A CLOUD OF DELIGHTFUL FRAGRANCE surrounds sophomore Marilyn Jones as she dashes to the ball. Marilyn likes the soft essence of "White Shoulders." A transfer from Stevens College, Marilyn is now affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta. She is an elementary education major from Sacramento, California.

Fashion Festival

BY KATHY COOK
Emerald Women's Editor

Looking over your closet lately, have you ever said, "I don't have a thing to wear"?

Actually, the clothes you have may be perfectly lovely, but you've just grown tired of them from continued wearings. Someone else might be delighted with the same collection.

Thus, you decide—"I want to be a new me; I'm tired of the same old self who has been plodding around campus—posing as me. I want to be different."

There is a remedy for your situation, and it doesn't call for great new wardrobe outlays, either. Have you ever stopped to consider that being beautiful is largely a state of mind?

Your attitude toward yourself can have a measurable effect upon what others think of you.

Before fashion shows, sponsors and co-ordinators always make a special point of telling their models how lovely they look. This added assurance gives the model a pride in herself that actually helps her accomplish a better modelling job.

It's a model's duty to sell the clothes she's wearing, but before she can hope to sell a secondary item . . . clothing . . . she must first be sold on herself. She must feel that she is beautiful.

Self-assurance does not come from a brassy display of self, but rather from an inward confidence that reveals itself in outward charm. It is so much easier to accomplish a goal when one feels that she is acceptable; that she has the qualifications for a complete jollow-through . . . a job well done.

At this time you may sit down with yourself and say, "This is silly . . . me—beautiful—I've never heard of such a thing!"

Don't be so hard on yourself. Be a little bit objective when you're thinking of yourself and your good qualities. No one can hear your mental processes.

Start the "new-you" campaign by asking yourself—"just what do I want others to notice about me and how do I want to think about myself? What qualities do I have that I can enlarge upon and improve? How can I be more beautiful?"

Next, stand in front of a mirror and take a good long look at yourself. Analyze your figure, your skin and hair color,

Perhaps you'll discover you have a very appealing pair of eyes that you hadn't even considered before. Or, maybe you'll find that your waistline is really quite slender. You

Campus Merry-go-Round

By BARBARA PERRON
Emerald Staff Writer

At Alpha Delta Pi

Sophomore Diane Day is wearing the Delta Upsilon pin of Larry Cartmill, also a sophomore.

At Alpha Phi

Mimi Goldsmith, a junior, is wearing the Beta Theta Pi pin of senior Bill Miller.

At Ann Judson House

Senior Gail Moan is pinned to Smith Trammell of Philadelphia House.

At Alpha Xi Delta

Sue Horn, a '57 graduate, is engaged to John Wright, who was a DU here. He is presently in Germany with the Army.

At Chi Omega

Freshman Lorraine Evers recently announced her engagement to Gary Smith, a student at COC in Bend.

At Delta Gamma

Sophie Gostovich is wearing the Theta Chi pin of Dean Freize, previously a student at Washington State. He is now with the service in Pensacola, Fla.

At Highland House

Carmen Yuzon, a senior in math, announced her engagement to Carl Shonk of Eugene. The couple plans to be married this Fall in Honolulu, which is Carmen's home.

Another engagement is that of freshman Sheila Wilson, who will be married to Thom Moon, a United Air Lines employee in San Francisco.

At Sigma Kappa

Chess Authority Scheduled by SU

Samuel Reshevsky, international chess grand master, will again appear on the University campus Feb. 5 at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom.

Sponsored by the SU Board and the Eugene Chess Club, Reshevsky brought his chess exhibition to UO last year and played chess simultaneously against 60 opponents.

There are still openings for 10 students to play in this year's exhibition. Those interested in participating may register in the SU program office, or call Adell McMillan, Ext. 235.

All participants must supply their own chess set, which must be of the Staunton pattern.

Niven Will Visit National Meetings

Ivan Niven, professor of mathematics, will attend two national committee meetings in Ohio this week.

Niven, northwest governor of the Mathematics Association, will attend the association's board of directors meeting. While in Cincinnati he will also attend a committee meeting of the National Academy of Science.
