

STIRRING SEQUEL

New 'Movie' Highly Praised

Note: Lengel couldn't make it to the movies but he made it to a typewriter—result:

By JOHN LENGEL Emerald Entertainment Editor "Men in a Crevice," an Alleged Artists' production, is the stirring sequel to an earlier Artists' production, "Man in a Spillway."

Alphaholic 'Toast' To Be Named Saturday

The "Toast of the Alphaholics" will be named from among five campus candidates at the hall dance Saturday night. The dance will be held in the cafeteria of John Straub Hall.

Finalists are Nancy Taylor, Pi Beta Phi; Janet Kerley, Carson 2; Sandy Misko, Alpha Phi; Marlow Chaput, Alpha Delta Pi; and Gloria Jenkins, Gamma Phi Beta.

Professor to Lecture At Washington State

Miner Professor of economics, Raymond Mikesell, will address the third annual Institute of World Affairs at Washington State College Saturday.

jaded filmland script writer.

An interesting sidelight on the production was the tremendous amount of actual location film work. The cast was shuttled over the world looking for a suitable crevice. In the film you'll see shots of Shelby, Australia, Palestine, Swiss Alps, Wake Islands, Redstone Missile Arsenal, as well as some finishing shots at the main studio in Sioux City, Iowa.

Concerns Love Affair

The plot, as put together by sage old Matt Maltby, concerns an illicit love triangle in Cut 'n Shoot, Texas.

The love triangle features Hollywood acting veterans, Tac Courtney, Pebble Platte, and Tanya Nagurski, in their finest hour.

A quick glimpse of the plot shows the trio wandering around the globe in pursuit of each other.

Finally the heroine (Miss Nagurski), is kidnapped by 2,000 Cossack horseman, while her banana boat lays over at Wake Island.

Union Aids

Courtney and Platte cleverly discover this and enlist the aid of the United Auto Workers union. This puts the show in the "cast-of-thousands" category.

Then comes the battle scene shot in cinerama, glorious technicolor, and vacuum sound.

The well-disciplined legions take their positions.

Miss Nagurski is tied to a stake behind the Cossacks. Spread around her feet is a stack of Reader's Digests, ready to be lit.

Legions Changed

The legions charge on cue. A yawning crevice splits the battlefield and swallows the thundering horde.

Miss Nagurski unties herself and boards her banana boat. She returns to Cut 'n Texas, and opens a banana orchard. But still, she can think of nothing... but the men in the crevice.

Switzerland Student To Speak To Groups

Miss Marise Paschoud, a Lisle Fellowship representative from Switzerland, will visit on campus February 21-23.

Miss Paschoud will speak at Westminster House Sunday morning at 9:30, and at the Christian House fireside at 8:30 that evening, as well as being a speaker on the International Weekend program.

Any students or faculty interested in an interview with Miss Paschoud may make an appointment through the YMCA.

She has studied at the University of Lausanne, and has taught for three years in a Lausanne high school. Last year she studied history at the Sorbonne.

In June and July, 1957, Miss Paschoud attended the California Lisle unit and is now giving her time to visits to American campuses.
