Tipping Canoes; Gaffney Millrace Olympics Features

Shades of tippy canoe and Walt Gaffney too. Both were strongly in evidence at the First Annual Millrace Olympics held Saturday afternoon.

Gaffney, an assistant counselor at French Hall, was a very busy man. He was a combination coach, paddler, spectator, yell leader, and swimmer. Paddling in the boat of French Hall he led his team to a stunning defeat at the hands of Cherney Hall. His role changed to that of a swimmer after the race when Cherney men threw him in the water.

Hendricks Hall, however, apparently made good use of Gaffney's coaching ability as it won the women's championship. He later led the freshman women in a well earned victory yell.

The large crowd saw some outstanding as well as humorous canoeing. Theta Chi, winning the men's championship, got a taste of the Millrace water as their boat overturned at the finish of the championship race.

At one point in the day's events Gamma Phi Beta's were found sitting in their boat doing exercises in keep in shape. However, Hendricks defeated them in a hard fought contest.

Spectators as well as canoers found themselves in the water. One Kappa Kappa Gamma girl who was swimming around exclaimed, "I can't come out, I'm too busy holding up my pants."

The race between Cherney and French Halls proved to be one of the most interesting and amusing contests of the day. Both teams seemed to be attracted to the bank. Paddles were broken, water flew, and general confusion reigned. At the conclusion of the races one Cherney man described himself as a "soggy badge of courage."

All in all the two hour, real life spectacular seemed to be enjoyed by all concerned—the dripping people clinging to their victory trophies, the losers figuring ways to get the trophies, and the well-pleased spectators.

Students to Form Discussion Group

A religious discussion group, sponsored by the Ecumenical Protestant student movement will have its first meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the YWCA in Gerlinger Hall.

The group, which will meet for the next six weeks, will discuss and study the booklet Chosen People. This booklet will also be used by the United Student Christian council conference at Parkland, Wash., this winter.

The discussion group is open to all students whatever their denomination. Students have been requested to sign up for the study group at the YWCA office in Gerlinger Hall, preferably before the first meeting.

Parts for UT Comedy Production Still Open

Comedy parts are open for 11 men and three women in the University Theatre's production, "The Doctor in Spite of Himself." Try-outs and casting will begin tonight at 7:30 in 104 Villard.

Copies of the script may be checked out at the speech-office. The play is scheduled to open at the beginning of winter term and rehearsals will be held during fall term.

Senator Francis To Speak Here

State Senator Carl Francis, Republican candidate for Attorney General, will address an assembly Tuesday at 1 p.m. in the Student Union. His speech will open a series of programs sponsored by the Assembly committee.

Future speakers scheduled to appear include: Russell Kirk, Oct. 23; Senator Wayne Morse, Oct. 30; and Robert Mautz, Nov. 1. On Nov. 13 an assembly is planned featuring people connected with the University.
