Fizzeds Victors

Highly favored Fizzeds had to come from behind in order to put down Nestor Hall, 2-4, 11-8, 9-7, in a Class A volleyball game last night.

Nestor hung on to cop the first game 4-2, but they faltered a bit in losing the second stanza, 11-8. The third and final game proved to be a real tussle as the PE majors trailed 6-7 at the end of the regular time limit; but three straight points halted the Nestor crew in the overtime period.

Sparked by the fine all-around play of Jud Taylor and George Porter, Sigma Alpha Epsilon B racked up a hard-fought victory over determined Sigma Phi Epsilon.

The two squads battled on even terms in the first game until the final two minutes, when Taylor's "spikes" began paying off. Breaking a 4-4 deadlock, SAE chalked up a 7-4 victory.

The Sig Eps came back to capture the second contest 8-6 in overtime, with Roger Gaffey and Ron Hesbe starring.

The final game, however, was all SAE, with the losers suddenly becoming disorganized and unable to work together. SPE fell behind 8-0 before being able to score, and then it was too late. The final count was 8-3.

Ducklings Get Experience Not Victory

University of Oregon's freshman football eleven wound up its 1957 slate last Friday afternoon with an unimpressive 0-3 won-lost mark. But despite the sting of not having won a ball game in three starts, Frosh coaches are not exactly crying.

"The main reason for Frosh football at Oregon is to acquaint our players with the operative methods of the varsity system, so things won't be so hazy when all-important spring practice rolls around," Bob Doornink assistant Frosh mentor, observed. "Our secondary purpose," the coach said, "is to put on the turf a ball club to win ball games. But the primary purpose—win or lose—is experience.

Requested to name a few of his Frosh players who stands better than average chances of earning a position on the Varsity Ducks next season, Doornink mentioned several of the team's standouts.

In doing so, he hastened to add that in the process of fielding a representative, winning ball club it is sometimes necessary to put men in positions different from the ones they ordinarily hold down.

As an example, Doornink commented that Paul Bauge, half-back-fullback for the current Frosh, "should make an outstanding Varsity end." The Duckling mentors also see bright things in the future for quarterbacks Dick Arbuckle and Darryl Eisner, centers Cal Titchner and Ron Collins, guard Dave Urell and tackle Gary Stensland.
