

Letters to the Editor

This is not a personal attack, Mr. Safirov. But I am blaming the Soviet Embassy for not having sent to our university a specialist in foreign politics. We know what is going on in the world and we know what the Russian foreign policy looks like.

Emerald Editor:

I am the student who made what some refer to as both an unfortunate question and statement at the conclusion of the discussion on Soviet Foreign Policy presented by Mr. Safirov of the Russian Embassy in conjunction with World Affairs Week.

First as to the question "To what extent is current Russian foreign policy determined by either fear of or a respect for Red China?" One who doesn't believe that a nation of some 600 million people gaining in military and technological skills can influence a country which is on their border is unrealistically obscuring the issue by negativism.

As to the statement—"Little Yellow People," I must say in extenuation:

(a) A study of American Foreign Relations Primary Sources would show that this and similar terms (the yellow peril, the benighted browns, etc.) are frequently used in a non-derogative sense (as I also quite intended.)

(b) I am fortunate in numbering among my close associates a large number of non-Caucasians, and presently live in Hale Kane Hall (which houses a large Mongoloid segment) by personal choice.

Dawn Page 'Variety' added to KWAX slate

The Dawn Page Show is now a weekly feature of campus Radio Station KWAX at 9 p.m. Friday.

Songstress Dawn Page is a five-foot, five-inch freshman with brown hair and blue eyes. Miss Page, from Fullerton, California, has sung with Stan Kenton at Balboa Park, in the Hollywood Bowl, and at Disneyland. She played the lead in her high school's productions of "Oklahoma!" and "Carousel."

One hour, fifteen minutes every Thursday at 9:30 p.m. is devoted to The Bob and Eek Show, featuring a variety of musical selections — from rock 'n' roll to classical music. The D. J.'s frequently give way to discussion periods, with topics ranging from politics to "I lost my pin last night," according to KWAX staff members.

Assistant dean of law at Harvard to be here

William L. Bruce, assistant Dean of Harvard Law School, will visit the University from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday. While here, he will meet with students interested in the legal profession, particularly to answer queries concerning Harvard.

His appearance here is part of an annual program of the Admissions Office of Harvard Law School to send a representative to speak at various colleges and universities throughout the country.

Those students interested can make appointments to see Bruce by calling the School of Liberal Arts.

(c) The only comments on my statement have been made by Caucasians and in a dignified manner. This proves that my non-Caucasian friends are cognizant of the respect which I have for them, and, therefore did not draw false innuendos from it.

I do admit, however, that I did blunder (which we are all prone to do at times) by my selection of words and picked a rather large body of people before which to do it. Please accept my apologies. Thank you.
