

Men's Rush Meeting Set for Sunday Night

Rules for men's rush week, which will begin next Monday, are being explained to fraternity men and incoming freshmen this week, according to Interfraternity Council president Kent Dorwin.

All interested freshman men will attend the rushing assembly next Sunday evening at 7:30 in the Student Union ballroom. Dorwin and some outstanding fraternity alumni member will speak to the freshmen on the advantages of fraternity living. Rules will be discussed, after which the meeting will be open to questions from the frosh.

Fraternity presidents will be informed of rules concerning members at a meeting of the IFC Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Union.

Preliminary rushing meetings will be held during this week at each freshman dormitory unit. Dorwin will speak and answer questions.

Freshmen are allowed to make twelve dates with fraternities of their choice next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. All houses will be open for lunch, dinner and during the evening. Each rushee, after paying his $5 fee, must visit at least four houses before pledging.

Actual pledging will take place Friday night, September 30. Rushees make out a preference card telling their top three choices. At the same time each house will make a list of the rushees it desires to pledge. The cards and lists are then matched, and results will be announced Saturday morning.

"On behalf of the IFC I would like to welcome every new student to the campus," Dorwin said. "We fraternity men cordially invite you to take part in rush week. We are eager to show you the advantages fraternity life can offer you."

Help-Yourself Service Adopted by UO Co-op

Self-service textbook service has been installed in the University Co-op, with facilities for faster service both for books and other supplies.

Entrance to the balcony, where textbooks are, is through the turnstile and up the south stairway.

Students may go directly to the shelves to select necessary books, and they will pay at the checkout stand. Shelving is by course number and listed by departments.

The Co-op staff is asking students not to write checks in the book department. They are to be cashed at the cashier's window on the main floor.

Books must be listed by course number, and lists of these should be brought to the Co-op. Books can not be bought by course titles.

Refunds for books may be made up to two weeks after the term begins. Oct. 10 will be deadline for full-price refunds on unused books. Refunds can be made at the north starway, in the refunds and adjustment department.

Diagrams of the store's counters, with rules for purchasing books are available at the bookstore.

Theatre to Form Lab for TV Drama

Actors, directors, costumers and others interested in the theatre are invited to participate in a drama television lab being formed by the University theatre.

The group plans to produce several plays during the year in addition to the regular television productions. All these will be produced by students in acting, directing and publicity positions.

The lab will offer an opportunity for both new and returning University students to participate in an active theatre group and to meet other students with similar interests.

Organizational meetings for the group will be announced at the University Theatre open house Oct. 4, and in the Emerald.
