

1700 Students Attend Summer Session

The 1955 University of Oregon summer session had over 1700 students from all parts of the United States registered for courses and the educational workshops.

Many well-known lecturers were featured, such as Pitirim Sorokin, Harvard sociologist; and artists like Arthur Loesser, famed pianist, could be heard.

On the recreation side, students played the faculty in a baseball game at the annual picnic at Armitage Park. Swimming parties, terrace dances, recitals, and a trip to Crater Lake were also featured.

Byrne Leaves

Charles D. Byrne left his post as Chancellor of the Oregon State System of Higher Education on July 1. He was succeeded by John R. Richards, who has served the past two years as vice chancellor and secretary of the board.

Theater Active

The University Theater presented a full summer season of productions leading off with a 3-day re-run of "Kiss Me Kate," the musical comedy originally presented in May to full houses. Next came the comedy hit, "Kind Sir," which was presented in the Arena Theater. "Club Intime," the night-club style revue, was presented weekly in the fishbowl of the Student Union, with a new cast each week.

A mystery drama, "An Inspector Calls," was the next production, followed by "The Member of the Wedding," which was the last presentation of the group.

Psych Program Granted

The department of psychology has been approved by the American Psychological Association Education and Training Board for a doctoral training program in counseling psychology.

This means that the department will have, for the first time, authority to grant doctorate degrees in counseling psychology. The approval came upon recommendation of a visitation team which examined the department last February.

Landros Retires

the university, retired July 1, and will now have emeritus status.

Now sixty-five, Edna Landros came to the university in 1928. She is known throughout the state for her activities in politics, educational and women's groups, and social problem organizations.

As a linguist, she modestly admits that she knows 14 foreign languages, half of them ancient. She daily reads French, Italian, and Spanish newspapers. She is planning a year's trip around the world in a freighter. "I have to go someplace to speak my languages, now that I won't be teaching them," she says.

Home Ec Department Makes Course Change

A change in registration in the Home Economics department this year will enable students to register for all three terms of Clothing Selection concurrently.

It will also be offered as a one-credit per term course, as in the past. During fall term two sections of 114, the first term of the sequence, and 116, the last term, will be offered in addition to the total course grouping.

4 At UO Receive Fulbright Awards

Fulbright awards have been granted to four University of Oregon students to permit graduate study abroad during 1955-56. Fulbright grants are made annually to approximately one thousand U.S. students for study abroad. The grants cover the cost of transportation, maintenance, tuition and books. The four U. of O. students are:

Robert Summers — who has gone to the University of Southampton, England, to do graduate study in political science.

Elena Horn—to University of Clermont-Ferrand, France, to study French literature;

Kenneth Robert Allan, Jr.—to University of Paris, France, to study city planning; will require a broad liberal background emphasizing course work in sociology, political science, and psychology. The professional work required will involve work in music, speech, drama, art and architecture, and physical education.

Charles Keith Cockburn—to University of Freiburg, Germany, to study music.

Anderson Heads AAC

Lester E. Anderson, director of public services, has been elected president of the American Alumni Council for 1956-57. Anderson will take office in July, 1956. The organization numbers 1100 members and represents 700 colleges and universities.

A Fulbright scholarship for the academic year 1955-56 has been awarded to Joel V. Berberman, professor of sociology. He will study and teach at the University of the Philippines in Manila.

Grad Assistant Has Art Work Exhibited

A University graduate assistant, Richard A. Muller, is one of four Oregon artists who have work exhibited in the Santa Barbara Museum of Art's first Pacific Coast Biennial Exhibition.

"Tribute Money" is the name of Muller's oil painting. He is a member of the school of architecture and allied arts staff.

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH

Today I begin my second year of writing this column for Philip Morris Cigarettes. Once every week during the coming school year I will take up, without fear or favor, issues that inflame the minds and quicken the hearts of college students everywhere. I will grapple with such knotty questions as: "Is compulsory attendance the reflection of an insecure faculty?" and "Is the unmarried student obsolete?" and "Are room-mates sanitary?"

While each week I make a bold assault upon these burning issues, I will also attempt to beguile you into smoking Philip Morris Cigarettes. Into each column I will craftily weave some words in praise of Philip Morris. I will extol, obliquely, the benign mildness of Philip Morris's well-born tobacco, its soothing fragrance, its tonic freshness, its docile temperateness, its oh-so-welcome gentleness in this spiky and abrasive world of ours.

I will grapple with

Suck Knotty Questions as:

For saying these kind things about their cigarettes, the Philip Morris Company will pay me money. This is the American Way. This is Democracy. This is Enlightened Self Interest. This is the System that Made

Our Country Great, and anybody who doesn't like it is MALADJUSTED.

Perhaps it would be well in this first column of the year to tell you a little about myself. I am 36 years of age, but still remarkably active. I am squat, moon-faced, have all my teeth, and am fond of folk dancing and Lotto. My hobby is collecting mucilage.

I first took up writing because I was too short to steal. Barefoot Boy With Cheek was my maiden effort, and today, fourteen years later, I continue to write about college students. This is called "arrested development."

But I can't help it. Though I am now in the winter of my life, the problems of undergraduates still seem to me as pressing as ever. How to pursue a blazing romance with exams coming up next Friday in physics, history and French; how to convince your stingy father that life is a bitter mockery without a yellow convertible; how to subsist on dormitory food — these remain the topics that roil my sluggish blood.

are Room-mates Sanitary

And in this column from now until next June you will read of such things: of dating and pinning, of fraternities and sororities and independents, of cutting and cramming, of athletes and average-raisers, of extra- and intra-curriculum, of textbooks and those who write them and those who sell them and those who read them and those who don't.

And, slyly woven into this stirring tapestry, the story of Philip Morris, America's gentle cigarette, in the handy Snap-Open pack, in king-size or regular, at prices all can afford.

©Max Shulman, 1955

The makers of Philip Morris are happy to be back with you for another year of good reading and good smoking — with gentle Philip Morris, of course.
