'Human Duck' Mascot To Appear at Game

By Valerie Hersh

Emerald Ass't Managing Editor Oregon has a mascot. It is none other than Puddles VI, the first real, live giant-sized mascot the Oregon campus has ever had.

Puddles, it is reported, will make his first appearance Saturday night at the Oregon-Washington football game. The original of this human-shaped duck and his identity is unknown, but it is rumored from good sources that Puddles VI is being impersonated by a member of one of Oregon's fraternities.

Predecessors

Puddles' predecessors, I through V, whose history on the Oregon campus dates back to the 1920's, have always had the misfortune of being members of the secret sect of the anas playrhynchos (male ducks inclusive).

Also Puddles' ancestors have had the habit of disappearing for long periods of time and turning up beaten and haggard with traces of black and orange blood on their feathers. The misfortune of dying a thankless death at the hands of some heartless student from the farm up north, has always been a tradition. It is hoped the new Puddles will be able to withstand the pressure of being official Oregon mascot a little better than his predecessors.

Who Is He?

If Puddles can make it to Portland without complications the student body and audience at Multnomah Stadium will get the chance to see him. But knowing who he is will be a question in the minds of all, that only Puddles himself can answer.

Parking Regulations Stated by Wright

All but about 40 of the approximately 800 parking places provided by the University in off-street parking lots are open to student parking, according to I. I. Wright, superintendent of the physical plant.

But cars parked in the restricted places will be ticketed or towed away at the expense of the owner, he said.

Those places in which students are not permitted to park are restricted for a good reason, Wright declared.

Parking lots are open to students on a "first come, first served basis" at 14th and Kincaid, north of 11th and Kincaid, the Emerald Hall lot, the music building, near the Vets dorm, 15th and Agate and behind Gerlinger annex.

Parking Restricted

Parking is restricted in the lot near Johnson hall except from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. because the spaces must be kept open for cars belonging to administrative personnel who must have their cars easily available, he said.

Two spaces at the southwest corner of the Emerald hall lot are saved for doctors from the Student Health service who must have their cars close by for emergency use, Wright said.

The lot behind Friendly hall is closed to parking during the daylight hours when it is used as a service drive and entrance but cars may be parked in the lot from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m.

Not Blocked

Even during these hours, however, the driveway must not be blocked by parked cars, Wright said. The same holds true for other driveways on campus, the superintendent of the physical plant pointed out.

The driveways must be kept clear, he declared, to provide an access way for emergency vehicles if they should be needed.

Another restricted lot is between Deady and Villard halls, the two oldest buildings on the campus.

Wright said this lot must be kept open because of the fire hazard presented by the two old buildings. The lot is kept open for use by fire equipment.

Fire Equipment

Only other restricted parking zone on campus is behind Emerald hall where state-owned cars are parked.

Wright pointed out that restricted parking places are marked by yellow-painted curbs or signs.

Parking along streets which run through the campus is regulated by the city he said, and the University does not have charge of these places.
