked why there had been no report on the findings of a federal inspection team which has completed a visit to Wyeth Laboratories, Inc., at Marietta, Pa.

Releases Stopped

"There will be no further releases of vaccine from any manufacturer for several days," a spokesman said. He added the situation did not affect the 7,850,000 cubic centimeters of vaccine produced by two other laboratories and approved for use in the nationwide immunization program. Much of this has already been used and what is left is still approved for use.

Another spokesman added: "Nothing has been found wrong with the vaccine" at Wyeth's.

He described the holdup as simply another precautionary measure. He explained that government scientific inspectors conducting a plant-by-plant study have been seeking to develop refined methods for studying and analyzing protocols — scientific data submitted by manufacturers on which government clearance on the vaccine is based.

Refined Methods

"They have now developed those and now they are going to review them," the spokesman said. "They are going at refined methods."

Later Leonard A. Scheele, surgeon general of the Public Health service, confirmed that "there will be no further announcement with respect to the release of poliomyelitis vaccine for the next several days."

Scheele added: "This should not be inferred as reflecting in any way on the vaccine of the companies whose manufacturing and testing processes are under study."

Follow-up Ruling Soon to be Issued

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chief Justice Earl Warren dropped a strong hint Wednesday that the Supreme Court will issue its follow-up ruling on public school segregation within the next few weeks.

It was a year ago Tuesday that the Supreme Court held that segregation of Negro and white pupils in the public schools is unconstitutional.

A month ago the court finished hearing arguments on how to phrase its decree as to when and how to end segregation. Most states with segregated schools have put off action pending that decree, but in some areas desegregation has already been put into effect.

Warren Says

Warren said Wednesday in a speech for the American Law Institute:

"Our work is on a current basis and, as has been the practice for many years, action in all argued cases is expected to be announced prior to adjournment."

The court is tentatively scheduled to hold its last opinion day, before the summer adjournment, on May 31, a week from next Tuesday. If it does not get through then, it could hold another opinion day on June 6.

Studying Legal Problems

The Law Institute is an organization of attorneys, holding a four-day meeting to study various legal and law enforcement problems.

Warren said that while the Supreme Court is up with its work, there are bad logjams in "too large a number of district courts." He said that until these backlogs are reduced to a reasonable size, "litigants cannot have justice in the true sense of the word."

Mayor Johnson Speaks Tonight

Eugene Mayor V. Edwin Johnson, who also is one of Lane county's five GOP representatives to the state legislature, will speak informally tonight in the Student Union at the final Young Republican meeting of the year. A short but important business meeting will begin at 7 with Mayor Johnson's address following.

Johnson, an University alumnus and prominent Eugene business man, has been active in civic affairs for many years. At Thursday's Young Republican meeting, he will review the accomplishments of the 1955 Oregon Legislature. Ample time has been allowed for a question and answer period.

All campus Young Republicans and other interested students are cordially invited to attend. Coffee will be served.

• All committee heads for Mother's Weekend are to turn in typewritten reports to Ann Petterson at Carson hall by Friday.
