

Administration Expects Enrollment to Increase

At least 350 more students will be on campus this term than there were last fall term, according to an announcement this weekend from the University's administration office.

The figure is based on the number of students who have completed registration, and the predicted total enrollment is 4,800 compared with 4,438 for last year.

Latest official figures show that a total of 3,773 students have registered up to this time, as opposed to 3,478 on the same date last year.

This is an increase of almost eight and a half percent. Students are reminded that they are not officially enrolled in the University until they have paid fees at the business office.

Wednesday more than 1,200 students stood in lines to pick up registration materials, see advisers, sign up for classes, receive Student Affairs check and pay fees. This is about 30 percent more than the number who completed registration the first day last fall term.

More than 1,000 additional students are expected to register before Oct. 10, which is the end of the registration period. Students registering after that date will be fined $1 per day.

The last day to change courses and to get refunds at the Co-op will also be Oct. 10.

British Government Offers Marshall Scholarship Help

Applications are being accepted until Oct. 15 for Marshall scholarships, which are offered by the British government to United States students for study at any British university.

Candidates for these 12 scholarships, three of which are reserved for the western states and Hawaii, are advised to get the necessary papers from the British Consulate General in San Francisco as soon as possible.

Applicants must not be more than 28 years old, and must have high character and intelligence.

The scholarships are being given in gratitude to the United States for Marshall Plan aid. They may be used for study which will lead to a British degree after two years.

The number of completed applications so far is small, the British government advises, so candidates have good chances. The interviewing of selected candidates will be done in San Francisco by a committee of public figures in the West. Fares of all interviewed applicants will be paid.

Upperclassmen, Graduates Eligible for Mexico Grants

Juniors, seniors and graduate students are eligible to apply for 16 scholarships now being offered for study in Mexico.

These scholarships, offered by the Mexican government, are designed to cover full maintenance and include tuition. Applicants need only have enough money for incidental expenses and travel costs.

Eligibility requirements include United States citizenship, good knowledge of Spanish, good academic record, and good moral character, personality, adaptability and health.

Graduate fields especially recommended are architecture, anthropology, ethnology, archaeology, museography, painting cardiology and tropical medicine, biological sciences and Mexican history. Undergraduate fields recommended are philosophy, language and literature.

All applicants must be prepared to begin studies by March 1, 1956, except those going to the University of Guadalajara, which begins in September, 1956. Candidates under 35 and unmarried will be given preference.

For further information or application forms write the U. S. Student Department of the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th St., New York 21, N. Y.

Y Membership Drive to Begin

Young Women's Christian Association on the campus will begin their membership drive Oct. 3, according to Nan Hagedorn, membership chairman.

The drive will extend through Oct. 7, and no memberships will be taken until the drive begins.

On Oct. 3 junior YW members who are advisers to freshman commissions will present skits in freshman women's dorms. The following evening members of the sophomore cabinet will solicit for memberships, which will cost $1.50.

After Oct. 4 women interested in being Y members should sign up at the office, in Gerlinger hall. YM adviser Eileen Lindblad and president Germaine LaMarche will be in charge of memberships and signing women up for the four commissions.

The four are central divisions for the whole organization, and include international affairs, public affairs, service and worship.

PGE Gives School Money for Study Of Reservoir Area

Portland General Electric has given $500 to the University for archaeological survey of the Timothy Meadows reservoir area, at the headwaters of the Clackamas River.

The company is building the Timothy Meadows Dam in this area, and the University's survey will determine whether or not there is material of archaeological value there.

Two doctorate candidates in the anthropology department, Wilbur Davis and Daniel Scheans, are making the initial survey.

A conference between Luther Cressman, anthropology department head, and Waldemar Seton, PGE vice-president, brought out original plans for the gift. The conference was held because the land the reservoir is located on is property of the United States government. The federal license for building the dam requires that the anthropology department be notified and be given the opportunity of surveying for material of archaeological value.

Men to Register Today for Rush

More men are expected to register today for men's rushing than ever before in the University's history, IFC president Kent Dorwin disclosed.

Rushing registration and signing for Tuesday and Wednesday dates will take place from 2 to 5 p.m. today in the Student Union ballroom. Rushees may make Thursday and Friday dates with fraternities tonight from 7 to 10.

Those eligible to participate in rush week include all first-term freshmen, transfers admitted as regular students, and all regular students with a cumulative 2.0 GPA.

