Oregana Changes Open House Date

Postponement of the Oregana's open house, scheduled for today has been made necessary because of the many pledge banquets the same day.

Oct. 5 is the new date on which all freshmen will be introduced to their college annual and its staff, said Sue French, editor. They will be served refreshments and will be given the opportunity to meet the people who make the annual, a remembrance, of University of Oregon college life.

The members are looking forward to talking over high school annuals and are especially interested in learning of new techniques used in them. Past copies of the Oregana will be there.

There are many openings on the staff of the Oregana and interested freshmen students are encouraged to petition for a position.

The club plans to attend the field hockey conference at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, Nov. 11-13.

"Each dorm and sorority has a representative on the WRA council," says Miss Marian Perry, advisor, "and any girl who wishes to join one of these activities should contact her representative."

Record Number Of Rushees Visit UO Fraternities

More rushees are believed to have visited Oregon fraternities Tuesday than on any previous day in the University's history.

The record-breaking number of men who signed up for the Interfraternity council's fall rush week inspected Oregon's 21 fraternities Tuesday at lunch, dinner and evening dates.

Three more dates are planned for today, with similar dates also scheduled for Thursday and Friday.

IFC President Kent Dorwin reminded rushees that they must attend all scheduled dates unless officially broken in the office of Student Affairs. Dorwin also emphasized that every rushee must visit at least three houses before pledging.

Pledging will take place Friday night, at the close of the 7:30 to 10 p.m. dates. Rushees will fill out preference cards at the Student Union before midnight. Meanwhile the 21 fraternities will compile a list of desired pledges. Preference cards will be matched with the lists by IFC and Student Affairs officials.

Rushees may find out the results Saturday morning.

High School Press Meets on Campus

Several hundred high school students are expected to be on the University campus early in October for the 29th annual high school press conference.

Staff members of high school yearbooks and newspapers and their advisors will meet on the campus October 7 and 8 to hold roundtable and panel discussions on all phases of publication of yearbooks and school newspapers.

Arrangements for the meeting which is sponsored annually by the Oregon Scholastic Press and the school of journalism are still being completed.

Some 700 high school journalists, a record number for the conference, participated in last year's meeting here.

Chairmen Need Derby Workers

Chairmen and committee members are needed for the Bunion Derby, which is planned for Oct. 8. Chairmanships are needed for promotion, publicity, finance, and house co-ordination. A general secretary is also needed.

The Derby is a dance which is held at the girls' dormitories and sororities from 7 to 10 p.m. The men's houses travel from house to house, each man paying a nickel a dance at each place.

Plans are being made this year to have a radio station play records for the entire dance, so that all women's living organizations would play the same music. It is also hoped to have a sound car broadcast this music over the entire campus to keep up the spirit while the men's living organizations move from house to house.

Petitions are on the third floor of the Student Union. Freshmen are encouraged to petition for the positions. The deadline for turning in petitions is 5 p.m. today, according to Joan Kraus and Joan Rainville, co-chairman.
