

Talent Acts from Radio, Television To Appear in Oregon Club Variety

RITZ BROTHERS, comedy trio, head the list of professional entertainment which appears Saturday night at McArthur court. Featured acts in the Oregon Club-sponsored show are Connie Haines, singer, the Hoosier Hotshots, some vocal groups and juggling and tumbling stars.

Talent acts well known in the fields of movies, television, radio and vaudeville will appear Saturday in the Oregon Club's Variety show at Mac Court.

The show, which will be staged arena-style, will begin at 8 p.m. and tickets are now on sale at Mac Court, on Broadway and Willamette downtown and at the Big Y Market.

The production is for the benefit of the University's athletic program, and will be arranged around a football theme. Team members and coaches will sit in a special section, and University rally events are planned.

The Ritz Brothers, just having finished with a Las Vegas booking, will head the cast of entertainers. They are a comedy trio.

Connie Haines, star of Frankie Laine's television show and a recording star, will also star in the show.

The Hoosier Hotshots, known for making music on such instruments as washboards, egg beaters and tin pans, will also appear.

Payo and Mai, a juggling and unicycle team recently on Ed Sullivan's television show, will present unusual and unique acts.

An all-girl instrumental quartet, the Cordolins, will present an act they developed while starring in the Ina Rae Hutton show.

Other numbers in the show include a tumbling team made up of six Chinese tumblers, parents and their four children; a vocal trio from Longview named the Harmonettes, winners in Horace Heidt contests; and George Lee, a juggler.

ASUO to Sell Insurance At Registration Wednesday

ASUO student insurance will be sold in registration lines Wednesday in the Student Union ballroom. It will be in the ASUO office, SU third floor, after that.

Students buying the insurance for the entire year may receive one term free. Rates are $4.50 for 12 months, $3 for 6 months and $1.50 for 3 months. The ASUO receives a 25 per cent rebate on the $4.50 policies.

The insurance pays up to $500 on each accident, including doctor bills, hospital bills, surgery, x-ray fees, nurse bills and ambulance fees. It covers up to $500 in cases of accidental death.

It is effective immediately and includes 24-hour coverage. It covers car accidents, skiing, drowning, intramural sport accidents, skating, scuffling and criminal attacks.

This is the third year the University has carried the insurance plan, covered by Mutual of Omaha. It has been used at Oregon State and at two Washington schools.

Students having questions about the insurance should contact Mary Lou Glass, chairman, or Chuck Wilhoit, assistant chairman.

Law Graduates Make Impressive Bar Record

Oregon's law graduates made an impressive record in this year's state bar examinations, with 16 of the 17 University applicants passing the tests.

During the last four examinations only three students have failed in their initial testing, with these passing during their second attempt.

Monday morning the students began taking their placement tests, and in the afternoon, transfer students met in the Student Union for a discussion. In the evening a Student Affairs assembly was held at McArthur Court to acquaint the students with the campus.

Another session for transfer students will be held this afternoon from 1 to 2:30 p.m. in the Dad's Lounge of the Student Union. This evening at 7:30 students are to go to adviser-adviser meetings where they will meet their faculty advisers and make appointments for individual conferences.

Picnic Wednesday
Old students pick up their registration material Wednesday morning, beginning at 8 a.m., and registration begins.

The Duckling picnic for new students will be held at 5:30 p.m. on the lawn west of John Straub Hall. Then at 7:30 p.m. the University Religious Council will have an assembly at McArthur Court. After the assembly students may go to the religious group of their choice for a social evening.

New Admissions Top 2400 Mark

More than 2400 new students will encounter Oregon's long registration lines for the first time this year as orientation week gets into full swing.

Director of Admissions J. Spencer Carlson said that as of last Friday, 2448 new students had been admitted. Of these 1598 are freshmen.

Registration material for old students will be available Wednesday at 8 a.m. in the Student Union. New students have been able to obtain their material at the Student Union since Sunday afternoon. Saturday is the last day to pay fees without penalty, and the business office will close at 12 noon.

Build Program

After obtaining registration material, the first step is to build a study program with the adviser's approval. Preliminary adviser meetings are tonight, where appointments are made for individual conferences.

After the study program has been filled out and approved by the adviser, the next step is to fill out an instructor's card for each course and take it to the appropriate department office. The department will stamp the registration card of the student. If changes in the approved program are necessary, they should be made and approved by the adviser before registration is completed.

Fill Out Cards

The next step is to fill out the student affairs card, the news bureau card, and the multiple set of cards. The student is then ready to deliver his registration material to the student affairs desk in the registration line.

Students who have automobiles on campus must register with the ASUO traffic court.

When the above steps are satisfactorily completed, the student will be given a fee assessment card. Final step is payment of fees in the business office at Emerald hall.

Students who have a question about registration are asked to carefully re-read the registration instructions in the time schedule, where the whole procedure is carefully explained.

Oregana On Sale

The 1956 Oregana will be on sale during registration week in the ballroom of the Student Union. Students are advised to buy their Oregana now because a limited number of extra Oreganas are printed.

This year the Oregana staff reports that more emphasis will be placed on color.

More Orientation Events Planned

of the tea, sponsored by the Associated Women Students Young Women's Christian association, and Women's Recreation association. Each organization will have a display explaining its work.

Jane Bergstrom is president of the AWS, and Mrs. Golda P. Wickham is the adviser. President of the WRA is Robbie Mulkey and the adviser is Miss Marian Perry. YWCA president is Germaine LaMarche and Miss Eileen Lindblad is the adviser.

The receiving line will be made up of the advisers and presidents of the three organizations, and Mrs. O. Meredith Wilson, wife of the University's president.
