

Oregon Schools Show 15% Rise In Enrollment

Enrollment at all Oregon colleges this year jumped from an estimated 8 percent to 15 percent, the State Board of Higher Education announced Friday. The percent increase has not been completed.

Eastern Oregon College of Education claims the biggest boost with an enrollment of 569 on the fourth day of registration. This is a 22.9 percent increase over last year's corresponding figures.

The University of Oregon has the lowest rate of increase so far, with an approximate 11.3 percent on the seventh registration day.

However, this is expected to climb when the medical and dental schools in Portland register. The expected enrollment in the medical school is 581, and the dental, 324. The total registered on the Eugene campus is an estimated 4,721 students, compared with 4,242 in 1954.

Second to Eastern Oregon in percent increase is Oregon State college with an enrollment of 5,916 on the fifth registration day. This is a 17.9 percent jump over last year's enrollment.

Students heeding the plea for more teachers increased registration at Oregon College of Education by 16 percent. This is a total of 53 students over the estimated budget of 650 on the third day of registration, with several days left to register.

Southe Up 15.1 Percent

Last year's total enrollment for Southern Oregon College of Education was 703. On the fourth day of registration this year, the enrollment was 741, an increase of 15.1 percent.

Registrar of Portland State College, Dr. Howard Impeccoven, said he expected the total enrollment to reach 2,700 by the end of registration; however, the total enrollment on the fifth registration day was 2,498, compared with 2,180 on the same day in 1954. This is a 14.6 percent increase over last year.

If the present rate of enrollment increase continue, the State Board of Higher Education will have to revise its budget to meet the demands of the 15 percent increase.

Attendance Rises At U of Portland

Attendance at the University of Portland will show a small rise this year, according to an announcement by the Rev. Joseph S. McGrath, dean of the faculties.

Full time student registration is now 1,105, compared with 1954 registration of 1,144. Still expected are some 70 late registrants. The faculty has been increased this year by 17 to a total of 141.

Collegiate Anthology To Appear This Week

The first collection of writing by students of 20 American colleges and universities will be published this week, in pocket-size, by Bantam books.

The book entitled "New Campus Writing" contains work from students throughout the United States and was edited by Nolan Miller, professor of English at Antioch college.

The selection of 18 short stories and 26 poems was chosen from hundreds of manuscripts submitted by outstanding teachers and critics.

Bunion Derby To Be Friday

By donating to the AWS scholarship fund, University men will be able to dance with any co-ed this week-end. Friday is the date set for the annual Bunion Derby, with all women's living organizations participating.

Present plans call for dancing to begin at 7 p.m., with men's groups spending short periods at each women's organization before proceeding to the next. After 10:30 p.m. shifting will cease but dancing will continue until midnight.

Admission of a nickel will be charged at the door of each house or dorm.

Much competition for the two trophies is expected by the co-chairmen, Joan Rainville and Joan Kraus. Trophies will be awarded to the men's living organization with the largest percent of members participating, and to the women's group which takes in the most money per capita.

Winners of the trophies last year were Phi Kappa Psi and Alpha Gamma Delta.

Oregana Reminds About Open House

Sue French, Oregana editor, reminds all interested students of the annual Oregana open house to be held Wednesday evening in the Oregana office.

Those who attend will meet staff members and will be served refreshments.

Many openings remain on the staff. Interested freshmen are encouraged to petition for positions.

Dessert to Be Tuesday For Foreign Students

A foreign student dessert will be held Tuesday from 7:30 to 10 p.m. in the upstairs lounge at Gerlinger Hall. All foreign students, University officials and YWCA and YMCA members are invited.

The affair is informal and its purpose is to help the foreign students become better acquainted with the campus.

United Fund To Open Drive On Campus

The University faculty and staff are joining forces in the United appeal organization drive which is being launched today with a kick-off meeting at 4 p.m. in the Student Union, according to co-chairmen of the drive, W. A. Dahlberg, associate professor of speech, and Si Ellingson, SU director.

A goal of $6,500 has been set for this annual campaign, a combination of the Red Cross and Community Chest drives.

Each department or area has a captain in charge of several lieutenants who are given a list of prospective donors to contact. A new system has been authorized this year which enables the business office to collect donations on the payroll deduction basis. The faculty drive will continue through Friday, Oct. 7.

The student United appeal drive will begin Monday, Oct. 10, continuing throughout the week.

