A COSTUME THAT WILL DOUBLE FOR BOTH SAN FRANCISCO AND LOS ANGELES is chosen by freshman Barbara Horn. This Delta Gamma from Portland chooses a black sheath to take her to the "cities." This basic dress can be dressed up or dressed down as the occasion demands.

LET'S GO SOUTH

Californians Advise Varied Sportswear for Bowl Trip

BY KATHY COOK

Emerald Women's Editor

Going to the Rose Bowl? As a wise traveler, you'll travel light . . . baggage-wise, but still include the items in your suitcase that will see you through almost any occasion.

Californians relate that the average temperature in the Los Angeles area at this time of year is from 60-70 degrees F. Swimming is done the year 'round in pools, but natives avoid beaches in the winter.

Sportswear Prevails

Sportswear is the prevailing trend in clothing, no matter where one chances to go, these California natives said. No occasion is dressier than a sheath will take you; variations of the sheath will take you almost anywhere.

If you're planning on driving to Pasadena, you'll want to choose sportswear that will be comfortable for your long trip as well as presenting an attractive picture of you. Long, tapered pants, and a long-sleeve pullover sweater would be ideal choices for your drive down.

The northern regions of California can be very cold, especially in the mountain areas near Mt. Shasta. Plan on taking an extra blanket or something heavy to wear to ward off the coldness.

If you drive down via the U.S. 99 route, you'll want to branch to San Francisco. San Francisco is noted for having some of the most smartly-dressed women in America. Trips to "the city" call for dark heels, (white heels are strictly taboo in the city) a suit or long coat, and many times a hat.

A dark sheath in either wool jersey or wool flannel will take a minimum of space in your suitcase and provides maximum versatility for your stay.

Cottons for Warm Weather

Continuing south on your journey, the weather begins to get warmer and cottons can come into your fashion picture. Cottons can be worn around the calendar . . . for dress as well as casual wear in Southern California.

In view of the fact that you're going to be living out of a suitcase, you'll want to choose cottons that will pack well and shed wrinkles. The sheath again is the answer. A dark sheath in a textured cotton would be a good choice. Accessorize with a patent leather bag and pumps.

Take along a cardigan sweater or light-weight coat for chilly evenings. If you are fortunate enough to own a knitted coat, take it . . . you'll have the fashionable "knit look" as well as having a wrap of ideal weight.

White Shirts for Game

For the game, white shirts, straight skirts and flats are in order. Daytime weather is warm and you'll have no need of a coat at the game or for Los Angeles street wear.

Now if you're planning to sojourn to the Rose Bowl by means of one of the public transportation systems . . . plane, train, bus . . . you'll want to think about a smart travel costume that will see you carried attractively across the miles

Again, the sheath makes a bid for attention. This time try a two-piece sheath-jacket combination. Wear the jacket while traveling, and doff it later for
