Nationalists could regain mainland, panelist believes

By DON JEPSEN

That Nationalist China will someday recover the mainland now held by the Communists was the opinion of Donald Buren, graduate in political science and former Mongolian representative to the National Assembly, Republic of China.

Buren, along with Forrest Pitts, assistant professor of geography and Yasumasa Kuroda, graduate assistant in political science, participated in a panel discussion on the "Formosa Feud" Monday night.

"I think we have sufficient conviction that Taiwan (Formosa) will recover the mainland. This is the conviction of the people on Taiwan and in Red China that we will over-throw the Communists," Buren said.

Buren said that this was the reason the islands of Quemoy and Matsu were so important.

In answer to a question from the audience, Buren said that if the Communist Chinese take Matsu and Quemoy then Formosa will become the front line of defense.

The panel agreed that Communist China's aim was to eventually drive the United States clear out of the Far East, from the Philippines to Japan.

Japanese policy

Kuroda presented the Japanese policy in Southeast Asia. He said that Japan placed trade first, then politics in her international relations.

"Japan is trying to trade with Red China," Kuroda said, "but the Communist philosophy is politics first, then trade, so that Japan's pro-western feelings do not fall in line with the Red Chinese ideology."

Kuroda added that Japan wants Asian progress through close relations with Southeast Asia, but that her ultimate interest is expanding her economy.

"We (Japan) are trying to reach a stage where we can all agree to disagree."

Negotiation 'difficult'

Kuroda said that any negotiation with Communist China will be very difficult because of the fanatic devotion of Communists to OPENING CHARTER DAY ceremonies tonight will be the University Trio. The trio will perform at the Student Union ballroom at 8 p.m. From left: Lawrence Maves, violin; William Woods, piano; and Jerome Jelinek, cello.

Charter Day observances begin with tonight's concert

The University of Oregon will officially note its founding this Wednesday during Charter Day convocations. The first convocation will be held at 2:30 p.m. with 2 and 3 o'clock classes being dismissed to allow all students to attend.

It will feature President Alfred Clarence Neal of the Committee for Economic Development delivering an address entitled "Imperatives for the American Economy." At the evening convocation Washington columnist Marquis Childs will speak on the topic "Will America Go Isolationist Again?"

Max Risinger's University Singers will make their first appearance of the year at the afternoon session, singing the "Last Words of David." The University Trio will make its debut in a concert recital at the Tuesday evening Charter Day ceremonies. The Trio is composed of three members of the University School of Music. They are William Woods, piano; Lawrence Maves, violin; and Jerome Jelinek, cello. The trio will play, "Trio in E Flat Minor" by Haydn, "Trio" (1935) by Piston, and "Trio in B Flat Major," Op. 97, by Beethoven in their recital.

Tuesday afternoon the Gertrude Bass Warner Reference Library will be dedicated, and a reception will follow at 3 p.m. in the gallery of the Museum of Art.

ASUO President Bud Titus stressed the importance of taking an active part in Charter Day activities when he stated, "As one of the two key occasions that emphasize the intellectual aspects of the University of Oregon (the other being commencement), Charter Day offers to each student the opportunity to participate in the University's birthday. I urge all students to attend the various meetings, if only to take advantage of the excellent opportunities to hear such speakers as Marquis Childs and Alfred Neal. But moreover, I think that we students will realize a much stronger tie with the University through an active participation in this commemoration than we would in any other student activity.

World News IN BRIEF

Ike 'lets loose'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—President Eisenhower let loose Monday night with the sharpest remarks he has used against the Democrats since his 1956 presidential campaign.

The President told a giant GOP rally in Los Angeles the Republicans may be suffering from "family spats," but the Democrats have "political schizophrenia."

Mr. Eisenhower called for Republican unity as he opened his two-day campaign tour through California.

U.S. says 'no convoys'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department said Monday the United States has not resumed convoying Chinese Nationalist supply ships to Quemoy and will not revive the escort system unless compelled to do so by military necessity.

This assertion by press officer Lincoln White was in line with a statement by Secretary of State Dulles in Alaska.

Dulles said the United States hopes Communist China's cancellation of the Quemoy cease-fire will be shortlived and the truce will be reinstated promptly.

Dulles said that it was a tragedy that the Chinese Communists have again displayed their "warlike disposition."

Dulles rebuffs Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles Monday rebuffed a Soviet bid for an early foreign ministers meeting on ending nuclear weapons tests.

Thumb around world? Jeff Williams did it

By PAT TREECE

"Something inside just said 'go!'"

So Jeff Williams, junior in journalism, explained a trip that took him five months and led him to hitch-hike the world through such diverse places as Ireland and India, Rome and Hong Kong, the Persian desert and The Philippines.

During one phase of his trip, Jeff crossed what is reputedly the worst desert in the world, and nearly lost his life, not to the bandits for which the area has been known, but to heat exhaustion.

"We were crammed into a bus: Persians, Pakistanis, and me, traveling and I got quite sick in this little Persian town."

"There was sympathy but no aid until an American teacher, returning from Beirut, heard about the sick American, came and got me, and took me to a military post." There he was well taken care of, said Jeff, and charged only slightly for room and board, nothing for the medical treatment.

"Really lucky"

"That's how it was all the way—I was just really lucky about everything," he said earnestly.

To illustrate, he listed crises and near-crises that he missed or escaped unscathed from.

"In Ireland, where there is a great deal of bad feeling between the northerners and south-