Margaret Tyler is general chairman of the all-campus campaign. Kwama and Skull and Dagger will assist in the various money-making activities scheduled for the week.

Auction Petitions Due Friday Night

Petitions for the Associated Women Students' annual auction chairmanships and committees are due at 5 p.m. Friday and may be turned in either to Jean McPherson at Alpha Phi, or at the petition box on the third floor of the Student Union.

In addition to the general chairman persons are needed for the judging committee, arrangements committee and committee to contact the pledge classes.

Freshman women who signed at the Dean's tea to help with the auction are reminded that they should also petition for the chairmanships which they wish.

The auction will be held at 4 p.m., Nov. 4 in the fishbowl of the SU.

416 Men Pledge UO Fraternities

Oregon's 21 fraternities closed rush week Friday night with the pledging of 416 men.

A record total, this figure compares with 356 pledged in 1954; 332 in 1953; 170 in 1952, and 131 in 1951. The pledges came from a record group of 517 registered rushees.

Largest pledge class this year is that of Sigma Chi, with 36, followed closely by Sigma Nu with 35. Phi Gamma Delta has 31 pledges. Last year's largest class was Beta Theta Pi's 29.

IFC President Ken Dorwin, who missed most of the week because of the death of his father, expressed great satisfaction at the results.

Following is the list of pledges of each fraternity:

Debate Squad Sets Meeting Tuesday

Opening meeting of the University's debate and symposium squad will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in Villard 205.

All students interested in public address and competitive speaking, regardless of experience, are invited.

The question for debate this year is guaranteed annual wage. Competition will be with the major universities west of the Mississippi.

75 Members Returning

Erik Hansen, David Cass, Donna DeVries, Betty Herrman and Leland Nee are all returning members of last year's sweepstakes team, which won the Northwest championship at Tacoma last year.

The other parts of the forensics program involves speaking before service groups, parent-teacher meetings and high school audiences. It has a double purpose, according to Herman Cohen, director of forensics.

The first purpose is to give the student actual experience before public audiences, and second to create a better-informed public. University speakers have addressed nearly 100,000 thousand persons in the state in the past several years. One of the questions used in this aspect of forensics will be the problems raised by the Supreme Court's decision on segregation.

Program to Be Explained

At this first meeting students who have been involved in forensics in the past year will explain the program.

W. Scott Nobles, assistant professor of speech, and Donald Micklewait, graduate assistant in speech, will assist Cohen with this program of the speech department.

Browsing Room Announces Program Schedule for Fall

Programs for the year's browsing room lectures, to be held in the Student Union on Wednesday nights throughout the term, have been announced by Bernice Rice, browsing room librarian.

"Modern Dutch New Guinea" is topic of the first lecture. It is to be illustrated with colored slides. Lecturer will be Homer Barnett, professor of anthropology. Discussion leader will be E. S. Wengert, head of the political science department.

Oct. 12 will be "Trouble Spots in Latin America," by Ramon Eduardo Ruiz, instructor in history. Gordon Wright, head of the history department, will lead discussion.

Theodore Stern, assistant professor of anthropology, will lecture on "Golden Chersomese Today: People of Burma," for the Oct. 19 lecture. Paul S. Dull, professor of political science and history, will lead this discussion.

Reading on Plays

Planned for Oct. 26 is a reading and interpretation of the "Modern Play" with Frederick Hunter, assistant professor of speech, as lecturer. The discussion will be led by Sylvan N. Karchmer, assistant professor of English.

"La Fontaine: The Man and the Fabulist" will be the lecture given by D. M. Dougherty, head of the foreign language department on Nov. 2. Discussion leader will be Herbert Nelson, head of the English department at Oregon State college.

Nov. 9 will be "Thomas Hobbs' Leviathan," by L. R. Sorenson, associate professor of history. Quirinus Breen, professor of history, will lead the discussion.

Nov. 16 lecture will be the "Raven and the Phoenix: Memory and Palingenesis in Literature," by P. W. Souers, English department head. The discussion will be led by Charlton Laird, visiting professor in English from Nevada.

Slides on India

Hugh Wood, professor of Education, will lead the discussion following a lecture by Charles Schleicher, professor of political science, on Nov. 30. The subject will be "India: Illustrations and Impressions," which will be illustrated with colored slides.

The final lecture of the term will be on Dec. 7. F. M. Combellack, professor of classic languages, will speak on "A. E. Hausman: Lord High Executioner." The discussion will be led by R. C. Gordon, assistant professor of English.
