

CAMPUS

Merry-go-Round

Pinnings and engagements took the limelight this week at several women's living organizations.

At Alpha Delta Pi

Freshman Barbara Dellinger announced her engagement to Dave Bates, a member of Delta Tau Delta. Senior Deanie Hurt is wearing the pin of Campbell clubber Dick Barbour. Gail West is engaged to Dick MacLaren from Oregon State.

At Carson Hall

Lina Fuller announced her engagement to Bud Crane, a Beta Theta Pi transfer from Stanford. Both students are seniors, and Bud is majoring in pre-med.

February is the month set for the wedding of Cindy Bourne, a junior transfer from Oregon State, and James William Tribe, of Eugene.

At Delta Gamma

At Gamma Phi Beta

Junior Sally Hoy is engaged to Walt Henningson, a member of Delta Tau Delta, now serving in the United States air force.

At Kappa Alpha Theta

At Pi Beta Phi

Sophomore Sue Devoe is pinned to Dick Easton, a Phi Gamma Delta. Nancy Sue Payne is wearing the Phi Kappa Psi pin of Ken Hart.

At Sigma Kappa

Several weddings have taken place since school began which were of special interest to Sigma Kappas. Carol Mohr married Ed Connyinghom, Judy Cowell was married to Gary Larson, of Oregon State, and Liz Collins married Kent Bonney, a member of Pi Kappa Alpha, at Oregon State.

Marcia Young was married to Rexford B. Harner, Jr.

Loretta Mason announced her engagement to Dick Kohler, a member of Sigma Chi, recently.

At Zeta Tau Alpha

Pat Ardinger is wearing the pin of Phi Delta Theta Sherman Everett.

Publicity chairmen of all Women's Club on campus are urged to contact Lenore Yoast at Susan Campbell by 8 p.m. Monday every week if there are announcements to be made.

WRA

WRA is sponsoring a balloon sale at the Stanford game Saturday. Helium filled yellow balloons with DUCKS written on them are to be released at the first Oregon touchdown. This should prove to be a colorful display.

How to join WRA? Anyone participating in intramural games, committees, or officiating is eligible for membership.

Co-recreational night was such a success that WRA plans to sponsor another later in the year. Those attending enjoyed folk and square dancing, volleyball and refreshments.

AWS

AWS has been making plans for their annual Christmas tea. All living organizations on campus will donate boxes of food and gifts which will be turned over to the Salvation Army to distribute to needy people.

The coming AWS auction in November and further plans for their theme "Greater Oregon," is keeping AWS busy.

Phi Theta Upsilon

All members meet 2 o'clock Wednesday at McArthur Court for University Charter Day. There will be an important meeting Thursday noon at The Side.

KWAMA

Mrs. Wickham, Mrs. Trainer and Mrs. Cox of the dean's office are planning a dessert for Kwama October 30, at the Wickham home.

Brazilian Exchange Student Impressed with University

How would you feel if you had never been away from home in your life and suddenly found you had been awarded a scholarship that would take you to another country for a year?

Vera Lucia Soares Bulcao, 23, who arrived here at the University of Oregon three weeks ago from her native Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, says she hasn't had time yet to be homesick. The beautiful Brazilian had only 15 days to prepare for her trip to Oregon after being notified that she had won a $1000 scholarship from the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs, and had only one evening in which to pack after receiving confirmation of her flight reservations.

Men's Competition

Vera won the scholarship as the result of a competition sponsored by the Institute of International Education which she entered during August of last year. The competition consisted of three parts, with half of the contestants eliminated in a language test and those remaining required to fill out questionnaires and write autobiographies.

Three students were then chosen and interviewed separately by members of the Institute. Vera was surprised and happy when she won the Brazilian competition, but had no idea that this recognition would bring her the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs scholarship and that the American Board of Trustees would pay her tuition to the University of Oregon.

Teaches School

Vera graduated in December, 1955, from the Catholic University of Rio de Janeiro in Anglo-

Kwama will be decorating the goal posts for the two remaining home games and the Portland game.

Members are planning an exchange with the sophomore men and women's honoraries at OSC in the near future.

Mortar Board

The Mortar Board is working on the Study Help Program, their fall term project. This program is designed to plan special assistance for freshman women. In addition, they are planning their annual Smarty Party to be held for freshman women who make a three point or better fall term.

German letters, which is a combination of English, German, Portuguese and Latin. She has been teaching English and Portuguese for a year and a half in a school in Rio, as well as teaching English to adults and giving private lessons in languages.

The opportunity to come to Oregon was awarded her in August, which is right in the middle of the school year in Brazil, and Vera regretfully parted from her 140 pupils, aged five through 12.

"I had no idea they liked me—they did such awful things in class. But there we were, all crying," she said.

Flies to Eugene

The trip to Eugene involved flying in six different planes, and Vera said she began to feel almost as casual about changing planes as she did about ordering coffee. Vera, who knew no one in the United States before she arrived, made many friends during her trip.

The first city in the U.S. she visited was Miami, which she thought was very beautiful as it reminded her of Rio. While she was there she was the guest of the first officer of the plane and his wife, and she plans to spend some more time in Miami when she returns to Brazil.

Her next stop was at Houston, and then Dallas, where her companion on that flight thoughtfully phoned ahead to Denver to assure Vera of a reservation on the proper plane. This was typical also of the kindnesses she met during her stop at Portland and again at the end of the journey here at Eugene.

Likes Friendliness

Vera said that she has not felt alone since coming to the United States because of the friendliness of all the people she has encountered. The vivacious girl is very happy here at Oregon, and has become especially fond of the girls she is living with at Ann Judson House. She even looks forward to the rain everyone warns her about since she feels that nothing will dampen her enthusiasm. Our way of life is not too different from that of her country, except for the weak coffee!

Future Plans Indefinite

The major studies of the charming foreign student here will be American Literature, American History, and Shakespeare. Her plans for next year are still indefinite. She may return to teaching elementary school, which she
