

Engagement Book

Announcing her engagement to Group Captain Peter Townsend is Princess Margaret, a member of the British monarchy. The news was revealed at Buckingham Palace recently when five RAF Vampire jets strafed Queen Elizabeth's boudoir. The exploding tracers formed clouds of smoke saying, "Pete's Neat."

The rites will be performed on July 4 in Westminster Abbey by the Red Dean of Canterbury. The ceremony will be televised in full gray by BBC and will be narrated by Malcolm Muggeridge.

In the wedding party will be Diana Dors as maiden of honor, with Sabrina, Lady Astor, the Duchess of Windsor and Sarah Churchill.

Seconding Townsend will be Lord Beaverbrook, Anthony Eden, David Niven, Alec Guinness and Roger Bannister.

Following the wedding, Townsend and the Princess will be at home in an RAF transport plane. Their friends have always considered their affair a "flighty" romance.

Ephemerald Sophisticate

Gosh! Here it is spring term, with nothing but dreamy play days and maybe a little stream-side studying ahead. Just think of all the fun you'll have running roughshod through your closet looking for just the right grubby item to complete your outdoor attire.

Fashion for '58 dictates a rakish appearance, carefully chosen to conform to campus moral standards, of course. Think of the thrills of being shanghaied from the tanky old library to some idyllic Riviera-like spot near ocean or river.

Well, before I use any more sugary phrases, I'll offer the latest bit taken from painstaking study of the illustrated fashion guidebooks—you know, Playboy, Rogue, Risk, Sample, Vamp and all those fraternity-like rags banned from all the "nice" news-stands.

Anyway, to keep fit, healthy, slim, trim and sober on your spring sojourns, take along these necessities: a jug of black coffee, a loaf of bread products and thou. Also carry at all times Panhellenic's famous book, "How to Win Pins and Influence Sisters."

In keeping with the new moral standards for women, you'll want to include a hand warmer when you trek beach-ward. Since actual contact of pinky on pinky is forbidden, you'll have to get along somehow on those lonely dunes.

And we simply couldn't go on without mentioning short shorts. You know, it isn't the shorter shorts, just the taller girls, that cause trouble on the standards line-up at your particular house.

And be sure to follow our advice when coming back to your housemother after a trying day disporting on dune and meadow. Sen-Sen, Tips, Nair, Doublemint and Pacquins will all come in handy and should be found in every coed's saddle-bag.

So I'll close for this week with a few words of chic wisdom—be yourself at all times, for nobody else can be it for you, or would even want to, perhaps, maybe, if paid enough. Fashion cannot be bought, though; it must be worked at (right between the a and the t).

Caddy Reveals Top-Secret Info In Interview

GETTYSBURG (IP)—Latest word from the nation's capital had indicated a strong anti-recession kick, according to the President's caddy, Cemetery Jackson.

Jackson, interviewed while conducting a cabinet meeting on the 18th green of the memorial battlefield at Gettysburg, admitted that the President was about to take "strong action on the current emergency."

Opinions Listed

He quoted top-secret opinions of certain top-drawer, front-line and hush-hush officials.

An unnamed vice-president: "We need action, good or bad; these hooks and slices can't go on unchecked."

An unidentified secretary of state: "In my occasional travels, I've noticed that Wilson far out-distances Spalding off the tee."

A source close to the President: "My new Easter hat is just a dream, except it falls off when I tee up my ball."

Bag Boys Boosted

A big business expert: "This just can't keep up. We've got to hike Bag Boy sales."

An ex-political leader: "Prosperity is just around the next fairway."

Ike's golf pro: "I wish he'd devote more time to his game."

A certain Congressman: "These high scores are politically immoral."

Jackson closed his revelations by signalling the nearest Secret Service agent and announced his intention to move the Cabinet meeting to "the 19th hole."

Perry Happy With 'Race Job

"This Millrace stuff is the greatest ever," slurped Student Millrace Chairman Jim Perry, early this morning, one limp arm draped over a Bib 'n Tucker stool.

"Achshooly I didn't think there was much in it—water, I mean—when I took the job from Sam Vahey last year," Perry bubbled on, "but now you should see it!"

There is still no water in the Millrace, the student chairman admitted, but generous student and alumni giving programs have done much toward liquid flow.

"Thas right, Pits!" A.L. ("Sly") Ellingson nodded from another stool. "We're doing lots to see that Oregon students will be happy down by the old muddy wash. We're happy anyway!"

Auto Aid Group Formed by 'CHM'

A Larrilyn Carr Automobile Aid Society has been formed by Quadrumvirate president and chairman in charge of (most) all Carr activities, Charles H. Mitchellmore.

CAAS is a non-profit car pool devoted to providing transportation for Miss Carr and her carless boyfriend after the hours of 6 p.m.

Miss Carr commented that "I'm not certain that I approve of a car pool."

Under the Weather

Unable to escape the clutches of Dr. Frankenstein and his evil assistants, the following victims were confined to the ominous red-brick pill palace Monday: Apahsia Snoggle, Dodar Smootch, F. Allen Johnson (mental ward), Zziglyba Bagel, Hezekiah Niles, Adolph Hitler, and Charles Starkweather.
