

Series to Take Place Of Religious Feature

By CAROLE BEECH
Religious Notes Editor

This is the first in a series of weekly articles which will be concerned with the religious activities on the University of Oregon campus. This column will replace the "Religious Notes," a feature of past years. Rather than printing a weekly calendar of the activities of a few of the larger religious organizations, the Emerald will report the highlights of all university religious activities and interpret them in the light of their new value and of the students' life on campus.

Denominations Represented

Student groups for the Jewish, Roman Catholic, Baha and Protestant religions exist on this campus. All of the major denominations in the Protestant faith are represented by student organizations. In total, there are about 16 organizations designed to meet the needs of young congregation members who have left the fold of their home church and have come to a state university.

During the next few weeks, most students will be receiving information in the mail from the group representing their faith concerning meeting dates and activities of the group. Most groups meet Sunday evening and again once during the week. The organizations also hold social activities and many worthwhile worship services and discussion groups.

RE Week Sponsored

Religious activities have an important place on the University of Oregon campus. Each year Emphasis Week, Christmas activities, an Easter sunrise service, a World Day of Prayer service and various other activities.

These joint activities are handled by the University Religious Council, a group which is made up of student representatives from all of the religious organizations. An Episcopalian boy, Craig Philips, is this year's president.

Pastoral advisors of all of the groups also have their organization: the Religious Director's association. In addition to URC and RDA committees, a faculty committee on Spiritual and Religious Affairs is also active on campus.

Work Not Behind

Those of you who come from church youth groups at home will find that you are not expected to put behind you your interest in the work of your church. It is not necessary to be non-religious to be accepted on this campus. The student who maintains and practices his faith now that he is away from parents and ministers who prod him on will find the job of adjusting to college and becoming happy here a much easier task than the student who soon becomes lost in the dust of the struggle on campus because he has no inner direction, no sense of purpose.

September 23 will be the first Sunday that many of you will have had a chance to attend church in Eugene. There are a number of churches near campus and many more near bus lines downtown. Check the telephone directory for the address of the church of your preference and start your college career by attending church (and your religious group Sunday evening) and then make the activity a regular habit.

Brittsan Assigns Campus Workers

Campus committee assignments and appointments for the coming year have been submitted to President O. Meredith Wilson for final approval by Darrel Brittsan, ASUO president.

Arlene Clark and Pat Cushnie have been named for the United Fund committee. Student members of the Student Union educational activities budget committee will be Sam Vahey, Kip Wharton and Annie Laurie Quackenbush.

Darrel Brittsan, ASUO president; Helen Ruth Johnson, AWS president; Ed Fadeley, SU board chairman and Madelene Lung, Heads of Houses president, will compose the membership of the Student Affairs committee.

The assembly committee will include Darrel Brittsan and Betty Anderson. Joap Rainville, Doug Basham and Sally Jo Grieg will be on the student publications board. Student discipline will include Karen Kraft, Chuck Mitchelmore and Michael DeVore.

Traffic court and ASUO cabinet positions will be announced at a later time.

Magazine Prints Johnson Article

An article entitled "Home Appraisal Problems and Methods Surveyed" appeared under the by-line of Leevern R. Johnson, assistant professor of business administration, in the August edition of the Oregon Business Review.

Value, according to Johnson, in determination of home figures, is what people are willing to pay for a finished product and includes future benefits as well as present ones.

What the buyer wants in a home and what he is able to pay is the thing the appraiser must determine, he said.

The appraiser must measure this willingness in terms of dollars because values are measured by the medium of exchange, concluded Johnson.

Exchange Plan Open To Foreign Farm Life

Applications for the International Farm Youth Exchange program are being accepted until Oct. 15, according to Mrs. Winnifred Gillen, state 4-H extension agent and IFYE director.

Eligibility is limited to single men and women between ages 20 to 30 with a background of farm life and work. Delegates chosen for trips live with farm families overseas for about six months.

Oregon's four delegates overseas this year are Marilyn Bradshaw, Albany, in Scotland; Tom Zinn, Klamath Falls, in Iran; Ward Armstrong, Newberg, in India, and Carolyn Varitz, Estacada, in Belgium.

1800 Mark Passed In Oregana Sales

Oregana sales during registration had reached the 1801 mark by Thursday noon. Sales will continue until Saturday noon, after which the annuals will no longer be available.

This year's book, which sells for $6.75, will include several full color pages, a unique cover design, new divider pages between the sections and a wide coverage of campus activities.

Anyone interested in selling Oreganas during registration should contact Jim Carter, Oregana sales manager, at ext. 238.

The first event on this year's academic calendar, registration week, will end tomorrow. After this date penalties will be added to those registration fees remaining unpaid. Classes will begin Monday, but courses may be changed until Oct. 8.

Charter Day Set

Highlighting the academic calendar for late fall will be University Charter Day on Oct. 16, and Thanksgiving vacation, Nov. 22 to Nov. 25.

Winter term preliminary advising conferences will be held Nov. 26, followed by fall term examinations, Dec. 12 through Dec. 18.

Winter term begins Jan. 2, with Jan. 5 the last penalty-free day for paying registration fees, and the first day of classes Jan. 3. Classes may be changed until Jan. 14. Final exams for winter term will be March 11 to 16, with preliminary advising conferences for spring term on Feb. 25.

Memorial Day Off

March 25 will be the first day of spring term with classes beginning on March 26. The last day of registration without penalty will be the morning of March 30. Courses may be changed until April 8. The only holiday of this term is Memorial Day.

Term exams will be held June 3 through 8, with Baccalaureate and Commencement Day on June 9.

'55 AFROTC Grad Gets Regular Bars

A commission in the regular Air Force has been awarded 2nd Lt. Dean Van Leuven, a 1955 graduate of the University, on the basis of his outstanding record in ROTC as an undergraduate.

While in ROTC, Van Leuven was named one of the most distinguished graduates of the ROTC program at Oregon.

During 1955-56, only 99 ROTC college graduates gained the outstanding rating, with the University, Auburn University and Ohio State University the only schools with three or more.

Van Leuven was active in sports while in school, participating in football for four years and track for one. He belonged to Order of the O and had a high scholastic average.
