

Campus Merry-go-Round

Wedding bells have rung constantly through the summer months heralding the marriages of a considerable number of Oregon students.

At Alpha Chi Omega

Among the newly wedded Alpha Chis this summer were Robin Rumery and Ken Carnahan, Chi Psi; Cynthia Long and Milan Foster, DU; and Jean Paulus and Ned Wilson of Stanford.

Carol Bestul is wearing the pin of Vance Taylor, Chi Psi, and Rosie Welch is pinned to Gerwin McFarland, SAE.

At Alpha Delta Pi

Spotlighted in the romantic news at the ADPi house is the engagement of Joyce Larvek to Leslie Beaton, a second lieutenant in the army.

Recent pinnings include Jean Smith's to Sig Ep Ray Walker and Sally State's pinning to Merrit Barber, Sigma Chi.

At Alpha Omicron Pi

Summer weddings of AOPi members include those of Dawn Kester to Ken Hickenbottom, ATO; Roberta Toner to Bill Eady of Eugene; Norma Jean Nyeto Perry Halstead; Diana Starr to Theta Chi Dick Kesson; Sue Galbreath to Robert Johnson of Salinas, Cal.; and Marilyn Harber to Bob Wolfe.

Elaine Becker is now wearing the engagement ring of Manny Romero and Clarice Duling was engaged in the late spring to Tom Elliott.

Wearing the Phi Delt pin of OSC student Lowell Pearce is junior JoAnn Fundingsland, and Marian Carstensen was also recently pinned to Sig Ep Jerry Bowden.

Squad Meets For Practice

Sore muscles, closer friendships, lots of fun, and a variety of completely new routines were the products of a three day trip to the beach taken by the U of O rally girls prior to the opening of school.

With members of the squad living in all different parts of the state and having summer jobs, this yearly outing provides the only opportunity for the girls to originate new steps and plan their year's activities.

A surprise routine—resulting from the trip will be featured at the beginning of the game with Washington in Portland Saturday night to help get the students into the football spirit.

New Officers Picked To Fill YW Vacancies

New officers have recently been appointed by the YWCA cabinet to replace girls who did not return to school.

Thiele Rollo was appointed public-affairs chairman, and Deanie Hurt was selected as the new international affairs chairman, according to YW president Germaine LaMarche.

Interviews, Photos, Hoses All Part of Women's Rush

Passing through an inspection line, being interviewed, chased, and photographed . . . all these things sound like the daily schedule of Marilyn Monroe. But they are just a few of the things freshmen women have been subjected to while going through formal rushing this week.

While members of Kwama led groups of freshmen women through the initial open house, various fraternities lined sidewalks to look over prospects. One house annually brings all its leather furniture out on the lawn, sits down, and interviews girls trying to reach a near-by sorority.

Fraternity men are known for looking out for the best interests of the rushees. Some of them proved their thoughtfulness this year by gently carrying several wide-eyed freshmen girls up to a sorority house.

Another group of boys thought the rushees should freshen up to impress the sorority women, so they very obligingly offered them water—right in the face—with a hose.

One fraternity went all out to give freshmen women visiting a sorority across the street a taste of college life at the old "country club."

They donned white dinner jackets, powdered their hair for a distinguished effect, and lounged on their veranda drinking "highballs." A white jacketed manservant appeared at the summons of a bell to refill their glasses while "darkies" strummed banjos at their feet.

It's really hard to tell who works the hardest during women's rush—the sororities or the fraternities.

Magazine Points to All New Wardrobe

By Dorothy West

Mademoiselle, the collegiate guide to fashion, has done it again. This year it dictates a brand new college wardrobe for the women on campus.

The bulky sweater has taken the highlight over all other fashions. It is worn on the presumption that with something more substantial in a sweater, a coat need not be worn. Of course, they have not been conditioned to Oregon's "surprise" showers. Nevertheless you will find that the majority of them make a wonderful campus coat on the unusual bright days.

Perhaps the most attractive of the magazines' dictates are the blended sweaters and skirts. The loveliest of these dyed-to-match, woven-to-match combinations are the thick cashmeres and tweeds. A beautiful set is being made by woolen manufacturers.

As an aside, have you noticed the colored cotton hosiery—stockings worn with matching leather shoes, being advertised by all the leading magazines? They are wearing them with tweeds and flannels.

They have also done something to not only the blouses but sweaters this year. All have been stretched at least two inches, a prerequisite for which is a flat-hipped skirt. This fashion has found its way to Oregon's campus within a year. Look anywhere on campus, except perhaps the men's dorms, and you'll see the long stretch.

Jumpers and blazers have also fought their way back to the top again. After years of being a campus classic they have made a comeback as a top fashion to be taken seriously in planning this year's wardrobe. New innovations in the jumper have become evident in the dropped waistline and its cut into a two-piece costume but the practicality remains.

Mademoiselle previews many new accessory fashions, one of which is fur. Start looking for it on bags, hats, bracelets, anywhere but the usual spot.

Keep your eyes on these fashions. They're going far.

Mothers Club To Meet Soon

The executive board of the Oregon Mothers club will meet Oct. 6 to plan their program for the coming year. The meeting will be held in Dallas, at the home of Mrs. Carl Gerlinger.

Those attending from the Eugene area include Mrs. Dean Micklewait, outgoing state president, Mrs. L. E. Ziniker of Creswell, state treasurer, and Mrs. Harold Parmenter, president of the Eugene chapter.

Mrs. James Walton, Salem, incoming state president, and Mrs. Elery J. Fey, Portland president will also be present.

Pledges Get Welcome

HAPPIEST MORNING of the year for Oregon sororities is the day when they welcome new pledge classes. These smiling coeds are Alpha Omicron Pi members and pledges, just before breakfast at the house.
