

SESSIONS CLOSE

'Quality' Education Said Still Available

"Higher education of quality will be continually available to all qualified students."

This was University President O. Meredith Wilson's view of the "thread" running through the Conference of Higher Education Needs, which closed on the campus Friday.

Wilson, addressing the final session, told more than 100 educators, legislators and businessmen: "It is evident that education is an important concern of the people of the Northwest."

The conference, under the auspices of the President's Committee on Education Beyond High School, was sponsored by the Governor's Committee on Higher Education, in conjunction with the University.

In a Thursday evening talk, Oregon general manager for Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., Frank Dresslar expressed the need for financial support for higher education.

Dresslar maintained "there is no escape for business and industry other than to face the problem squarely and pay what is needed to get the job done."

Urges 'Blending'

He also urged a "blending of the drive and imagination of business with the objectivity, understanding and vision of higher education" to lead to solution of education problems.

Still another talk, on Friday, was given by G. Ross Henninger of Iowa State College. He spoke on "Technology in Higher Education."

Henninger told the group of the crying need for qualified and properly trained technicians in engineering and other technologies.

"Our national manpower, which is qualified into and to perfect the science of tomorrow, is limited in quantity," added Henninger.

Liberal Arts Dean To Be Moderator

Robert D. Clark, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, will moderate the public forum on the special session of the Oregon legislature scheduled for 8 p.m., Thursday, at the Condon School.

State senators Truman A. Chase and Donald R. Husband, and representatives Edwin E. Cone, Joseph Crepeau, V. Edwin Johnson, Keith D. Skelton, and Glen M. Stadler will give their views on what the special session will bring—particularly in relation to Oregon's tax program and the disposition of the tax surplus.

The public is invited to attend to give the legislators their ideas on the tax question and any other matter pertaining to the special session.

The forum is sponsored by the Lane County Democratic Central Committee, the League of Women Voters of Eugene, and the Young Republicans in an effort to inform the public on the special session and to get public opinion on the tax issue.

Campus Explodes

street, horns blowing, co-eds screaming and Victory Bell pealing.

Several police citations slowed the action, and the parade ground to a gradual halt, only to be renewed Sunday morning when the bell-led cars again toured the campus to recruit enthusiasm for a 10 a.m. depot rally greeting the returning Oregon team.

About 300 students and local fans were on hand to hear Web-foot Coach Len Casanova comment as he opened a dozen roses presented by Yell King Dick Stables for the student body. ("The team can't just stand around and smell these; they have to earn them.")

They applauded Co-Captain Jack Morris' remarks when called on by Stables for an impromptu pep talk. ("We got together at the first of the season and decided... one game at a time. And so far, so good!")

Mobile once again, the car parade sounded its way back to campus and died a final, abrupt death. Notable in the celebration was the clear lack of any "on the ground" activity. Several fraternity men enjoyed a cross-intersection game of football just after the parade passed, but that was the only non-portable aspect of the enthusiasm.

The talks will be built around a "getting acquainted with University customs, facets and rules" theme.

In addition, students Charlie Franklin, Bob Heard, Roland Harris and Tom Lewis will present a quartet musical program.

James D. Shea, president of the Oregon Dads, will preside along with Mrs. Cecil Arnes, Mothers Club leader.