$5 Fee Charged

Rushees must pay a $5 fee when they register today. They may then make dates with the fraternities of their choice. Each fraternity will have a table in the SU ballroom, but cannot solicit dates anywhere on the second floor of the Union.

The following rules will be enforced by the Interfraternity Council:

No rushee may have more than two dates with the same house in any one day, or more than four dates with any house during rush week.

After a date has been made with one fraternity, it cannot be changed without the house's written permission, unless it is broken officially. This can be done by the rushee only after visiting the house at least once. A fraternity also may officially break dates. Such cancellations will be made through the IFC, which will inform the rushee.

Rushees shall arrive on time for dates unaccompanied by a fraternity member. They must also leave at scheduled times.

No Rushing After Ten

No fraternity can in any way entertain a rushee after 10 p.m.

At no time prior to or during rush week shall anyone representing a fraternity enter freshman dormitories.

Friday from 10 to 12 p.m. rushees will make out preference cards. At this time no fraternity man except IFC officials will be permitted on the second floor of the SU.

Each fraternity shall present a list of men it desires to pledge before midnight Friday. IFC officials will then match these lists with the preference cards of the rushees, and announce results Saturday morning.

Rushees may make 12 dates during the week. These will be lunch, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.; dinner, from 5 to 7 p.m.; and evening dates, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Tuesday through Friday.

Brown President Here Charter Day

Barnaby C. Keeney, new president of Brown university, has been selected to give the formal address at the University's second annual Charter Day observance Oct. 18.

University President O. Meredith Wilson announced that Keeney will be speaker for the celebration of the University's founding.

A concert on October 17 will open the Charter Day observance.

State Farm Youth May Apply for Trip Abroad

Oregon farm youth may still apply for six months expense-paid trips abroad under the International Farm Youth Exchange program. Winnifred Gilen, state 4-H extension agent, announced that applications would be accepted until Oct. 20 from young people wanting to visit other countries.

Three or four Oregon students will be selected to go abroad in 1956. Exchangees need only to furnish personal items and camera supplies.

The IFYE project is a two-way exchange. Farm delegates from the United States go to one of 45 participating countries for four to six months. Exchangees from abroad come to this country on a similar setup.

In order to be eligible for a trip an applicant must be between the ages of 20 and 30, have a farm background, be a high school graduate and a resident of Oregon. Application forms and details on countries to be visited may be secured by writing to the state 4-H office at Oregon State college.

Funds for IFYE delegates come from private donors. For several years the Oregon Bankers association has sponsored two delegates. Four-H clubs throughout the state have boosted the program in their county groups. Church and civic organizations have also contributed.

Before an IFYE leaves the United States he is given orientation on geography and agriculture in the country to be visited. Speaking the native language is not necessary.

Petitions Wanted For SU Secretary

Petitions for the position of Student Union directorate secretary are now available in SU 301, office of the program director.

They will be due Sept. 28 at 5 p.m., and should be returned to the third-floor petition box. Interviewing dates for petitioners will be assigned later.

Freshman and sophomore women may petition for the job, which consists of keeping minutes and doing general office work for the board.

330 STILL PARTICIPATING

Women's Rush Continues

Approximately 330 women are still participating in Panhellenic's rushing program, Olivia Tharaldson, president of the organization, announced Sunday night.

Rushing for the 362 freshmen women originally registered for the program began Friday with open house at each of the 16 sororities on campus. Members of Kwama, sophomore women's honorary, led the women on the tour.

Saturday the rushees made six half-hour visits to the sororities, with four half-hour visits Sunday.

Remainder of the rushing dates include three 45 minute dates tonight and the two preference dates Tuesday evening. Following the preference dates, rushees will fill out preference cards at Gerlinger hall.

Pledge quota for each of the sixteen houses has been set at 20, accordingly to Miss Tharaldson.

Wednesday morning each pledge will attend a pledge breakfast at the chapter house at 7:15. Dress for the remaining dates are campus clothes tonight and short silks Tuesday, according to Panhellenic.

Rushing for freshmen women exclusively is being held this fall for the first time in Panhellenic history at the University. Last Tuesday ended a special rushing program for uppertermers, of whom 59 pledged.

The total number of rushees this year, including both freshmen and uppertermers, exceeds last year's total by 50, Panhellenic figures show.
